Canada's Really Big Show Ending

MONTREAL (CP) — Fireworks, gunfire, flags and Very Important People will abound Sunday as Canada's 185-day Expo 67 ends.

It will wind up as it began, in pomp and circumstance, with Governor-General-Michener, Prime Minister Pearson, Quebec Premier Daniel Johnson and Mayor Jean Drapeau of Montreal presiding.

There is no doubt that the magic 50,000,000 attendance figure for the six-month run will be reached, if not tonight then certainly by the time the turnstiles click for the last time at 2 p.m. Sunday.

On Friday, Expo was jammed with 428,978 visitors to bring attendance total to 49,652,397 when the fair opened this morning.

By noon today attendance was at 49,852,713.

The switch from daylight saving on Sunday will give the fair an extra hour to increase its attendance total.

EXPO SYMBOL frames Montreal's Mayor Drapeau as he discusses future of world's fair which closes Sunday.

At 3:30 p.m. Sunday all pavilions will begin to close as a 67-gun salute is fired by artillerymen stationed on the eastern tip of Cite du Havre.

Visitors leaving pavilions will be handed Expo flags, streamers, toy flutes and flower garlands.

Restaurants, bars, boutiques, hot-dog stands, the Minirail, the trackless trailer-train known as la Balade and boat tours through the canals and lagoons will end and La Ronde, the amusement area, will close.

At 3:50 p.m., a 35-minute fireworks display will fill the sky with noise and smoke, set off from points near Habitat 67 on Cite du Havre and the Canadian pavilion on Notre Dame Island.

Five minutes later, at 4:30 p.m., everyone will be asked to leave the site and Canada's six-month blast will be over.

Hopes Sag For UN Formula

UNITED NATIONS (CP) Hopes for an early agreement on a Middle East peace formula grew fainter today as the 10-member United Nations Security Council remained deadlocked over the question of new Israeli frontiers.

Members agreed after private talks Friday night to meet again Monday in hopes of working out a compromise between two proposals, one by Canada and Denmark and the other by India.

The Canadian-Danish proposal would have the council call for the withdrawal of Arab and Israeli troops to "secure frontiers."

Israel was understood to prefer the phrase "secure and agreed frontiers," which it felt would imply holding negotiations before making any withdrawals from the Arab territory it conquered in the June war.

The Indian proposal called for a pull-back to positions held immediately prior to the outbreak of fighting. But the Latin American council members, Argentina and Brazil, found this unacceptable, said diplomatic sources.

Both proposals were understood to include giving UN Secretary General U Thant authority to send a special representative to the Middle East.

Danish Foreign Minister Hans Tabor who presented the Canadian-Danish proposal, told reporters both formulas were "balanced."

But he said he could not see sufficient agreement on the issue for at least a week or 10 days to allow the council to hold a public session.

Both the Israelis and Arabs wanted to amend the Canadian-Danish proposal, he said.

The council adopted Wednesday a stop-gap resolution condemning all violations of the ceasefire without fixing the blame for either the sinking of the destroyer or the shelling of Port Suez.

Cheaper By The Thousands?

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia undertakers have presented a master plan to civil defence planners detailing how they can help if a major disaster strikes Vancouver.

The plan advanced by the B.C. Funeral Service Association, which represents 85 per cent of undertakers and embalmers in the province, is aimed at providing services for air or shipping disaster victims.

★ ★ ★

The plan also includes a schedule of fees—$50 for embalming if authorized by a coroner, $16 for a hearse call and $150 plus mileage for shipping bodies.

"I suppose there are some people who will think we are just trying to get our hands on some business, but we drew up this master plan in the sincere hope that it will never have to be used," association president Gar Jennings said Friday.

Closing Stirs 'Combine' Cry

By ROGER STONEBANKS

The federal monopolies commission should "definitely" inquire into the selling of Victoria Machinery Depot's shipyard operations to Burrard Dry Dock, the president of the Victoria Labour Council said today.

Jack Groves was commenting on Friday's closure announcement which leaves only one major shipbuilding company on the West Coast. Burrard in Vancouver and Yarrows in Esquimalt are associated companies.

He also said "every possible avenue has got to be looked into to keep shipbuilding out of one family's hands.

"The shipyards should be brought up to date in techniques and not get behind.

"They've let their techniques fall behind but they are blaming labor costs. Everyone has got to get together to impress on the government this industry has got to be kept."

At the same time, the B.C. Federation of Labour will urge the federal government to nationalize VMD's shipyard and run it as a Crown corporation.

President E. T. Staley also said the resolution calls on the government to establish a merchant marine for the country.

Comparison With Dosco Closing

He said the single ownership means a monopolizing of the shipbuilding and repair industry and "there should be some alternative form of bidding.

"This is a grave situation which we compare to the Dosco situation on the East Coast.

"As an executive, we are disturbed by the monopolistic control of West Coast shipyards, the extremely bad effect on the Victoria economy and the personal hardship likely to be suffered by many workers and their families."

The VMD yard will close Jan. 1 but the Bay Street engineering factory will continue. Shipyard equipment and stocks have been sold to Burrard and VMD president Harold Husband has become a director of that company.

Ownership of the 20-acre shipyard property, however, remains with Mr. Husband. He said today there are no definite plans for its use.

The VMD president, in his statement Friday, said closure was forced because of "learning from reliable sources in Ottawa that the federal government is planning to cancel its promised vessel construction program for the Coast Guard."

Today, Victoria MP David Groos said he knows of no such cancellation.

'We Build Better Ships'

Mr. Husband said "there is absolutely nothing, it is absolutely flat" on the work books beyond the end of this year.

Mr. Groos said the amalgamation will make operations more efficient "and give us the opportunity to bid more successfully for nation-wide contracts. This is where the secret of our success lies."

There was "no question" that the West Coast builds better and more efficient ships than anywhere else in Canada.

"This (VMD shipyard closure) will make no difference to the amount of work available to west coast shipbuilding industry because we still have a certain amount guaranteed to the west coast over the next three years, which is all that remains of the five-year period," he said.

"We still have the opportunity

Russians Launch Giant Spacecraft

MOSCOW (Reuters) — The Soviet Union announced today it has launched a new space vehicle to test the design for future space ships.

The craft, named Cosmos 186, was launched Friday into an orbit closely similar to that of the ill-fated Soyuz 1, which carried Col. Vladimir Komarov to his death on April 24.

The announcement of the launching came soon after London press reports said the Russians had orbited a giant Soyuz-type spacecraft capable of carrying five men as a rehearsal for a spectacular new Soviet space venture.

There was no immediate description of the size of the new vehicle, but the statement that it was intended to test "elements of the design of space vehicles" was a departure from the usual formula used in connection with the Cosmos series.

Easing Suffering, Cost Arthritis Clinic Service

The man was dressed in every other respect impeccably.

But his shoe laces were undone.

They clicked against the floor tile as he moved across the room.

But nobody at the Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society office at 63 Gorge appeared to notice. They knew this was another arthritis sufferer coming for help.

He explained that even on his good days it might take him half an hour to get those darned laces tied.

Sometimes he can't bend over far enough. Sometimes he gets bent over and he can't get up again, so once in a while he says to heck with it—and lets them be. He rarely moves fast enough to shuffle out of his shoes anyway.

And what do shoe laces matter when your joints are swollen and stiff and the nagging pain is back?

The arthritis clinic can't take away his ailment, but it can help him live with it. For a start there's a shoe horn with a long handle and elastic shoelaces for sale at below cost.

There are drugs and household help and specially designed furniture and treatments to ease the pain.

C.A.R.S., a Community Chest agency, founded in 1947 with one physiotherapist, now has 50 branches across the province.

Last year the Victoria Branch diagnosed 140 new cases and gave 150 out-patients 3,243 treatments, 2,735 were at the clinic and 508 in patient's homes.

The cost to an arthritis sufferer could be enormous if it weren't for the clinic.

But public contribution to the United Appeal can help to ease the pressure and in many cases pay for treatments and aids otherwise impossible to obtain.

The estimated 1967 budget for C.A.R.S. is $41,175. The United Appeal has allotted 4.3 per cent or $17,875 to help meet this figure.

This contribution enables C.A.R.S. to have a sliding pay scale for treatments.

"If a patient can pay the standard $5 per treatment, fine, but if he can't, we'll still see he gets full benefits," says Wendy Smylitopoulis, a physiotherapist and occupational therapist who is head of the Victoria branch clinic.

Together with another physiotherapist, she may see up to 20 patients a day. She applies hot and cold treatments to ease the pain, takes them through exercises to reduce stiffness in the joints and teaches them the many tricks that can be used to make the small activities of daily life more bearable.

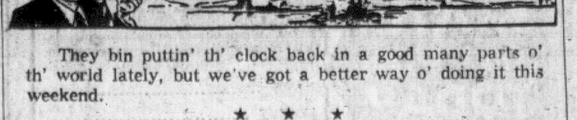
This means an extra hour of sleep Sunday and the privilege of going to church one hour "late." But for the poor night worker it will mean an extra hour on duty.



They bin puttin' th' clock back in a good many parts o' th' world lately, but we've got a better way o' doing it this weekend.

Opposition Seeks War Pension Boost

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition MPs Friday pressed Veterans Affairs Minister Teillet to raise pensions for war veterans, drawing an assurance from him that the government is considering at least some increases.

Conservative, New Democrat and Social Credit MPs all pressed for "a substantial increase" in veterans' pensions as the House approved the $406,536,300 estimates of the veterans affairs department for 1967-68. Of this $202,101,000 is earmarked for pensions.

A. B. Patterson (SC—Fraser Valley) reminded the minister the government had promised an interim pension increase this fall if the Woods Report—an inquiry into veterans' affairs by Mr. Justice M. J. Woods of the Saskatchewan Appeal Court—was not ready.

Mr. Teillet said the government had given an undertaking to consider raising the pensions where needed and that was being done.

M. Patterson, acting Social Credit leader, said veterans were disappointed that the last pension increase did not extend to dependents.

"Economies should not be made at the expense of those who did not count the cost in their service to their country." The pressure for higher pensions for veterans also came from the government side of the House.

David Groos (L—Victoria), said there was virtual unanimity in the Commons veterans' affairs committee that pensions must be increased now to meet the higher cost of living.

Marcel Lambert (PC—Edmonton West) said prisoners-of-war in Europe—he was one himself—should be given the same treatment as veterans who were taken prisoner by the Japanese at Hong Kong.

DELAY 'INEXCUSABLE'

Gordon Churchill (PC—Winnipeg South Centre), a former minister of veterans' affairs, accused the government of an "inexcusable delay" in raising disability pensions to just levels.

Murdo Martin (NDP—Timmins) said Mr. Teillet was using translation problems as an excuse for not making public the Woods report. He quoted a letter from a French-speaking constituent saying Quebec veterans would be glad to get the report in English.

Mr. Teillet said it would take weeks to have the report translated into French and he wouldn't receive it until he could get it in both languages.

"That is the best argument I know against bilingualism—holding up the people's business," said Harold Winch (NDP—Vancouver East).

"You could do it yourself." interjected Stanley Knowles (NDP—Winnipeg North Centre).

OTTAWA—Male and female sex roles may disappear in the life-time of present adolescents, Dr. F. R. Wake, associate professor of psychology at Carleton University, said Friday.

"Probably no man will bear a child, but other than a few such absolutes, men and women will behave according to individual characteristics rather than sex," he told degegates to the convention of the Council for Exceptional Children here.

Already the sexes dress alike, wear hair alike and soon any male job will be open to females, he said. Pay rates would be the same. Even now the rules for sex behaviour in and out of marriage were applying to women as well as men.

LONDON — Those fiery crosses seen in the night sky this week by many Britons were powerful lights on U.S. jet tanker planes practising refuelling at night, the defence ministry said Friday night.

Authorities received more than 30 reports of unidentified flying objects on three nights, some from policemen. Objects ranging from "a fiery cross" to "a cigar shape surrounded by star-shaped beams of light" were reported over many parts of southern England and Scotland.

LONDON — Violinist Yehudi Menuhin, a Jew, raised $4,500 for Arab refugees with a concert Friday night at the Royal Festival Hall and called it "just a drop in the bucket — but I think it's worthwhile."

"It's definitely the action of a Jew extending the hand of peace to an Arab," Menuhin said, "an indication of compassion, if you like, and recognition of the fact that pain, suffering and misery know no boundaries."

Menuhin gave a series of concerts in the United States in August to raise funds for Israel.

REGINA — Extensive damage was caused to furniture and other articles at the Diefenbaker homestead in the city's Wascana Park centre this week by vandals who scaled an eight-foot fence surrounding the momument.

The main house was broken into and windows, dresser drawers, pitchers and other items were broken and strewn about. Some of the furniture was taken outside and broken.

The vandals also broke a window in the outbuilding and an unsuccessful attempt was made to break down the door.

The buildings themselves were not damaged.

Two Spies for One Deal Vetoed by U.K.

LONDON (AP)—The British government has publicly rebuffed a Soviet attempt to win back two Russian agents for one Briton now held in a Russian jail.

The deal was that Moscow would release lecturer Gerald Brooke, serving five years for subversive activities, if London would turn loose Peter and Helen Kroger, both serving 20 years as spies for the Soviet Union.

The American Krogers, husband and wife, were caught in a naval base espionage case of 1961 along with Gordon Arnold Lonsdale, master Soviet spy whose real name was Konon Molody. He was swapped back to Russia in 1964 for Greville Wynne, whom the Russians accused of spying for Britain.

The foreign office said it is clear from the latest reply of the Soviet government that refusal to allow Mrs. Brooke to see her husband is connected with the wish of the Soviet government to bring about an exchange of Brooke for the Krogers.

"Her majesty's government has made it clear that there is no comparison between the two cases and that an exchange is out of the question," a foreign office statement said.

BOY TURNS IN $1,000 BILL

CALGARY (CP)—City police Friday were looking for a person who bought a 25-cent program with a $1,000 bill and collected $1.75 in change.

A boy selling wrestling programs returned change for what he thought was a $2 bill. Only later did he discover that it was a $1,000 bill, which is similar in color to a $2 bill.

The boy took the $1,000 to police, who began looking for the person whose wrestling program cost $998.25.

Staley Again Heads Labor Federation

A Victoria man was re-elected president of the B.C. Federation of Labour Friday but another Victorian failed to win in the contest for first vice-president.

E. T. Staley of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters defeated Rod Beaton of the IWA Lumber Inspectors 402 to 96.

Jack Groves, president of the Victoria Labour Council and a local IWA official, lost to regional IWA president Jack Moore 441 to 72.

In the key contest for the post of secretary-treasurer, incumbent Ray Haynes of the Retail-Wholesale Union beat challenger Ed Sims of the brewery workers 276 to 243.

George Johnston of the meatcutters was returned unopposed as second vice-president while Len Guy of the Typographical Union beat Charles Stewart of the Amalgamated Transit Union 276 to 238 for third vice-president.

Ben Baskin of the steelworkers was unopposed for fourth vice-president.

7 Insurance Pacts Bought

ARCADIA, Fla. (AP) — The father of seven children killed by insecticide poisoning said in a sworn statement Friday he took out $1,000 double-indemnity life insurance policies on each child the night before the tragedy.

But the insurance agent said the policies did not take effect because the father couldn't afford the first week's premium, slightly under $4, said Assistant State Attorney John Treadwell.

Treadwell said James Richardson, 32, made his sworn statement during an investigation into the deaths of Richardson's seven children.

to tender on a national basis for all other federal government ships. Tenders that have been submitted by west coast yards show that we can be competitive and I hope that this amalgamation will put Burrard and Yarrows in a more efficient competitive position so we will win some of these national contracts."

He said an emergency debate in the House of Commons would probably be ruled out of order by the speaker because the subject must be of immediate national importance.

While the closure was of importance to Victoria, it would probably be hard to point out it is of "great national importance" because the national shipbuilding picture has not changed.

On a Canadian merchant marine, he said there was an inquiry a few years ago and he considered the finding still valid.

There was "no possibility" the federal government alone could keep eight or nine shipyards in business using contracts to build federal ships.

There was a national marine once but it lost money, he said.

"The problem of having a merchant marine is you have to provide some legislation to ensure that people use your ships," he said.

"The U.S. Maritime Commission have had to get Congress to pass a law that a certain percentage of all shipments from the U.S. must go in U.S. ships.

Purchaser Decides Shipping

"It is really the buyer, the purchaser, who decides how they (goods) will be transported.

"We are a major exporter of wheat and minerals and it is the purchaser who decides how cheaply he can get them where he wants."

This was the main reason the Americans lost wheat sales to the Soviet Union because the Russians said it was cheaper to move the shipments in non-U.S. ships.

With a merchant marine the government would have to subsidize ship building and operations "and this is something I don't think the country can afford."

Mr. Groos said "my main concern" is for the men who will be out of work and he would be discussing this with union officials over the weekend.

He hoped the federal government's occupational retraining program "will provide them with new and possible better jobs."

In other comments, Esquimalt Reeve Ray Bryant said Greater Victoria should get together "and Ottawa should get the message loud and clear that it's a vital industry in this area."

But Oak Bay Reeve Allan Cox said Ottawa's only responsibility was to retrain and relocate the jobless.

"I am not satisfied, however, that the taxpayers should continue to subsidize the industry and this is what must happen if the industry cannot be competitive."

Erratic Driving Led to Charges

Morley King, 32, of Lake Cowichan pleaded guilty in magistrate's court to a charge of impaired driving.

Magistrate J. A. Byers fined him $300 and suspended his driver's licence for four months.

Court was told the accused was clocked at 48 miles per hour going north on Douglas Friday night.

Police said he changed lanes several times, almost causing three accidents before they were able to stop him.

Coup Rumored In Peru Crisis

By JOHN M. GOSHKO

LIMA, Peru—The Peruvian working classes have started to feel the pinch of this country's economic crisis, and the result has been an ominously swelling wave of national jitters and discontent.

Several cities in southern and central Peru already have been partially paralyzed by a series of general strikes protesting the effects of a devalued currency and rising prices on the working man's pocketbook.

Here in Lima, a week-long succession of rumors about impending labor strife and food and gasoline shortages have brought the city close to panic on several occasions. In one instance, food stores in wide areas of the city abruptly banged their doors shut in reaction to an unfounded report that they were about to be sacked by irate mobs.

SPECULATION

Inevitably, the tension has heightened speculation that the armed forces are growing restive at President Fernando Belaunde Terry's seeming inability to arrest the crisis and might intervene with a military coup d'etat.

Almost overnight, Peru has been transformed from the fastest developing nation in South America to a country fast approaching the brink of grave inflation and stagnation.

And Belaunde, until now regarded as among the most visionary and progressive Latin leaders, has seemed unable to do anything except vaccilate between inaction and ineffectual temporizing measures.

Underlying the trouble was a combination of budgetary deficits, falling exports and rising imports that earlier this year caused a heavy drain of Peru's foreign exchange reserves.

Finally, in order to stave off a liquidity crisis, the central reserve bank was forced to withdraw from the foreign exchange market—a decision that meant it would no longer support the sol at its long-stable price of 26.80 to the dollar.

Since then, the sol has plummeted to a current level of approximately 39 to the dollar—a loss in value of about 40 per cent.

In the meantime, however, prices, especially for the imported foodstuffs on which Peru is heavily dependent, have been steadily raised to bring them back to the pre-devaluation level.

The result has been to confront the Peruvian worker, who has a per capita annual income of about $267, with a drastic cut in his real wages. Especially hard hit have been the poor.

GOVERNMENT OF THE PROVINCE OF BRITISH COLUMBIA

REGULATIONS GOVERNING SEWAGE DISPOSAL

NOW IN EFFECT in British Columbia are new SEWAGE DISPOSAL REGULATIONS.

- All installations of septic tanks and absorption fields must meet the requirements of the Regulations. They must be inspected and approved before being covered.
- Soil Tests at a proposed disposal site must be arranged by the owner and a report submitted to the Medical Health Officer before applying for a permit.
- Where ground conditions are unsuitable for an absorption field, alternate methods of disposal may be approved by the Medical Health Officer.
- The Medical Health Officer for the area is the approving authority.
- The Regulations provide penalties for infractions.

NEED FOR NEW REGULATIONS

Efficient sewage disposal is vital in the control of communicable disease. Outbreaks of communicable diseases such as dysentery and infectious hepatitis, for example, can be due to inadequate sewage disposal or to malfunctioning septic tanks. New regulations are needed to deal particularly with areas of rapid growth that are not served by municipal sewerage systems. Many septic tank failures occur as a result of poor installation.

PURPOSE OF NEW REGULATIONS

- To improve sewage disposal in unorganized and other areas where septic tanks are the means of disposal.
- To provide uniform sewage disposal standards throughout British Columbia.

REGULATIONS APPLY TO:

- EXISTING INSTALLATIONS where the Medical Health Officer judges there exists a danger to public health.
- PROPOSED INSTALLATIONS (septic tanks or other systems of acceptable type) which must be approved and have a permit from the Medical Health Officer before construction begins.

These REGULATIONS GOVERNING SEWAGE DISPOSAL were authorized by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council on September 14, 1967 under provision of the HEALTH ACT. Copies of the Sewage Disposal Regulations may be obtained from your local Medical Health Officer.

BLOOD SPLASH PROTEST BRINGS ARREST OF FOUR

REFUSED release on bail by a Richmond, Va., court Friday during his appeal of a U.S. Army court martial on disloyalty charges was Captain Howard B. Levy. He is appealing a three-year sentence and conviction on charges, including disobeying superiors, arising out of his opposition to U.S. involvement in Vietnam.

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP)—A Roman Catholic priest and a Baltimore artist were fasting in jail today after they were arrested on charges of splashing blood on draft board records.

Two other men who participated in the demonstration against the war in Vietnam were free after signing a pledge to appear for any further proceedings in the case.

"You get the kind of freedom you fight for," said Rev. Philip Berrigan, the 44-year-old priest whose past protests have brought him a rebuke from a bishop in New Orleans and cost him a teaching job at Newburgh, N.Y.

Father Berrigan and an artist and a schoolteacher splashed blood that they said was their own into open file drawers at a selective service office Friday to protest "the pitiful waste of American and Vietnamese blood" in Vietnam. Another clergyman stood watch at the door.

"We shed our blood willingly and gratefully in what we hope is a sacrificial and constructive act," the four members of the Baltimore Interfaith Peace Mission said in a statement.

In an official statement, the Baltimore Roman Catholic archdiocese termed Father Berrigan's action "the kind of flamboyant gesture that is self-defeating."

Released on personal bonds of $1,000 were Rev. James Mengel, 38, a minister in the United Church of Christ, and David Eberhardt, 26, a teacher who is secretary of the peace mission, a conscientious objector and an activist with the Congress of Racial Equality.

Father Berrigan and Thomas Lewis, 27, the artist, were jailed for the weekend when they refused to sign the document promising to appear at the hearing.

LIKE FIRST WAR

Battle of Blood Mud and Big Guns

CON THIEN (Reuters)—The war raging along South Vietnam's demilitarized zone has turned into a battle of blood, mud and big guns similar to the trench welfare of the First World War.

U.S. Marines and North Vietnamese regulars peer at each other from muddy trenches across a crater-filled no-man's land at places only a few hundred yards wide.

They dive into the stagnant ooze churned up by monsoon rains as artillery, rocket and mortar shells whistle back and forth and crash deep into the muck before exploding.

When a gun duel stops, a deathly quiet descends and troops emerge like ants, for the pleasure of stretching cramped limbs or perhaps taking off a muddy boot to air an infected foot.

Then a sensitive ear hears a low whistle, someone shouts "incoming" and the marines dive back to their holes.

Although they are determined not to give ground, the young U.S. marines do not like their strangely-new trench warfare.

"We were built to take over land then give it to the army to slobber over," said one.

Many of these young marines advocate an advance against the North Vietnamese to push them out of the South Vietnamese half of the demilitarized zone.

But the last time the marines pushed in strength into the zone north of Con Thien at the end of July, their 800-man force was ambushed and lost 28 men killed and 191 wounded.

The exercise has not been repeated.

Both sides, however, send small patrols across no-man's land to test the strength and movements of the forces facing them.

The North Vietnamese remain dug in within a few hundred yards of Con Thien on the north, west and east. Marine sources estimated there are 35,000 North Vietnamese in and north of the demilitarized zone.

U.S. Claims 131 Enemy Casualties

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. troops killed 131 soldiers in a series of clashes Friday south of Da Nang, the U.S. command announced, while another day of intense raids on the Hanoi-Haiphong area raised the week's plane toll so far in North Vietnam to 14 U.S. jets shot down and 27 MiGs destroyed or damaged.

Reported American casualties in the ground fighting near Tam Ky and Hoi An, two provincial capitals south of Da Nang, totalled 19 dead and 75 wounded.

Shelling of Con Thien and other forward U.S. marine outposts just below the demilitarized zone also increased, from a recent daily average of 100 or fewer rounds to an estimated 170 Friday. Seven marines were killed and 41 wounded, U.S. headquarters said.

Troops of the U.S. 1st Air Cavalry Division battled the Communists in a series of scattered actions near Hoi An and reported 78 of them killed.

U.S. headquarters said American pilots shot down four MiGs Thursday and one Friday, bringing to 27 the number of Soviet-made jet fighters reported destroyed or damaged in aerial combat or on the ground this week.

Headland to Headland

AFTER LONG AND APPARENTly fruitless efforts to reach amicable agreement with the United States on the issue, Canada has finally announced the baseline arrangements from which it will measure the 12-mile fisheries limits established by Parliament in 1964. Not unexpectedly, the United States has objected to the headland-to-headland line now declared off the coast of Labrador and on the east and south shores of Newfoundland. The United States objection merely confirms the attitude the Americans adopted during negotiations.

When hope for agreement was finally abandoned, the Canadian government took the position reportedly urged in Parliament. It has set its own lines to conform to Canadian interests, declining imposition of American influence on what is a Canadian responsibility. Asked how the country would enforce the decision, Mr. Paul Martin gave a straightforward answer: the same way that it enforces other laws.

American and presumably other interests are protected by the Canadian law which recognizes the historic rights of nationals of countries which have fished grounds that now will lie within the 12-mile limit. That protection, however, is tenuous on the basis of the Canadian understanding that the rights will eventually be phased out.

Further delay in making public the principle on which baselines would be drawn would apparently have served little purpose. Ample time has been given to discussions with American interests. Compromise could not be reached.

The significance of the difference between American and Canadian interests is obvious. The baselines drawn from headland to headland along the coast will enclose bays, indentations and certain straits that had been accepted as international waters when only a three-mile territorial limit was recognized. Some of these waters would be at least partially open to foreign fishermen if the 12-mile ribbon of sea conformed with the contours of the coast as the United States wants it to be.

Pacific coast waters were not mentioned in yesterday's announcement. The headland - to - headland principle has been laid down. Conceivably on this coast field work to establish markers would require more time, and different conditions in fishing prevail from those in the east. Moreover, the British Columbia coastline is sandwiched between American territory in the states of Washington and Alaska, with the Alaska panhandle thrusting down from the north. This geographic fact, along with joint Canadian-American conservation measures and concern for migrating salmon and halibut may influence the situation in the Pacific.

The implication of "historic rights" off British Columbia in waters fished by Japanese and by Russians could also be a matter of further study and negotiations. At all events, in the limits defined on the Atlantic, the government has stated Canada's position clearly—following ample precedent provided by other maritime countries—and, on Mr. Martin's statement, appears prepared to stand by it.

Down the Ways

THE ANNOUNCED CLOSURE of Victoria Machinery Depot shipbuilding operations after more than a century of launchings here is a sad event in local industry but a reluctant recognition of the economic forces of our era.

In recent decades, naval construction and refitting have been the stand-bys of Pacific coast shipbuilding, along with other major orders for provincial government ferries. But the latter fleet is relatively complete until new business makes expansion necessary, and the federal government has been increasingly opposed to letting large-scale contracts in the West where costs of steel and labor are substantially higher than in Eastern Canadian yards.

Naval contracts on the Pacific Coast inevitably carried a sizable subsidy and heavy pressure to reduce government spending was a factor in reducing local orders. The arguments for placing naval contracts here, apart from the acknowledged excellence of local workmanship, had to be other than economic: the social consideration of maintaining jobs for a sizable number of trained workers, the defence consideration of keeping yards in existence against the possibility of sudden wartime demand for naval and merchant vessels.

While these factors are still part of the picture, it appears that the foreseeable future holds no prospect of government orders for ships and it is hardly feasible for a large plant to continue to keep staff and equipment in idleness. The personal tragedy which the closure will mean for many local families should not be overlooked by this community.

On the other hand there is hope that the initiative and imagination that have marked VMD management in recent years may result in continued growth of the industrial engineering operations of the firm and so provide jobs for many of the displaced workers. There should be wider scope, too, for the two remaining Pacific coast shipyards of Yarrows and Burrard Drydock. An ironic aspect of the closure is that Seattle yards are reportedly choked with naval orders but suffer a scarcity of workers. This seems to invite an application of provisions in the joint defence agreement between Canada and the United States. Unfortunately, prospects do not meet payrolls.

Over the Middle Hurdle

THE COMBINED RED FEATHer-Red Cross United Appeal has moved into the second half of its campaign, with over 50 per cent of the $600,000 objective in hand or pledged. The general response so far has been admirable and there appears to be a public appreciation of the fact that donations must be spread over the 23 agencies of the Community Chest as in past years and also the vital operations of the Red Cross.

The advantages of one appeal each year for local charities are clear. There is less inconvenience for the contributors, less duplication of collecting efforts, less expense of gathering in the necessary funds, Apart from new participants, the steady rise in the United Appeal objective each year is only a reflection of the continued increase in the local population, the rise in prices of goods and services which afflicts every type of business these days, and the recognition of greater needs in various fields of social welfare, recreation and health.

The operations of many agencies are largely financed by government or private sources, but wherever there is a gap between income and expenditures it must be made up by the generosity of local donors. Only a slight acquaintance with the operations of the Chest agencies and the Red Cross shows the value of the work they do, and by implication the serious situation that would arise in our community if this work were not carried out.

The collection campaign now in progress gives an opportunity for every resident of Greater Victoria and the adjacent districts to buy a share of good citizenship, to become a paid-up member of the community of good neighbors.

A Job Well Done

On behalf of the members of the social action committee of the South Vancouver Island Branch of the B.C. Association of Social Workers, I would like to congratulate you and Mr. Pete Loudon for the very excellent series of articles that you published on the problems of the aged in Greater Victoria.

Not only did your articles outline very clearly the seriousness of this problem, but you also indicated what we consider to be the best approach to relieving many of these problems.

Please accept our thanks for a job well done.—R. L. Clarkson, MSW, Chairman, Social Action Committee, South Vancouver Island Branch, The B.C. Association of Social Workers.

Preserve "This Little World"

The reeve of North Saanich has told his little flock "they are no longer a backwater but on the highway between the two largest cities in the province." So, pop in the sewers, the sidewalks and street lighting and presto, megalopolis. Marvellous! But wait.

Can there be a community so stubborn and obtuse they see no joy in these lovely expensive urban services? If so, they will have to reject the proferred "goodies" with unqualified clarity at the polls on November 4, to avert having them thrust upon them by the zeal of the development enthusiasts. Can these people really withstand all this pressure for improvements and hold on to their bit of countryside, "this little world, this precious stone set in a silver sea" if ever there was one? Certainly they can, and I believe they will.—(Mrs.) Eva Hinton, 10664 Madrona Drive, Sidney.

FROM UNITED NATIONS, N.Y.

By WILLIAM R. FRYE

A Glimmer of Hope From the Desperation of Refugees

UNITED Nations diplomats believe there may, at very long last, be a glimmer of hope in one of the saddest human tragedies of our times: the Palestine refugee problem. Paradoxically, the element of hope springs in part from the June 5-10 war which, for the short run, has made the problem vastly worse, adding 239,000 new refugees and uprooting once again 116,000 victims of the 1948 war. The latter group are homeless for the second time in their lives.

Frye

The very desperation of these new refugees—the fact that, despite an extraordinary international effort at relief, they face winter's rigors in flimsy tents or less, with little but rags on their backs, few blankets and near-starvation rations—has begun to jolt governments which have kept the problem frozen for nearly 20 years.

If there is no solution, thousands of people could die. This stark proposition, with all it could mean for the personal and political standing of Arab and Israeli leaders, means there has to be a change.

Both the Arabs and Israel have played power politics with the suffering of these people.

Rigid Stand

On the Arab side, rigidity has consisted of refusing any solution short of repatriation, or the free option of repatriation, for every one of the 1.5 to 2 million people involved.

Action by the UN to help individual refugees make a new and better life for themselves has, in the past, often been resisted on the ground that it might release pressure for repatriation.

Thus hundreds of thousands of potentially productive people have been left to rot in the demoralizing atmosphere of idleness, resentment and dependence on a dole.

For the same reason, Arab governments have refused to let refugees be compensated for lost property in what is now Israel. This, too, might seem to represent abandonment of the right to go home.

Notably Humane

These attitudes began to erode before the June war. According to the latest UN Relief and Works Agency (UNRWA) report, covering July 1, 1966, to June 30 1967, Arab states now are taking a "notably humane and helpful" attitude toward rehabilitation of the refugees "through education, training and employment."

Since June, there is even said to be, well below the surface, a trend toward acceptance of compensation for lost property, without thereby prejudicing the refugees' right to return home.

Few would admit it publicly, but more and more of the "old" 1948 refugees are said to be opting, in their hearts, for resettlement and compensation.

Many Would Stay

Experts believe that if someone were to announce next week that buses would be available to take back to Haifa and Jaffa all who wished to go, a surprising number might reply in effect that their son had married in the next village, that they had a job, that others of their children were in school, and that they would prefer to stay where they were, receiving a fair settlement for their lost property.

The UN Palestine Conciliation Commission (PCC) has made a quiet survey of the value of this lost property. The estimates have never been made public, but are understood to be in the general order of $500 million at 1947 prices, or perhaps $2 billion when adjusted to 1967, with allowance for lost usage.

This is a sizable sum of money; but military equipment worth more than this was destroyed in the first few days of the June war. It would be a small price to pay for Mideast peace.

On Israel's side, there has been little public sign of flexibility.

Israel's policy still is to lump the refugee problem with all other outstanding Arab-Israel issues, in effect trying to use concessions on the refugees as bargaining currency with which to obtain a peace treaty.

Experts Rejected

Tel Aviv refuses to accept the judgment of independent experts who say only a moderate number of refugees would in fact opt for repatriation, if given the choice. Israel clings to the nightmare of two million fifth columnists overwhelming her security apparatus.

But Israel is under great pressure from the UN, from friendly governments, and from world opinion to make a forthcoming gesture, and private exchanges on the subject are said to have not been entirely unpromising.

Efforts to score a refugee breakthrough are part of larger negotations on a withdrawal of Israeli troops from territory conquered last June.

These negotiations continue to be caught up in a maze of political complications, and have been made immensely more difficult by sinking of the Israeli destroyer Elath and Israel's reprisal shelling of Suez.

But it is something that there should be any hope at all. Perhaps the June war will yet prove to have had this compensation: that it reawakened the conscience of the world community.

Paying for Past Errors

Montreal La Presse

Roland Parenteau, director-general of the Quebec economic advisory council, reiterated at the convention of credit unions that the shortage of skilled labor is one of the factors that has hurt us most in the past. Frequently industries have refused to come to Quebec, after studying the situation, because they were not sure they would be able to find the type of labor they needed. "And it is thus that we now are paying for our past errors, because we did not soon enough want to get into the era of technology or to change the system of education," said the speaker.

The main point that emerges from his study is this: The natural economic centre of the country is Ontario, with the Montreal region constituting an off-shoot of that centre. Until now, the remainder of Quebec province has been able to obtain several industries based on low salaries — textiles, shoe and cigarette manufacturing. But with a labor force which, within 10 years, may be superior in quality to that of other provinces — providing we continue to consent to a major effort in the field of education — Quebec should aim at a high degree of technology, at interesting specialities.

A Determined Start on the Long Indian Road

SENSIBLE reform as swiftly as possible, combined with increased and continuous education programs at all levels seems the most constructive way to bring Indians up to a level of opportunity equal to other Canadians.

This is not the work of one year or five.

As far as Indian Affairs Minister Arthur Laing is concerned it is the work of a generation before the young Indians being educated today can spread their knowledge and experience through the reserves.

When parliament meets after Christmas the minister will be introducing amendments to the Indian Act designed to allow Indians equal competition with white men — if they want it.

Among the sections which will be deleted completely will be those dealing with penalties for infractions of liquor laws.

The Canadian Corrections Association study released this week said that abuse of liquor caused the highest number of Indian offenses brought before the courts.

Liquor Not Mentioned

However, they are not sentenced according to provincial law but under the Indian Act which provides a stiffer minimum penalty and makes it an offence for an Indian to be intoxicated even in his own home.

There will be no mention of liquor laws in the proposed Indian Act amendments.

Mr. Laing will also propose a loan fund for development on the reserves.

This will enable Indians to finance their own resource development rather than leasing them out to others. In some areas the possible revenue which could accrue to the bands in the future would be considerable.

This loan fund would also help Indians to set up commercial business on the reserve, a practice which is being carried out in a few cases now. On one reserve in Quebec the Indians are doing a brisk business in the manufacture of ski boots and a variety of shoes which are sold at home and exported abroad.

The amendments would also allow Indian bands to set up the equivalent of municipal government on the reserves, depending on their level of funds and ability. Mr. Laing said that a very small number of bands would qualify at first because of lack of development in the past, but the door would be open.

One thing which will not be included in the amendments is any provision for Indians to sell their reserve land at will. Mr. Laing feels that at the moment this still must require the permission of the federal government.

The minister said that his amendments are now drafted, after talks with Indian representatives, and will be discussed with them again before being submitted to parliament. He expresses a growing optimism about the attitude of several Indians who, with a background of good education, are even being regarded as too progressive by their own bands.

"They are beginning to get a sense of heritage and property, which is quite a new thing," Mr. Laing said.

With education and training the young men and prospective community leaders are now realizing the desirability of managing their own land and affairs intelligently with an eye to providing revenue for their people.

Education Clause

The government will emphasize in its policies particular generosity in the field of education, he said.

Next year $50 million will be labelled for those of Canada's 225,000 Indians seeking education at any level. This year the amount is $47 million and the overall total the government is spending on Indians is $118 million. In 1945 that same total was a dismal $5 million.

Mr. Laing does not pretend that things are going to be rosy overnight for Indians. He noted that unrest and disillusionment on reserves is prompting many people to wander off to the cities where they end up penniless in slums because they have no training to cope with city jobs.

"Conditions are pitiful for many of them and this is a real reproach to other Canadians," the minister said.

Nature Rambles

By FREEMAN KING

Out at Fort Rodd Hill Park there are some very interesting things to see, especially as we have had such a very mild fall.

The aspens there are in full color. Their white trunks and golden leaves are very pleasing to the eye.

The well-kept open grassy places in emerald green provide a background of tranquillity for the old buildings of a past age, lending the scene an atmosphere of the old world.

Down the trail to the beach there are some willows that have already put forth their buds. Soon they will show the "pussy willows".

Stop and look at the old fort's concrete walls. You will find many kinds of lichens growing there, and in some places the mosses have taken hold.

As you turn to go along the beach you can see the bare trunks of the Douglas Maple that stand out in a fan-like formation. These trees have lost their leaves, while the broad-leaf maples are still holding theirs, waiting for frost to send them scattering down.

Go out to the old lighthouse and look at the rock on which it was built. There are some excellent glacier scores there, while the surface is still smooth and has not yet been invaded by the lichens and mosses.

Out on what was a small island there are many miniature gardens of lichens clustered in the shelter of a crevice. One can find tiny leaves of some flowering plant established among them.

On the higher wind-and-wave-exposed rock you can find the beautiful orange lichen that can stand the salty spray and flourish in the open.

There are many other kinds, ranging in color from greys to a light green. They are now putting forth their fruiting bodies. Some look like miniature wine goblets, others like tiny trees, and some seem to be exploding volcanoes.

Growing there is a patch of parsley (the garden variety). We wonder how it was introduced.

The U.S. Must Disengage in Asia

Australia and N.Z. Better Forward Bases

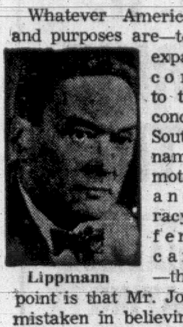
By WALTER LIPPMAN

President Johnson is a man who, having taken the wrong road, has lost his way.

Until he corrects his original mistake, he will not get to his destination by stepping on the accelerator and pushing on.

The original mistake was to commit the United States to a large land war on the Asian mainland.

Whatever American ideals and purposes are—to stop the expansion of communism, to thwart the conquest of South Vietnam, to promote liberty and democracy, to defend American security—the crucial point is that Mr. Johnson was mistaken in believing that he was going to achieve these objectives by fighting a large land war in Asia. This strategic decision by the president is the great mistake which will have to be corrected.



Lippmann

Because the strategy of the war is mistaken, the courage and fortitude of American fighting men is being expended in an unwinnable war.

It is not a glorious war. Measured by the overwhelming superiority of American arms, the military results in Vietnam are embarrassing. The air force has been battering a country which has no air force. The navy has been bombarding a country which has no navy. The best-equipped army in the history of wars has not defeated the lightly armed rebels or the men from the north.

The United States, says the general who commands our troops, is fighting a war of attrition! A war to exchange casualties with the inexhaustible masses of the Asian continent is not a brilliant thing to do. The military tradition and doctrine of this country have always warned against it.

Caught in the middle — as usual — are these South Vietnamese women and children. Forced by American troops to evacuate their village in Quang Tin Province, they were caught in a fire-fight between the Americans and the Viet Cong and huddled in a ravine for safety.

The mistake is producing calamitous consequences in Vietnam, in our relations throughout the world and in the internal peace and welfare of the United States. The mistake can be corrected only by those who realize what the mistake is and who are willing to speak out. When they do, we shall begin to see light at the end of the tunnel.

If we are engaged in a war that is unwinnable and, in fact, interminable, then we have made a colossal strategic mistake. We have blundered ever more deeply into the quagmire by persisting in our mistake.

In order to extricate ourselves we shall have to correct the mistake. This cannot be done by giving the air force a free hand or by sending to Gen. Westmoreland another few hundred thousand men. If we cannot win or accomplish our purposes by fighting a land war in Asia, the mistake can be corrected only by making it our declared policy to pull our forces back to territory which is separated from the mainland by blue water.

This analysis points to Australia and New Zealand as the proper forward base of American power in the South Pacific. To those who are startled by the idea of pulling back from the Vietnamese mainland to reliable and defensible island territory, I would plead that they give this idea a careful hearing. It offers big advantages.

Frivolous

An American decision to adopt a new Pacific strategy will remove the essential issue which makes the war interminable. An American decision to pull back to Australia will not only end the war in Vietnam, but it will remove any near prospect of war with Red China. It will make the terms and conditions of the pullback, which would inevitably take some years, the subject of the negotiations for which we are asking.

It is not necessary to labor on how much easier, cheaper and more secure would be a South Pacific base in Australia than it can ever be in Indochina.

The controlling fact about the Chinese and Vietnamese military forces is that they can march but cannot swim. They have no sea power and the United States is a very great sea power. If they could invade and conquer Australia against our navy and air force, they could blockade Saigon and destroy our power in South Vietnam.

On any calculation of forces, Australia and New Zealand can be made invulnerable.

There is, of course, the Chinese nuclear power. But we must remember that the American position in South Vietnam offers no defence against Chinese nuclear weapons.

As a matter of fact, South Vietnam is completely vulnerable and is an attractive target if nuclear weapons were brought into play. The real defence against Chinese nuclear power is not in Vietnam nor in Australia, but in the strategy of deterrence.

Closes Issue

The rhetorical claim that if Americans do not stand fast in South Vietnam they shall have to fight in Hawaii or even in California seems to be a frivolous insult to the U.S. Navy. It is, however, fair to ask whether from a stronghold in Australia we can exert as much influence in South Asia as from Saigon and Danang.

If influence means that American officials can order the natives around, the answer is that to pull back to Australia is to accept the fact that the era of ordering natives around is over and that policies and purposes must be implemented to non-military means—by trade agreements, cultural intercourse, diplomatic dealings and propaganda.

Not only would this decision remove the most immediate threat of war with the Chinese and the Vietnamese, but it would remove the main conflict of interest between the United States and the Soviet Union. In North Vietnam we are attacking territory which the Soviet Union is bound to regard as its responsibility. In Australia we would be on territory which they accept as being outside the boundaries of Soviet influence.

An American decision to pull back from the mainland would transform our relations with the rest of the world. We would have removed the bone of contention with world opinion, which is the almost universal fear that we are intending to establish an imperial position on the borders of China.

If we scotch that fear, we may confidently expect to find willing and friendly supporters and helpers in the difficult and delicate negotiations which will be required to work out the political and military terms and conditions of the great strategic operation.

Admit Error

In arguing that we can correct our mistake in Vietnam by redeployment of our military forces in the South Pacific, I realize how much all of us hate to admit that we have made a mistake and that we must pull back rather than push forward. But it is not possible to make an omelette without breaking eggs.

The egg we will have to break in order to repair the mistake of 1965 is to admit that we have involved ourselves in a war that we cannot win. Then, while we are still the most powerful and the richest country in the world, we will have found that we were not all that powerful. If that hurts our pride, it will be food for our souls.

It will do us good to learn humility. We will be wiser for it, if less inflated.

The Financial Bind Is Politically Painful

By PETER C. NEWMAN

OTTAWA — The real reason why the current financial crisis has the Pearson administration writhing in such agony is that for once, the government is being forced to deal not just with the politics of the problem, but with the problem itself.

Most inflationary threats to the economy in the past were successfully countered by the influence which the Bank of Canada was able to exert on the nation's money markets. Even when such actions hurt the voters through higher interest rates, the politicians were able to shrug, piously point to the other side of Wellington Street, and explain that since nobody wanted another Coyne affair, the Bank could not be interfered with.

Newman

But this time, monetary policy has been exhausted as an anti-inflationary instrument and only some politically-painful expenditure cutting by the government will help. The fact that this forced exercise in political churlishness happens to coincide both with an uncertain leadership situation and a 7 per cent drop in the party's popularity isn't making the process any easier.

More Money

The root of the trouble is that the Bank of Canada has been increasing the nation's money supply at an unprecedented rate (11.3 per cent since the beginning of the year). Governor Louis Rasminsky felt compelled to do this in an attempt to hold down interest rates.

Unlike the politicians, he wants to maintain lower interest rates so that American investment funds don't suddenly gush across the border, breaking our reserve agreement with the U.S., which in turn, would cut off our access to the New York money market.

The strategy hasn't worked. Despite the higher money supply, interest rates have shot up anyway. At the same time, investors have this year divested themselves of $502 millions in government bond holdings, and for the first time in many years Ottawa is having genuine trouble financing itself.

The only recourse has been the billion-dollar cost-cutting operation which has occupied most of the cabinet's time during the past two weeks. If it isn't successful both in reactivating the market for government securities and halting the spiral of interest rates, a hefty tax increase before the end of 1967 will be inevitable.

In its search for expenditure items to cut, the government has been under tremendous pressure to forego its commitment to launch a national medicare program by July 1, 1968. This is not really an inflationary budget item, because from the start of the medicare debate, the government indicated it would accompany introduction of the program with higher taxes to pay for it.

Despite protestations that they are determined to begin medicare as promised, the federal government may still find a way of reducing its commitment.

December Meet

A conference of federal and provincial finance ministers is planned for December. Six provinces have already indicated publicly (and two privately) that they're just as strapped for funds as Ottawa and would prefer a medicare extension.

One compromise already under consideration would have all the provinces pass enabling medicare legislation, with implementation staged out over the next five years. By July 1 of next year, for example, only Canadians over the age of 65 would become eligible; the following year, expectant mothers and their babies, and so on. Quebec for one, is known to favor this approach.

Much of the blame for the government's budgetary problems has been placed on the rush into welfare state measures, but recent figures don't support that argument.

Family allowance payments have levelled off, because of the declining birth rate. Old age security, the guaranteed old age supplement, and the Canada Pension Plan are all large payments, but they're self-financed, non-budgetary items.

Fast Growth

Government expenditures which have really been growing fast include ARDA, the manpower training schemes, the health resources fund and the various productivity-inducing programs of the department of industry.

The real problem is that governments have tried to do too much at one time. This has partly been due to the opportunism which has made politicians believe they can spend their way into power.

Unfortunately, the politicans have not been able to discover or articulate any definable set of national goals, beyond the vague feeling that they should try to make all Canadians prosperous and happy.

That's a laudable notion, but it's not precise enough to inspire any set of priorities in the nation's spending patterns.

NEWS HIGHLIGHTS OF THE WEEK

Reviewed by Peter Murray, Times Wire News Editor

The worst flareup of fighting in the Middle East since the war last June gave new urgency this week to talks at the United Nations aimed at bringing about a final peace settlement.

The latest crisis was ignited when Egypt sank the Israeli destroyer Elath in the Mediterranean off the entrance to the Suez Canal. The Egyptians claimed the Elath was inside their 12-mile territorial waters; Israel maintained she was 14 miles offshore.

In any case the Egyptians sent the Elath to the bottom with Soviet-supplied missiles fired from a 160-ton rocket attack boat. It marked the first use of this newest type of sea warfare in actual combat.

An Israeli casualty toll for the Elath listed 19 dead, 91 wounded and 28 missing.

Israeli retaliation for the sinking was predicted and it was not long in coming.

An artillery duel erupted Tuesday at the southern end of the canal which wiped out an Egyptian oil refinery and storage tanks in the city of Suez.

Huge fires started by the Israeli shells are estimated to have destroyed three-quarters of Egypt's domestic oil supplies.

As usual each side accused the other of opening fire first.

Besides her great material losses Egypt claims 16 persons were killed and 100 injured, most of them civilians, in the bombardment.

Egypt went immediately to the UN Security Council demanding a resolution condemning Israeli aggression and forcing her to pay reparations.

The Egyptian stand was put before the Council in a Soviet motion, while the U.S. countered with a resolution to condemn "any and all" violations of the ceasefire.

A compromise resolution finally approved by the Council merely expressed regret over casualties and property damage and appealed to both Israel and the Arab states to "cease immediately all prohibited military activities in the area and to co-operate fully and promptly" with UN peace observers.

Britain was dealt another setback this week in her long and frustrating campaing to gain admission to the European Common Market.

The ECM council of ministers meeting in Luxembourg adjourned discussion on the application until its next meeting Nov. 20 in Brussels. There was widespread pessimism after France took an uncompromisingly hard stance against British membership at this time.

French Foreign Minister Couve de Murville laid down a number of pre-conditions which would seem impossible for Britain to meet. De Murville said Britain must first put its economy in order and abandon the pound as an international reserve currency even before negotiations can begin.

U.S. air raids on North Vietnam reached a new peak of intensity during the week following a tough speech by President Johnson declaring that he's in the war to stay.

Johnson spoke after a massive weekend protest in Washington during which 679 persons were arrested on the grounds of the Pentagon.

Most of the demonstrators were draft-age youths and the student protest against the war spread during the week on a number of campuses. Target of some violent opposition were personnel recruiters from a chemical firm which manufactures napalm for the government.

In the air war the U.S. bombed a power plant in the middle of Hanoi and also North Vietnam's biggest air base at Phuc Yen, 18 miles northwest of Hanoi. U.S. plane losses were heavy.

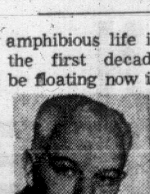
An Epoch Seen Through The Crystal Brightly

By ART STOTT

Those of us who led an amphibious life in the Crystal Garden for the first decade following its opening should be floating now in a sea of melancholy at the prospect of the pool's approaching demise. This was the nursing ground of our youthful aspirations. There we sought to acquire skills. There we met triumph or disaster in competition. There we spent with prodigal hands the coin of adolescent hours.



Stott

The callous of years protects me from too sensitive a reaction to the symbolic end of an era which abandonment of the Garden would mark. If it costs too much to put the place in good order, then it makes practical good sense to replace it with something conforming to the needs of the day and benefiting from the improved techniques of pool construction and design.

Sentiment, or sentimentality, won't hold the glass in place. The problem, as I see it, is one of economics and current requirements for the vastly increased local population of human tadpoles, fingerlings and bigger fish.

But if the old place goes, a lot of us will have our memories.

★ ★ ★

Vincent J. "Dick" Dunn, who encouraged me in the sport and who was the Western Canadian rating authority on diving when I was a kid, gave a lot of advice to the CPR when it planned the Garden. He had his problems. The concept of a swimming pool had only begun to emerge from the British stereotype of the "bath"—a place where you learned to swim, usually breast stroke—that ran from a depth of a couple of feet at the shallow end to six feet at the other.

Dick did his best to have facilities adapted to diving. He persuaded the builders to provide nine feet of water under the springboards. Nine feet is about four feet less than current standards.

And he was able to convince the sponsors of the merits of the 50-yard pool—"the biggest enclosed saltwater pool in the world."

Before the Crystal, Audrey Griffin, Tom Wellburn, Dave Barclay, Kathy Wellburn and Gus McKinnon had pretty well established Victoria's supremacy in British Columbia swimming circles. But their season ended, apart from occasional swims in the small tank at the Y, by Labor Day, when the Gorge cooled down.

The Garden opened a new epoch. Swimming was practical all year around. And young Archie McKinnon began to build the athletes here who carried Canada's colors in Olympic Games pools in the years that followed.

★ ★ ★

Denny Walker became our young Neptune, duelling with George Burrows from Vancouver as that city acquired indoor facilities. Then came the great years of Pete Salmon, Eric Jubb, and, in more recent times, Bob Wheaton and Bruce Warburton. Prospective stars came to Victoria, Irene Strong among them, attracted by Archie's coaching and the Garden.

And during the years the shining lights of swimming performed in the pool—Johnny Weissmuller before he became "Tarzan," Helene Madison, Eleanor Holm, Agnes Geraghty, Mariechen Weslau were a few who showed world standards to Victoria crowds.

From the springboard Al Patnik completed dives we'd never seen before and demonstrated the form which made him an all-time great. The Canadians, Alf Phillips, George Athans and Tom Dinsley, gave spectators a sample of national performance at its best.

These were highlights of history under the glass roof on Douglas Street. With them, in popular appreciation, rank teaching sessions for thousands of little people who learned to swim at the Garden, happy recreational activity in the water, gay and spectacular extravaganzas.

★ ★ ★

The memories of visiting personalities flow—great coaches, Wally Backrach who developed Weissmuller; Seattle's Ray Daughters, maker of Olympic champions, Percy Norman and Howard Firby of Vancouver, Tommy Walker of Toronto; fine swimmers, Canadian Olympians Munroe Bourne and the recent crop of whizz kids from Vancouver.

Perhaps the time has come for a pool of new design. When it is built, may the sun of excellence shine on those in the water as it has shone for more than 40 years through the uncertain lights of the Crystal roof.

Tory Upsurge Is Keyed To Stanfield Leadership

By The Canadian Institute of Public Opinion

The sharp rise in favor of the Conservative party, previously reported, is also reflected in the fact that a healthy majority of the voters feel the convention delegates made a good choice in selecting Robert Stanfield as leader.

Not unexpectedly, almost nine in ten Maritimers approve of Mr. Stanfield as national Conservative leader, while only five in ten from the West (home of Duff Roblin, runner-up for the leadership) approve the choice of Mr. Stanfield.

Ten per cent more in Ontario (66%) than in Quebec (56%) are pleased with the choice of the former Nova Scotia premier. However, Mr. Stanfield has yet to prove himself in Quebec, where more than a third of the voters (36%) are undecided.

The question: "On the whole, do you think the Conservatives did, or did not, elect a good leader at their convention, in Robert Stanfield, former premier of Nova Scotia?"

TIPS FOR HOME GARDENER

Leaf Vengeance Too Costly So Put That Match Away

By JACK BEASTALL

The poet, sitting in a warm room looking through the window, can pen reams of verse about a falling leaf.

The gardener, chasing wet leaves across a windy garden, has very different thoughts.

Jack

After expending time and energy to gather sufficient leaves to equal a ton of manure, he gets his vengeance by applying a lighted match and watching his arch enemy drift away as smoke.

He then pays out $16 to $20 for a load of manure to do the same job the leaves would do, and expends more time and energy wheeling and spreading on beds and borders.

Leafmould, as anyone knows who has a set of good indoor-outdoor gardening books, is worth its weight in dollar bills. It is humus of the finest form minus unpleasant odor and weed seeds.

When we speak about humus we are not alluding to plant food. Humus is food for the soil, fertilizer is food for plants.

●

While the two are quite distinct in their properties and their purpose, the effectiveness of fertilizer is dependent on the amount of humus in the soil.

The mechanical condition, or texture, of soil also depends on its humus content, as does its water-holding capacity during periods without rain.

Both the growth and the general health of plants are better in a humusy soil, and good growth and good health means less trouble from diseases and pests. Humus is more than just "beneficial" in a garden, it is an essential factor in plant life.

Where does the gardener get humus?

One source is leaves, the leaves that fall from his trees and his neighbors' trees.

A common belief is that leaves take an endless time to rot down.

This is true to some extent when thrown loosely in a heap, but when placed in a rough enclosure and tramped down every day until the air is excluded and the pile solid, decomposition is as rapid as any compost heap.

Children love to romp on top of leaves, and with a little guidance they do a wonderful job of compacting the mass.

The addition of a little soil among the layers, an occasional sprinkling of fertilizer or compost activator, and a dusting of lime here and there as the heap is built, all help to hasten the production of valuable leafmould.

●

Leaves contain very little in the way of plant foods, and as far as the home gardener is concerned their humus value far outweighs their food value.

Discarded oak leaves contain more usable food than leaves from other trees growing in this area, and the beech ranks second.

Fallen leaves in the wrong place can do more harm than good.

As explained in a previous column, a few loose leaves trapped by cut-down stems of herbaceous perennials can be a form of protection, but a mass of wet leaves lying on dormant plants will cause the crowns to rot away in our coastal climate.

Wet leaves lying on conifers, especially the spreading junipers, will cause a discoloration of the foliage in a few days and rotting of the covered area if not promptly removed.

The same applies to rock garden plants. In fact, fallen leaves are the nightmare of the alpine plant enthusiast.

In the lily pool, rotting leaves can produce conditions toxic to both plants and fish, and pool owners would welcome a leaf with a phobia of water.

Lawn areas must be cleared of fallen leaves to prevent yellowing, and eventual killing, of the grass plants.

Some of us look forward to leaf fall as a means of improving our gardens, while others consider fallen leaves an unmitigated nuisance.

WEEK'S WORK

By JACK BEASTALL

Nut trees, especially filberts, are attractive and useful for uncrowded small gardens. Plant them early in November or as soon as they lose leaves.

Gather fallen leaves of all kinds for composting. Never burn them.

Get the last of the spring bulbs planted at once.

Irregularities in lawn can be top dressed with fine soil now. Grass will come through dressing one-half inch deep. If deeper, reseed.

Finish plantings of herbaceous perennials before starting on tree and shrub plantings.

If dahlias still not lifted, cut tubers. Dry upside down to back stems and dig the drain hollow stems of moisture. Store in cool, dry place free of frost.

Plant garlic now for good crop next summer. This can only be done in sandy or light well-drained soil.

Sow the few dwarf broad beans.

Second Book Held

Richard A. Wyllie of Vancouver has two literary projects in hand.

One is a book about his great-uncle William Southam, founder of the Canada-wide publishing firm. It is 90 years since Southam's Press Ltd. came into being, when the former apprentice printer with The London Free Press went into partnership to buy The Hamilton Spectator.

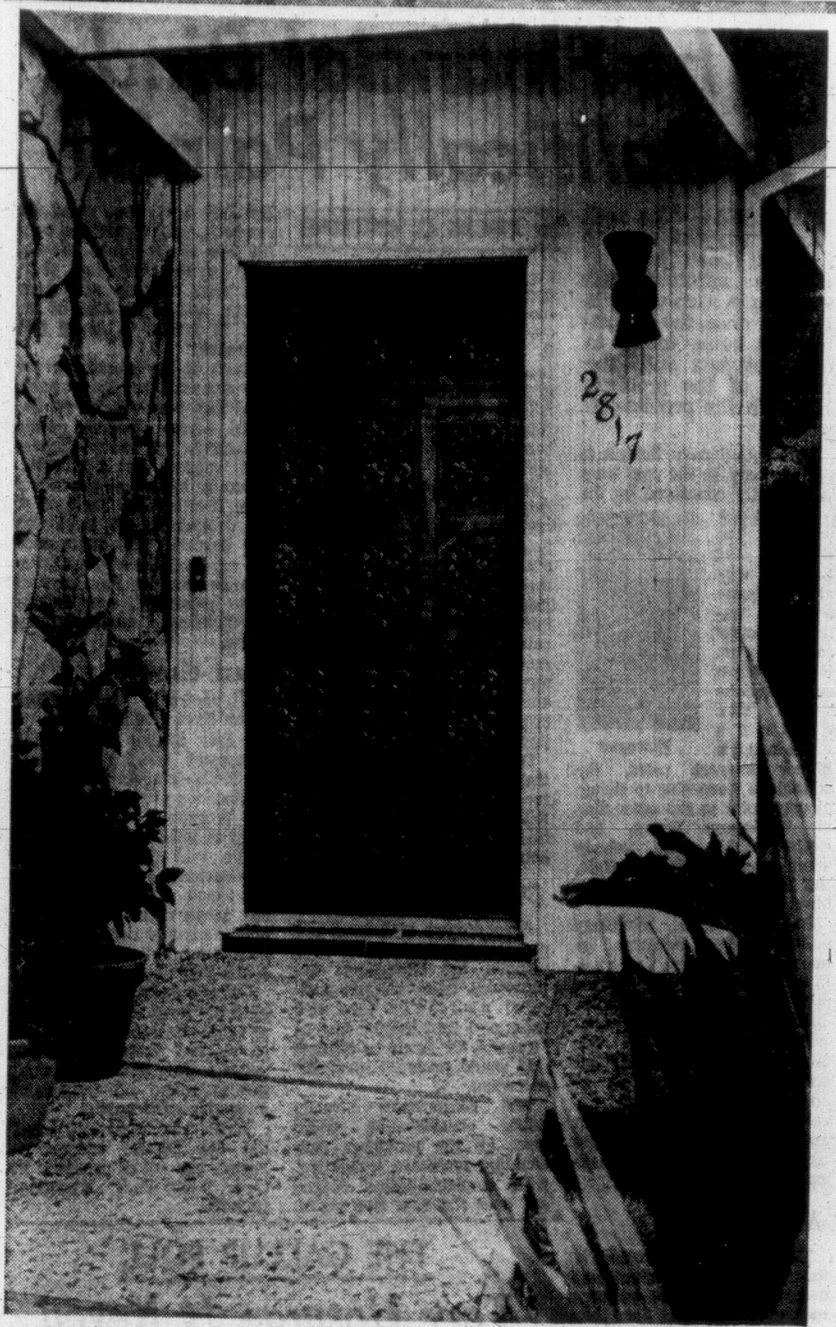
Mr. Wyllie hopes to publish his history of the Southam family next year. His other project will probably not see print in his lifetime. This is a book of personal memoirs about notorious figures he has met during his 71 years. On lawyers' advice he had decided to keep the book for posthumous publication.

Sixteen Charges On Bad Cheques

Andrew Toderian, of no fixed address, pleaded guilty in central court Friday to 16 charges of false pretences.

The charges involved NSF cheques totalling $496 presented at department stores and supermarkets in Vancouver since the beginning of May.

He was remanded to Nov. 3 for a pre-sentence report.



DOORWAY creates first impression of your home, so it should be of good design and reflect your taste.

IT'S WHAT'S UP FRONT THAT COUNTS IN A HOME

By PAULINE GRAVES

When most people consider improving the appearance of their homes, they think about changing the color, adding trim, moving a fence and other related ideas, but seldom does the importance of the front door as a design factor occur to them.

They match the door to the walls, use a contrast or give it a natural wood finish and that is that.

Shown here is a tract house, similar to its neighbors, but which has an identity all of its own, thanks to the front door.

Originally it was a plain slab and now it has the look of a hand-carved panel. Yet everything was added and all parts are obtainable in lumberyards.

Four strips of 1"x2"s were applied to the door from top to bottom, one down each edge and two in the centre, dividing it into three equal lengths, 9" wide.

Nine inch strips, also of 1"x2"s, were added next, across the top and bottom and then across the door at 13" intervals, creating 15 rectangles, each 9"x13".

Molded plastic insets, 7'x10", were then centred in each rectangle, held firmly in place with an epoxy.

Several coats of exterior paint, dark green, unified the component parts for an overall, carved appearance.

One flaw occurred in the placing of the strips, in that they were next to the door knob. The added 1" of the wood reduced the clearance of the knob, and it was impossible to open the door without scraping one's knuckles. Cutting away the wood around the knob solved the problem.

Mortgage Exchange Considered To Pep Up Investor Interest

FREDERICTON — A Canadian Mortgage Exchange is under consideration by the National House Builders Association according to NHBA president W. G. Conelly, of Ottawa.

Mr. Connelly said that such an exchange could bring new investors into the residential mortgage field. He noted that: "If successful the development of a Canadian Mortgage Exchange could well result in eventual lowering of interest rates, an increase in the liquidity of mortgages and the sparking of public interest in this type of investment.

"An indication of the need for such an exchange has been the experience of the Federal Government in its earnest efforts to aid the secondary market in NHA mortgages by auctioning such mortgages out of their own portfolio in designated blocks.

"To the extent that these mortgages have been bought by intermediaries for resale, a secondary market has developed.

"But where such blocks have been bought by permanent investors—such as life, loan and trust companies—there has been no real contribution to a secondary market. In fact the reverse is true in that potential mortgage lending powers have been expended. In other words, the lender has purchased old outstanding loans in preference to acquiring new ones."

Mr. Connelly said that the idea itself is not new. "In fact there have been earlier endeavours to establish a mortgage exchange—the last one, I believe, being some 60 years ago. All of these attempts failed. Why? Well, in addition to administrative drawbacks, there was a lack of sufficient offerings at that period of time and also a scarcity of volume buyers.

"But another factor was that mortgage investments as they then existed had many problems, which I am pleased to say have been resolved today.

"For example, we have CMHC loans today with their monthly payments of principal, interest and taxes, plus 25-year amortization as opposed to quarterly or semi-annual payments and 5 years amortization."

QUIZZING THE GARDENER

By JACK BEASTALL

Q. When is the correct time to prune the Japanese Quince or "Japonica"?—Mrs. D. A. V., Lansdowne.

A. The Japanese Quince (chaenomeles, formerly cydonia) can be pruned quite severely in February when the flower buds are visible. All the younger growth can be cut off to expose the older wood on which the buds are located, thus giving a wonderful display of bloom. Leave only enough new growths to extend coverage of area as needed.

Q. Should I take in the geraniums from the planters on the patio? We are situated above the water at Gordon Head. — H. K., Gordon Head.

A. Some properties on water at Gordon Head get very cold winds off the Straits of Georgia during winter. If you have any suitable place to keep the plants over winter I suggest you take them in. They require a cool, frost free place, with fairly good light, and where you can start them into growth again in spring before setting them out. Otherwise, discard and buy new plants again next year.

LOOKING AT BOOKS

Canadians Funny People in Different Way

By JOAN COLDWELL

Coldwell

Fred Mayne has just arrived in Victoria from South Africa. Somewhere in his luggage are clippings of close to one thousand humorous articles he has had printed in periodicals around the world.

The very first piece he wrote was accepted by the British periodical Punch way back in 1947.

Since then several of his contributions to this prestigious magazine have been selected for reprinting in the annual collection Pick of Punch and the anthology The Best Humour from Punch.

Humorous sketches and satirical articles are Fred Mayne's favorite kind of writing, but he has also written a number of plays — comedies naturally.

One of his three-act dramas is now in the hands of a professional company in South Africa. His most recent book, just published in England, also reflects an interest in drama. It is an analytical study entitled The Wit and Satire of Bernard Shaw.

Professor Mayne teaches English at the University of Victoria, where one of his courses is in creative writing.

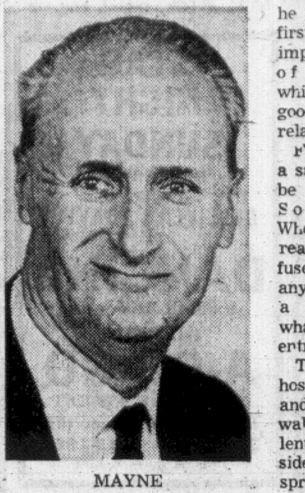
Will this provide the impetus for a local group of barbed-penned satirical writers? If it did, it wouldn't be before time—Canadian writing is, to my mind, humorless in the extreme.

But this perhaps is not a very fair remark. It isn't fashionable these days to distinguish national characteristics, but where humour is concerned English and Canadian tastes vary greatly.

I frankly just don't get the point of many Canadian jokes and I know from the number of times I've been the only one laughing at a British movie that English humor can fall flat here.

Professor Mayne defines the difference thus: "The British go in for understatement in humor; North Americans overstate."

If anyone can cross the national boundaries of humor it ought to be Fred Mayne. He is by birth a Londoner but has lived in Johannesburg for 30 years and in Australia for three.



MAYNE
. . . tries Canada

He has written for five newspapers, including one in New Zealand. (Incidentally, he told me that one of the first things in Canada to impress him was the quality of Victoria's newspapers, which he termed "surprisingly good for a city with a relatively small population.")

Fred Mayne is embarked on a satirical novel, "probably to be set in Canada, but with South African overtones." When I asked about his reactions to Victoria he refused to commit himself to any satirical digs, apart from a few wry remarks about what he calls "a strongly entrenched suburbiana".

The city of gardens seemed hostile to him at first when he and his wife, who are fond of walking, found themselves relentlessly pursued along the sidewalks by mobile water-sprinklers.

He was even more reluctant to make any statements about the political situation in South Africa. He is tired of being beseiged by the usual questions, to which he can only give the expected answers. He has many regrets about leaving the country, particularly since his married daughter still lives there.

Last year he edited an anthology of South African prose called Onwards from Table Mountain. But he feels that life in South Africa is growing increasingly strained for writers.

So now it's Canada's turn. Whether Fred Mayne will find us receptive targets for his satirical attacks remains to be seen. Meanwhile, if you want a taste of his kind of wit, take a look at a collection of his humorous pieces, a book entitled The Slaughter of an Innocent.

Regional History Lacking

SMOKE ON THE MOUNTAIN, by Ellen Crain, Dodd, Mead and Company, $5.50.

Ellen Crain wrote her novel to record the way of life of a group of people being moved out of the Great Smoky Mountains in order that the land might be used for a national park. The book tells of Grandma Weller, midwife and herb healer, who wants to preserve the mountain way of life, and whose death at the end symbolizes the passing of traditions that have endured since pioneer days.

I would like to be able to praise this book because such irrevocable changes in regional history afford vital themes for fiction, and because there are far too few good novels being written today that get to the heart of such changes. But Ellen Crain's book is superficial; not even, perhaps, a good children's book. Her hero turns out to be a kind of Mammy Yokum, tempered by a touch of Mary Worth.

"Was this death? 'Oh, Granny, please don't die.'" This sounds like something out of a popular novel of 40 years ago. Surely the rhetoric of fiction has advanced beyond such efforts to milk feeling from the reader. And the plot and theme of the novel are a bit too much like funny papers. — E.Z.

CHILD DANCING in the wind: illustration by Judith Valpy for Running to Paradise, poems by Irish writer W. B. Yeats selected for younger readers by Kevin Crossley-Holland (Macmillan, $3.95). Below are The Scholars who "Edit and annotate the lines, That young men, tossing on their beds, Rhymed out in love's despair" from the same book.

Importance of Air Arm in War Evident as Navies Threatened

A HISTORY OF CANADIAN NAVAL AVIATION, by J. D. F. Kealey and E. C. Russell; Queen's Printer, 1967; 169 pages; index; illustrated. $5.00

Reviewed by R. H. Roy

By a somewhat broken lineage, Canadian naval aviation traces its ancestry back to the end of the Great War when two air service bases became operational at Dartmouth and North Sydney, N.S.

Manned mostly by American personnel, flying craft which skimmed along at 60 m.p.h. for all of four or five hours, the bases were shut down after the Armistice.

Although the R.C.A.F. got its start in 1924, those interested in naval aviation had to glean such information as they could from the experiences of the air arm of the R.N. and U.S.N.

Consequently at the outbreak of war in 1939, the Air Arm of the Royal Canadian Navy was non-existent.

●

However, the importance of air power to the fleet soon made itself manifest, but the German U-boats had command of the Atlantic almost within their grasp before Canada decided to act.

It was not until the Spring of 1944 that a significant number of R.C.N. personnel began to train in two British converted aircraft carriers, H.M.S. Nabob and H.M.S. Puncher.

By the end of the year both ships had been in action, and the Puncher especially had an active time of it until V. E. Day when it became a pro tem troop ship.

In December, 1945, the Royal Canadian Navy Air Arm was formed, and since that time the Warrior, Magnificent and Bonaventure have served Canada's naval pilots. The latter, with its steam catapult, angled deck, and various other modern features, was the first carrier Canada owned outright.

This history, written by authors who had full access to primary as well as secondary sources, and accompanied by an enviable number of photographs, should be well received by anyone who served in the R.C.N.

For the general public, however, the detail and minutae about the various carriers and H.M.C.S. Sherwater, the main naval air arm base, tends to be boring.

The number of miles flown, landings made, knots steamed, buildings constructed, tonnages lifted, ports visited and so forth may bring back fond memories to those who served at the time, but this list becomes extremely tedious to landlubbers.

The text is not made interesting by any attempt to fit in the carriers' task with Canadian naval or defence policy except in rare instances.

I, for one, would like to know just what the capabilities of a modern carrier would be in wartime, and how it functions in relation to the rest of the fleet.

One cannot end a comment on this volume without admiring the photographs. They are excellent, as are the numerous appendices giving details of commanding officers, details of aircraft, etc. At five dollars this well published book is a bargain and would make a welcome gift to naval veterans or servicemen.

ASSASSINATION BRIGHT MOMENT

The Witnesses, by M. W. Waring. Collins. 576 pages. $6.50.

Half novel, half history, The Witnesses recounts the events that led up to the Russian Revolution of 1917.

The author himself lived in St. Petersburg, and his story is given weight by his own memories and those of other "witnesses".

It is a large book, built on panoramic scale, as the narrative switches from Russia to the centres of revolution in Switzerland and back again. Yet though it is always interesting, the book fails to be completely absorbing.

This is primarily due to the lack of solid characters at the novel's centre.

The fact that the heroine, an American, falls in love with and marries a Russian princeling, offers scope for a number of scenes recalling the twilight of Edwardian elegance: tea on the terrace, and house parties for all the "families" from the neighbouring estates.

●

A Jamesian situation, where the emancipated new woman collides with the traditionalism of Holy Russia.

But this clash of manners is dissipated by the novel's constantly shifting focus.

The book's best moments are those most suited to the narrative's tableau style: a hurried and secret journey over the ice-covered Gulf of Finland at night, or the assassination of the minister of the interior, where all the actors are transfixed at the point of the shot, and we are allowed to linger over the look on the face of the assassin and over the group that surrounds the dying man.

It is like looking over someone's shoulder at an old scrapbook. Some of the pictures come vividly alive; most remain charming but static memories.—A.W.J.

Boy, Girl Share Interest In Murder and Torture

BEYOND BELIEF: A Chronicle of Murder and Its Detection, by Emlyn Williams, 370 pp., Hamish Hamilton, $8.50.

ON INIQUITY, by Pamela Hansford Johnson, 144 pp., Macmillan, $3.25.

THE MONSTERS OF THE MOORS, by John Deane Potter, 285 pp., Ballantine, $.95.

Reviewed by William Benzie

The trouble with choosing a sensational murder case for treatment in a novel is that vital information will not be available to the novelist, unless, of course, the guilty ones are prepared to confess everything.

Unlike Truman Capote who wrote In Cold Blood with the help of the killers, Emlyn Williams got no co-operation from Moors murderers Ian Brady and Myra Hindley.

On such crucial questions as, what were the circumstances of twelve-year-old John Kilbride's death? And, how many more victims are buried on Saddleworth Moor? they have maintained a dour silence.

This refusal to fill in the blanks has forced Mr. Williams to reconstruct from his imagination large parts of this frightful story. Beyond Belief: A Chronicle of Murder and its Detection is therefore a curious mixture of fact and fiction.

The illegitimate son of a Glasgow waitress, Brady was a 'loner' at school and before the age of ten had burned a live cat for "kicks."

●

After moving to Manchester, he dabbled in petty crime and as a result spent his eighteenth birthday in Borstal.

Retreating more and more into himself, Brady turned to literature: His library included, Mein Kampf, The History of Torture and Cruelty, Erotica, Erotica, and the Marquis de Sade's Justine.

In January, 1961, Brady and Hindley met at Millward's Soap Factory in Gorton. Soon they became lovers and she began to share his obsession with pornography and sadism.

Normal sexual intercourse became dull as did pornographic pictures and the study of sado-masochistic practices, and Brady began to crave human victims to satisfy his sadistic urges.

At this point the pair began to scour the streets in their mini-van. A month after John Kilbride's mysterious disappearance, in November, 1964, ten-year-old Lesley Downey was abducted from a fair ground, bundled into the mini-van, and driven away to be photographed in various positions, assaulted, and later buried on Saddleworth Moor.

●

Typically, Brady's tape recorder (later recovered by the police) had been used to record for 'kicks' the agony of the child's last hours.

Between killings, life at the couple's tenement house in Manchester went on as usual. Hindley's grandmother continued to live in her room upstairs mercifully unaware of the gruesome events taking place in the living room ("Gran slept through it all"), and the lovers continued to make regular trips to their favorite beauty spot — Saddleworth Moor.

But for the testimony of David Smith, Hindley's brother-in-law, who witnessed the ghastly axe slaying of seventeen-year-old Eddy Evans ("the messiest yet"), there is every reason to believe that Brady and Hindley would still be paying visits to the moors, periodically taking with them large bundles wrapped in sacking.

BRADY
. . . rape, torture

Emlyn Williams shrewdly avoids the trial scene; it could only repeat the monstrous events he has already recounted.

When Brady and Hindley at last take their places behind the six-inch thick bullet proof glass in Chester Court, the novel ends.

Given such an unusual opportunity for invention, some novelists might have gone overboard.

Fortunately, Emlyn Williams has everything under control. 'Surmise' is carefully integrated in the text of historical fact and for the most part, appears to confirm the little that is known of the couple's background and their murderous alliance.

This is true of the cleverly reconstructed dialogue which, with its Glaswegian and Mancunian dialects, does a great deal to bring to life these two human monsters: Ian Brady, the moody, arrogant, vicious Glaswegian consumed with self love, and Myra Hindley, proud, hard-as-nails, with tender feelings for only Brady and her dog, Duke.

●

They both emerge as completely credible characters, however monstrous.

Myra: "But I do like him in a good mood, an' I do like the way he says forenune instead o' mornin', an' moo-errs for the moors. Moo-errs, it's nice."

Ian: Look at those three starin' at the newspaper — "Terrible aboot the President isn't it, ooh terrible" — the silly twits, give 'em somethin' worth cryin' aboot. Ah, now parrk just here by the ironmonger's, here's a quid, nip in an' buy me a spade."

It's a pity that Emlyn Williams' marvelous restraint sometimes deserts him. For instance, in a number of places there are long overwritten passages of description which tend to disrupt the flow of his narrative.

Also, it is difficult to explain his choice of chapter titles.

"Nights of Wine and Roses" and "From Grave to Gay" seem extraordinary sub-headings for this context. At least one heading ("Queue up for Exhibit Number One") is inexcusable, but the naive injunctions which bring to a close many of the chapters ("Emigrate, Myra Hindley, emigrate") are irritating rather than offensive.

By concentrating on Brady's obsession with perverted sex, Emlyn Williams has done much to explain how the atrocities ever came about. Apart from any artistic achievement, Beyond Belief is an important book simply because it raises much larger questions than the cruel butchering of Eddy Evans or the torture and vilification of little Lesley Downey.

●

In On Iniquity, Pamela Hansford Johnson takes up these larger questions and using the Moors Murders Case as a touchstone of what can happen to two depraved people, she probes the conditions in our "Affectless" society that go to create such human monsters.

"We all-too-readily comfort ourselves by believing there can be no such thing as wickedness: that there is only 'sickness' — that is, a thing for which the subject bears no responsibility. I believe that some of us are, or can be, fairly wicked: and I have tried to examine whether there are things which may encourage us in wickedness, or else break down those proper inhibitions which have hitherto kept the tendency to it under restraint."

Unlike Williams' psychological analysis, this is a sociological study, and Miss Johnson's achievement lies in her penetrating and suggestive analysis of present day attitudes to violence and suffering.

Like Emlyn Williams, she attaches great importance to the ethnic codes of Brady and Hindley, but she also tries to establish a connection between the type of films and books favored by the couple and the moral climate of our "Permissive" society.

Like Mr. Williams, too, she takes another look at the problem of punishment, but can offer no solution. Both Beyond Belief and On Iniquity pose the same question.

●

If they cannot be hanged, what is to be done with Ian Brady and Myra Hindley?

Because of attacks made on him by fellow prisoners (the usual fate of child killers), Brady has requested and been granted solitary confinement in Durham Prison.

A few weeks ago Myra Hindley made the same request after she had been beaten up by women prisoners in London's Holloway Prison. And there is no reason to think that public opinion in Britain will ever allow the release of the Moors murderers.

The Monsters of the Moors, complete with ghoulish pictures of the victims and their graves, is a crude detail-by-detail account of the case. If it does anything, this journalistic paperback only helps to confirm Pamela Hansford Johnson's fears that we are too preoccupied with the depiction of human cruelty. Beyond Belief is harrowing enough.

NEWSPAPERS Gets the BIGGEST BUYING ACTION!

FOCUS

By BRAD NUGENT

Many Canadian groups have been stopped from venturing south to the United States simply because after going through years of struggle to get a good record out on the market, no one in Canada would buy it.

When a Canadian group makes an application to an American booking agency, the first question that usually comes up is "Have you had any records out?" If a group is fortunate enought to be able to answer in the affirmative a quick check almost always reveals that the group's effort didn't even make it off the ground.

From that point onward the group and the agency take a completely different stand from the original idea of "Let's both make some money."

The agency's position is that he is going to have a hard time trying to sell a group that no one's ever heard of.

For him it's like putting a brand new product on the market, without a word of advertising, and hoping someone's going to buy. There's almost a guaranteed impossibility for success.

On the other hand, the group is pushing the idea that even though no one has heard of them yet, it won't take long, once they can be heard, for the word to start spreading. This may be true but, what promoter has got enough time and money to wait around and see if something's going to happen.

So, with the booking agency calling all the plays the only thing that the group is left with is a "request" that they call-in again when they've got something that is moving up the charts.

For a Canadian group to get a disc that even makes it near the top 100 is a feat in itself.

Now it isn't the group's fault. They've got what should be bouncing into the top 10 but, again the idea of Canada's newness in the pop music field creeps back into the picture.

Once a record is cut some way of getting it into the stores has to come about and is usually handled by an outfit appropriately titled a "distributor."

Canadian records have a bad habit of getting tossed in a bin and sold, along with a thousand or so old off-the-charts-type hits, at so many for 99c only because the distributor fully knows that he can make much more loot by pushing more of his efforts into talent that is currently at the top of the lists. Consequently the average record buyer misses them completely.

Even if some should make the proper racks the lack of adequate means of advertising leaves the buyer uninformed.

Canada's only "national" pop music magazine is the RPM effort that comes out of Toronto once a week.

RPM is always in a big flap about Canadian talent but their own motto of "Dedicated to Music made and played in Canada" sadly falls flat on one side. They have a far wider coverage of the U.S. scene and usually only a few almost worthless "tidbits" about Canadian talent can be found.

Then when they come right out and admit that any Canadian group and its record can't possibly make it in Canada, why would anyone think that the Americans are going to pick up a dog and beat it to death?

BITS AND PIECES

Even though Lulu's "To Sir with Love" hasn't seen the topside of the charts for the last few weeks the disc is fast approaching the 100,000 sales mark in Canada (the equivalent of 1,000,000 sales in the U.S.).

Decca Records expects The Cake, a feminine trio to soar to the heights that the Beatles did, in their prime. (Seems a bit much to expect, doesn't it?) Anyway, they've got two people on their side—their managers Charles Greene and Brian Stone, the men responsible for the success of Sonny and Cher and The Buffalo Springfield.

Every Mother's Son is currently negotiating a possible film deal that might see the group in a series of pixs.

The Troggs, Mindbenders, New Vaudeville Band, Manfred Mann, Silkie, Dave, Dee, Dozy, Beaky, Mick, Tich are all featured on the newest "England's Greatest Hits" album.

NGC—4594 (that's the group's name, not the record number) recently released their first wax, "Going Home." What's in a name, anyway?

What's new? Philco-Ford has introduced Hip-Pocket records. Less than four inches wide they have so far seen double-sided hits by The Doors, Tommy James, Neil Daimond, and The Buckinghams make the labels.

The Mamas and Papas have scrapped six months' work in the form of three tracks that were set for their newest album. Why? According to John Phillips—"Rather than rehears 12 hours a day and sort of grind it out, we have decided to try to find each other again as well as a new style of music." Meanwhile the group has left for Europe "to perform what they accomplished so far." Their tour sees them playing concerts in Germany, Switzerland and England.

Our old friend Jim Valley, former Don and The Goodtimes and Raider, has a new one out, "Go Go Round," which was penned by a Canadian, Gordon Lightfoot.

Famed Ballet Group Coming

Coming to Victoria Nov. 8 with the dance ensemble he has made one of the world's internationally recognized ballet companies, will be the artistic director of the Royal Winnipeg Ballet, Arnold Spohr.

"My husband said I had to try it. What's the secret of your beef fondue?" asked the lady from High Quadra.
"It must be the selected pieces of tenderloin," suggested our Maitre d', Leslie.
"I think it's the variety of succulent gourmet sauces," said her husband.
"Are you sure it's not the pleasant waitress who shows one how to cook each mouthful separately at your table?" said the lady. She set about learning to saute her meat in hot butter.
Later she told Leslie, "Whatever it is, it's making you famous among people who like that pampered palate feeling."

Play Was The Thing

By BERYL PROUDMAN

A comparison of excerpts from Mozart's "Don Giovani" and Shaw's "Don Juan in Hell", provides a basis for an interesting intellectual exercise. The presentation of these two related interpretations of the exploits of a common character, one sung, the other read, with which Bastion Theatre opened its new Studio premises on Friday night, did not fully exploit the comparison of the two media.

The operatic excerpts, though entertaining as excerpts, proved little more than a curtain-raiser for the more professional part of the program, the play-reading.

Peggy Walton Packard as Donna Elvira and Zerlina sang with sympathy and skill though her full-scale tones suffered from the very small stage and low-ceilinged room.

Only her sensitive interpretation as Donna Elvira made that role creditable; and when she donned the rather obviously peasant costume of Zerlina, even her most valiant efforts could not make her casting in that role believable.

COMIC PART

Norman Tyrrell wisely played Don Giovanni as a wholly comic part and sang it with robust good humor, while John Bray performed an appealingly timid Leporello.

This operatic rendition though worthwhile vocally lost considerably by being staged at such close quarters to the audience.

Although play-readings in public are always rather suspect entertainment, Shaw has so often been accused of being a talkative philosopher rather than a true dramatist, that any play of his, and particularly this encounter and discussion in hell, is, perhaps, more suitably read than acted.

As movements on stage while a book is consulted, can never look completely free or convincing, there was a suggestion of slighly awkward groping until the four actors were in their places.

Of the four performers, Vivienne Chadwick as Donna Anna had apparently prepared the text most fully and brought it most nearly to a dramatic role. She read her lines with all the authority of a full stage presentation with only very occasional lapses.

CONVINCING DEVIL

A very convincing Devil, Peter Mannering took full advantage of the set which gave him a natural pulpit from which to expound. At every opportunity he enlivened his reading by judicious use of gestures and dramatic pauses and hesitations.

The part of Don Juan, certainly the most taxing of the four was played by Anthony Jenkins.

This role, because of the fast pace at which it must be read to be convincing, requires greater familiarity with the text than Anthony Jenkins seemed to have. Though his dramatic skill and well-trained voice brought out all the fascination of Shaw's characterisation, occasional momentary searchings blurred the effect from time to time and reminded the audience that he was, after all, only reading the part.

John Martin's interpretation of the Commander's role had all the ponderous dignity and shallow sentimentality that the part required.

LIVELY SHOW

The voices of all four actors were pleasantly contrasted and the relaxed yet lively production did justice to the irrepressible Shaw.

The audience thoroughly enjoyed the play-reading and though they applauded the actors it was really Shaw himself, whose revealing satire and startling wit still shocks and amuses, who carried off the largest bouquet.

Plan Fall Bazaar

The North American Benefit Association, Review No. 1, will hold its annual fall bazaar next Saturday at 2 p.m. in the Orange Hall, 1620 Fernwood Rd. Mrs. Edith Crowther is general convener. Assisting her is Mrs. Euls Longden.

Stalls will offer home cooking, cankdy, mincemeat, fancywork, aprons, novelties and raffles that have a chicken dinner and other items for prizes. There will also be a penny auction.

Mrs. B. McAllister will officiate at the opening and tea will be served by the group's social committee.

Next Sonata Study Set for November 15

The next Beethoven Sonata lecture-recital in the series being presented at University of Victoria by Robin Wood, will take place Wednesday, Nov. 15 at 8 p.m. in the Education-Arts Building.

Sonatas Op. 10, No. 2 in F and Op. 31, No. 3 in E flat will make up the program.

PAUL OLEFSKY . . . here next week

Top Young Cellist Has Wide Range

By AUDREY JOHNSON

An artist who has repeatedly been called one of the finest cellists before the public today—Paul Olefsky—will be soloist for the third Victoria Symphony concert, Nov. 5 and 6.

Olefsky is an American musician who became the youngest solo cellist of the Philadelphia Orchestra.

Winner of the coveted Naumberg Award, he went on to win the Michaels Memorial Music Award over such competitors as Van Cliburn and was quickly in demand as soloist with most major American symphony orchestras.

Olefsky's accomplishments have scarcely been duplicated since the time of Piatigorsky.

In addition to concert and recital appearances, Olefsky devotes part of his time to conducting. At one time he organized his own chamber orchestra and has created chamber music festivals throughout the country.

In his programs the cellist runs the gamut from baroque through classic to romantic and contemporary composition.

His "great technical bravura" and "infinite range" of "superbly beautiful and powerful tone" have been acclaimed by all the leading British and European critics.

With the Symphony Orchestra, Olefsky will play two numbers—the Haydn Concerto for Cello and Orchestra and Techaikowsky's Roccoco Variations for Cello and Orchestra.

Next Thursday at 8:30 p.m. in the McPherson Playhouse, the artist will appear in the second of the six-recital series by symphony soloists.

At this concert he will play three sonatas, by Locatelli, Kodaly and Brahms, a Raphsodie by Bertram Shapleigh and a brilliant Castelnuovo-Tedesco arrangement of Ravel's Alborada del Gracioso. He will be accompanied by pianist Robin Wood.

The pleasure and value of hearing a great artist, not only in concerto performance but also in the far more intimate atmosphere of the recital hall, was vividly demonstrated when Marina Mdivani played last week.

The balance of the symphony program to be conducted by Laszlo Gati will be comprised of Weber's Euryanthe Overture and Brahms' Symphony No. 3.

'ANNE' WINNER AT BOX OFFICE

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — The Charlottetown festival production "Anne of Green Gables" has established itself as the box office champion of all attractions sponsored on Canadian tour this year by Festival Canada.

In 47 performances in 11 cities between Sept. 6 and Oct. 21, the production attracted a total audience of 75,600 for an over-all average of 96 per cent capacity in the auditoriums performed.

•

Figures released by Festival Canada Wednesday showed that Anne was headed in capacity percentages only by the New York Philharmonic Orchestra and folk singer Gordon Lightfoot.

Officials here said the "tremendous reception" raises the possibility of another tour next autumn.

Major costs in the national tour for the 62 members of the company were underwritten by the Charlottetown trust, sponsors of the Charlottetown festival. The trust, however, did not participate in tour profits which went to local sponsors.

Salt Spring Island Welcomes Symphony

An enthusiastic reception was given the Victoria Symphony Concert Orchestra on its second visit to Salt Spring Island, Friday night.

Conducted by Laszlo Gati, the program featured Bach's Double Violin Concerto played by new concert master Raymond Ovens and principal of the seconds, Elfrieda Gleam.

Duo pianists Robin Wood and Winifred Scott were also a highlight of the concert which is to be repeated in Campbell River, Sunday evening.

CHILDREN TO ATTEND

An anonymous donor has made it possible, through the Victoria School Board, for 150 school children to attend next Thursday's concert by symphony soloist, the internationally noted cellist Paul Olefsky.

This is in addition to 100 youngsters for whom another donor had already provided tickets.

Symphony support for the other arts in Victoria will be expressed tonight, when conductor Laszlo Gati and Mrs. Gati, Symphony Society president Brian Gingell and Mrs. Gingell and past president John Meredith and Mrs. Meredith attend the final performance of the Victoria Theatre Guild production Charle's Aunt, at Langham Court Theatre.

NEW ART FORMS

Pinball Games And Nudes Too

By R. H. GROOMS

An, old empty office-warehouse building in downtown Vancouver is the new setting for some very interesting sensory experiments on the part of a group of young students and artists.

Partially sponsored by the Canada Council, to some extent supported by rent from Simon Fraser University and grants from UBC, there are just now a number of exciting experimental film and construction projects under way.

One is a set of about six light boxes, like pinball games, illuminated from behind with pop art images on the faces of plexiglass. The subject matter is varied.

One box is mainly a montage of Playboy Magazine busty nudes in a matrix of signs and silliness screaming its title of "Pizza Rizza"!

All are in bright psychedelic colors and are composed on the plastic with color profilm as used in silkscreen printing.

The photos and lettering are transfers from newspapers and magazines or type face of the decal sort used in ad layouts. These give a very clean, professional contemporariness to the feeling of the pictures.

Some have the illusion of movement, from rotating color discs behind the plastic face, seen through semi-transparent holes. On "Pizza-Rizza," one of the largest nude's breasts appears to pulsate and shimmy on the picture surface, provocative and amusing.

The composition having the most impact is one involving a montage of violence. It is an essay in assassination, car accidents, funerals (President Kennedy's), and a wildly distorted wide-angle view of a man firing a multi-barrelled flare gun right at you.

Very effective, too, were the large constructions of polyethelene sheets and bags, that are blown up like huge sausages or punching bags, upon which many projectors are used to show color effects.

These may be slides, movies, or pieces of color plastic conglomerates which are moved in and out of the projectors with varying focus.

These produce wildly distorted color forms on the undulating polyethelene sheets and bags. They give a weird spatial effect to the space.

Of the other projects pending, some involve some very unusual equipment for artists to play with.

One is a special camera used medically to photograph the inside of the human eye to determine retina damage on the eye wall.

Another is an even more specialized camera used by the military to track flak and tracer bullets in gunnery practice or combat.

It boggles the imagination to think of the results to be obtained by combining the images of each of these special cameras in one work.

On all three floors of this special building artists and students are working to produce the images and constructions of the future for B.C., Canada, and the world ultimately. It is a laboratory of the new senses and the new landscape of visual and sensory experiences.

Uniquely suited to the increasing needs of a new type of artist being produced in our three universities, it enables the painfully limited personal budget to be expanded by the mutual use of very expensive equipment and effects beyond what any individual or institution could ever manage in terms of cost or space.

Let us hope this will mark a significant step for our region in the development of a film and visual art industry free of commercial pressure.

Mr. Grooms of the University of Victoria is the new art critic for The Times.

MARKET SUMMARIES

Weakness Hits 'Critical Point'

By FRITS ROOS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Prices at Canada's major stock markets slipped again this week although the decline was not as marked as last week.

There was no panic selling, however, as only a moderate 15,061,000 shares changed hands at Toronto compared with 14,383,000 the previous week.

The Toronto industrial index slid .50 to 160.22—considerably less than last week's 4.79-point drop. However, in mid-week this key indicator of the market's performance dipped to 159.77—lowest level since Feb. 27.

It was down for four of the five sessions.

Brokers were unable to pinpoint an immediate cause for the market's weakness but agreed it seemed to have reached a "critical juncture."

One blamed investor uncertainty caused by "lack of positive government action against obvious inflation."

"There's nothing intrinsically wrong with corporate conditions that cannot be quickly corrected, but that correction doesn't seem to be forthcoming."

BLUE CHIPS DECLINE

Inco, which dropped 3⅞ last week, rallied 1½ to 115½ but was one of few blue chips that advanced.

Falconbridge dropped 2 to 88, Walker's 1⅜ to 32⅝, Bell Telephone and Massey-Ferguson ¾ each to 44¾ and 19 and CPR ⅝ to 60⅞.

Banks and steels were slightly off.

Toronto-Dominion fell ½ to 12¼ and Bank of Montreal ⅛ to 11¼ as Royal Bank gained ⅛ to 14⅞. Banks of Nova Scotia and Commerce remained unchanged at 13 and 11⅞.

Algoma Steel declined ⅛ to 20¾ as Stelco and Dofasco remained even at 21 and 21⅝.

HIGH-FLYER

Shares of General Products Manufacturing, a London, Ont., company that makes tubing, auto equipment, builders' hardware and other products, bounced 19 to 79 after it became known an unidentified company wants to buy part of its assets.

The stock, which stood at 37 last September, went as high as 85 during the week.

Laura Secord was off 1⅛ to 14⅛ after it was announced Fanny Farmer had won its takeover battle with Salada Foods. The latter dropped ⅝ to 10 in the process.

Ford of Canada jumped 4 to 172 following settlement of a strike against its U.S. parent company which closed most of Canadian Ford plants.

Corby Distillery, which announced an increased dividend of $3.25 a share, was up 3 to 35 and Beaver Lumber, FPE Pioneer and International Utilities gained 2 each to 36, 34 and 40, respectively.

Chrysler dropped 2¾ to 56¼ in light trading and IMC 2 to 31.

Scurry-Rainbow paced western oils with a jump of 6¾ to 40 after reaching 42 during the week. There were no official reasons for the sudden increase but a broker said the price was pushed up by New York investors.

Hudson's Bay Oil gained 1 to 38½ after the company announced profits at 88 cents a share—up from 66 cents. Home A advanced 2⅛ to 23½ and Canadian Superior 1 to 44. Dome Petroleum dropped 2⅝ to 56⅝.

In base metals, Hudson Bay Mining fell 2⅞ to a low of 58 after the company announced a $1.19-a-share profit, down from $1.42 last year. Rio Algom picked up 1¾ to 34⅝ while Roman Corp. declined ¾ to 28⅛ and Denison ¼ to 83.

Among golds, Kerr-Addison was off ⅝ to 17 and Campbell Red Lake ⅛ to 20⅞. Dome moved up ¾ to 47½.

On the speculative side, Vascan, which makes steel alloys, and Quebec Lithium rose 70 cents each to 3.80 and 2.80, respectively.

Cochenour Willans Gold Mines climbed 50 cents to 1.40 before and after the company announced a new base metal zone in the Red Lake, Ont., area.

Granby Mining Net Income Drops

VANCOUVER (CP)—Granby Mining Co. Ltd. has reported net income for the nine-month period ending Sept. 30 at $829,000.

The income indicated at $1.74 per share value down from $2.23 for a similar period last year when net income was $1,059,000.

A quarterly dividend of 25 cents was declared payable on Dec. 15.

WITH CAPACITY of Canadian Helium plant at Swift Current, Sask., tripled to 36 million cubic feet annually by addition of a second and larger extraction tower, right, the company has put into service a fleet of six specially-designed cylinder trailers to transport helium in bulk to a new plant in Montreal where conventional cylinders are filled for export customers and eastern Canadian market. They are the largest gas trailers ever built for "piggy back" rail service.

U.S. CONGRESS

Trade Barriers Drive Shattered

WASHINGTON (CP)— The trade protection drive in the U.S. Congress appears to have been shattered—for this year at least.

But there are more than 300 splinters lying on the Congressional agenda as individual bills calling for import quotas on commodities from mink pelts to potash. It's regarded as possible that some conceivably could slip through individually.

"Now the danger is that the industrial lobbyists with a precedent in the existing quotas for oil, cotton textiles and beef will proceed in piecemeal fashion to add a few more prizes to the fiefdom of protection," the Washington Post speculates editorially. There is also a quota on some dairy products including cheddar cheese.

More worrying in the long run for domestic and foreign observers opposed to any trade curbs is the possibility that the protectionist climate next year—with the 1968 elections that much closer—will be even warmer.

State Secretary Rusk and three other cabinet members carried the anti-protectionist fight to the Senate finance committee with the warning of inevitable foreign retaliation if the U.S. starts to raise trade barriers.

They were supported by official representations of concern from Canada and at least 16 other U.S. trading partners.

Support has also been rallied from important consumer interests objecting to the higher prices resulting from dependence on domestic commodities at the expense of cheaper imports.

But some observers still feel there may be an attempt to have a majority of the 100-member Senate approve a general resolution expressing concern for industries that could be harmed by imports.

This would have no power but be a useful debating point later.

There is concern at home and abroad that the wide range of tariff cuts negotiated in the Kennedy Round at Geneva could be eroded.

The issue is regarded by the government as crucial economically because of U.S. reliance on expanding trade. Rusk also argued that trade harmony, while never easy, is an important glue in cementing relations with allies.

Chrysler Sales In Sharp Rise

NEW YORK (AP)—A sharp rise in third-quarter income and sales has been reported by Chrysler Corp.

Lynn Townsend, Chrysler chairman, and Virgil E. Boyd, president, told shareholders income for the three months ended Sept. 30 was $26,800,000 or 58 cents a share, compared with $6,500,000, or 14 cents a share in the 1966 quarter.

Townsend and Boyd said consolidated world-wide sales for the three months were a record $1,300,000,000 compared with $1,100,000,000 in 1966.

'Canadians Support Sales to U.S.'

VANCOUVER (CP)—A National Energy Board commissioner said Friday granting Westcoast Transmission Ltd. permission to export natural gas to the U.S. for a price less than that charged domestic users would mean that Canadian customers are supporting sales to the U.S.

D. M. Fraser made the comment during the fourth day of hearings into Westcoast's application to export an additional 200,000,000 cubic feet of gas daily to El Paso Natural Gas Co. at prices fixed by the U.S. Federal Power Commission. Westcoast now exports 300,000,000 cubic feet of natural gas a day to the U.S. In addition, it is exporting 100,000,000 cubic feet a day on a one-year temporary permit which expires Tuesday.

Last year the NEB approved an export application from Westcoast based on a 25-year contract at specified prices which escalated each year. However, the FPC turned down the application when it was submitted by El Paso.

The FPC subsequently said it would agree to a 20-year contract on which it fixed the price at 29.5 cents U.S. Funds per 1,000 cubic feet.

Westcoast is now asking the NEB to approve a contract at the FPC-stipulated price and terms.

E. T. Tyler, Westcoast's vice-president of planning, told the hearing that his company could make a profit of 5.3 cents per 1,000 cubic feet on the extra 200,000,000 cubic feet daily. He based the figure on a gas-cost-price to the company of 26.9 cents and a selling price to El Paso at 32.2 cents.

STUDIES SUBMITTED

Douglas J. Owen, president and treasurer of Westcoast, and David Hunter, assistant treasurer, submitted cost of service studies which showed that between 1968 and 1975, revenue from Canadian sales would be slightly above cost and revenue from U.S. sales would be just below cost.

Mr. Fraser then asked Mr. Hunter that if the cost-revenue situation were to exist, "would Canadian customers be supporting U.S. sales?"

"Yes, that would appear to be the case from this cost of service allocation," Mr. Hunter said.

"Am I correct in my recollection that this in fact has been the historical position," Mr. Fraser asked.

"Yes," Mr. Hunter replied.

D. P. McDonald, senior vice-president of Westcoast, said Canadian customers — mainly Inland Natural Gas Co. and B.C. Hydro and Power Authority — were being offered new contracts contingent on approval of the export, at a price fixed for the next 15 years.

He said there would be provision for a renegotiated price for another 24 years.

He said the price would be subject to approval by a regulatory body.

Convention Centre Site Report Biased Says Mayor

Mayor Hugh Stephen Friday scuttled a Chamber of Commerce committee report recommending a convention centre opposite city hall.

Speaking to chamber directors at a meeting where the report was tabled, the mayor said it was biased. It runs against policy already adopted by the chamber for dealing with the convention centre issue, he added.

He said it was his understanding the chamber was waiting for an "appropriate time" to consider what convention centre proposal to support. An appropriate time was to be when all the facts are assembled and weighed, he said.

After the mayor left the directors' meeting, the report was received but not acted upon.

A five-man committee headed by Chamber vice-president Eric Mallett rejected a proposed Crystal Garden site because it would add to traffic congestion and interfere with Crystal swimming facilities.

An alternative site on the waterfront adjoining Black Ball ferry docks would take space required by shipping, crowd the ferry operation and further congest traffic in the area, the report said.

Choosing the private proposal made by Osford Leasehold, of Edmonton, the committee said, "every effort must be made to minimize the expenditure of public funds for the construction of such facilities."

The committee recognized the possibility of a combined urban renewal-convention centre complex on the waterfront. The chamber supports the urban renewal principle, it said.

SEPARATE ENTITY

"However, it considers that a convention centre is an entirely separate entity to any urban renewal program."

It was pointed out the Oxford plan would provide for expenditure of more than $51 million and give the city an estimated $245,000 a year in taxes.

But it includes the proviso that Victoria lease the convention facilities, including a shopping mall, which in turn could be leased for a $50,000 annual return to the city.

In support of its stand, the committee offered a sample statement of revenue and expense "with good management" for such a centre.

It would have gross revenue of $125,000 based on 7,500 delegates per year, public dances, concerts, and other functions, which with store rentals would total $175,000.

Total operating cost would be $106,000, which with proposed taxes less current taxes would come to $323,000.

The lease would cost the city $350,000, leaving $22,000 to be made up from general revenue or taxes.

Presence of such a centre in Victoria would generate an estimated $1.354 million to merchants, the report said.

Wheat Sales At Going Market Price

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada will sell wheat at whatever price it can get on world markets until a new international grains agreement goes into effect next July 1, Trade Minister Winters said in the Commons Friday.

He reminded New Democratic Leader Douglas that the government has guaranteed that the Canadian wheat board will pay farmers a floor price of $1.95 a bushel for No. 1 Northern until the new agreement goes into effect.

Mr. Douglas asked whether there was any informal international agreement to back the government's pledge that prices in the new formal agreement will be observed this year, or whether the pledge was based on a pious hope.

Mr. Winters said there is no gentlemen's agreement or pious hope involved, but the government had given its pledge to farmers, and would follow market prices as they develop.

Sales, Profits Of CZ Drop

VANCOUVER (CP) — Sales volume and net income of Crown Zellerbach Canada Ltd. declined in the first nine months of its fiscal year, the company reported Friday.

The quarterly report said total dollar sales were $132,200,000, down about 2 per cent from the $134,800,000 for the same period in 1966.

Net income of $7,100,000 was a 22 per cent drop from the previous $9,100,000.

Robert G. Rogers, company president, blamed a continued curtailment of newsprint production and increased labor and material costs for the decline.

ROYAL ALEX CLOSES DOORS AT YEAR END

WINNIPEG (CP)—After 61 years of service as a palace for royalty and a haven for commoners, the Royal Alexandra Hotel will close its doors Dec. 31, the Canadian Pacific Railway announced Friday.

The decision to cease operation of the 450-room hotel was announced by E. C. Fitt, CPR general manager of hotels.

"The building is still for sale," Mr. Fitt said in a press release. "Proposals received to date are being discussed with the interested parties but no decision has been made."

Chamber Backs Bid To Improve Docks

Victoria Chamber of Commerce directors Friday backed their transportation group's request to carry Ogden Point dock problems to the federal government.

Group chairman George Farmer said a delegation would go to Vancouver to discuss the chances of upgrading Ogden Point ship loading facilities in the face of declining traffic and loss of payroll.

Talks would be held with the CNR as operators or lessees of the docks and foreshore area.

Mr. Farmer told directors there had been an "alarming reduction in ship tonnage docking there."

SOURCE OF COMPLAINT

He also referred to the lumber trucks which run through downtown Victoria en route to the docks, a perennial source of complaint for noise and traffic problems in the shopping district.

He suggested, "We need these trucks on the road. Business is declining at Ogden Point and there is fear some trucking firms will haul to Crofton where they are assured of unlimited use of the road," he said.

In fact, many trailer loads of lumber are already being diverted to up-Island ports where full cargoes may be assembled for today's ever-larger ships.

Ogden Point has both cargo assembly and berthing limitations.

Mr. Farmer said the deputy minister of transport had informed the group the federal government definitely will not undertake any access improvement to Patricia Bay airport outside the airfield boundary.

To do so would set a precedent that could not be followed across the country, it was explained.

The transportation group seeks further ideas or advice on the access problem from Greater Victoria intermunicipal committee.

New Laws for CONSUMER PROTECTION

effective January 1st, 1968

The new British Columbia Consumer Protection Act helps everyone who buys on credit or borrows money

Purpose of Act and regulations

The Consumer Protection Act and regulations seek to provide safeguards to the person purchasing on credit or borrowing money by requiring uniform disclosure of the cost of credit so as to make valid comparisons of credit costs possible.

The Act and regulations are designed to require all the costs to be incurred by a borrower of money or a purchaser of goods on time to be expressed to him by the credit grantor or seller of the goods in terms of an annual percentage rate and a total dollar sum.* Moreover, the rate and the other matters required to be disclosed must be disclosed PRIOR to the transaction being entered upon, so as to permit the consumer to shop for the best credit rates possible, just as he shops for any other commodity.

* Except that registration fees are not included in computing the rate, nor is the cost of insurance on the loan or the goods if the insurance is placed by the lender at the express request of the borrower.

Buying goods on credit

The new laws help the buyer in all time-payment transactions by requiring that, before credit is given, the buyer be provided with a clear, written statement showing:—

- the cash price of the goods or services;
- the amount of any down-payment or trade-in;
- the difference between the cash price of the goods and services and the amount of any down-payment or trade-in;
- the amount of the total credit finance charges on the balance to be paid, expressed both in dollars and cents and as an annual percentage rate;
- the amount of any charges for insurance or official fees required to be paid under any Federal or Provincial statute;
- the basis on which additional charges are to be made if the buyer should fall behind in his payments.

Borrowing money

As in the case of buying goods on credit, the borrower must be given, prior to the making of the loan, a written statement showing the amount to be actually received in cash; the cost of borrowing, expressed both in dollars and cents and as an annual percentage rate; any charges for insurance or official fees; the rate and intervals at which the money must be repaid; and any charges in the event of default on payments.

Prepayment

If a borrower or person buying goods on credit can pay off the indebtedness prior to the due date, then the borrower or buyer is entitled to a proportionate rebate of the credit charges by the application of a formula set out in the regulations.

Itinerant sales

Special provisions apply to "itinerant sellers," which in general terms include anyone who regularly sells goods away from his permanent place of business.

In the case of a cash purchase, when the price of the goods or services exceeds $50, the sales contract must be in writing and include the following:—

- the name and address of both seller and buyer;
- an adequate description of the goods;
- the price of the goods and a detailed statement of the terms of payment;
- a statement of any warranty or guarantee applying to the sale. If there is no such warranty or guarantee, the contract must say so.

And in addition, when the purchase price of the goods exceeds $50, and there is a credit charge, the purchaser must be furnished with the written statement required to be furnished in the case of buying goods on credit referred to above.

The contract must be signed by the buyer and an originally signed copy must be given to the buyer.

Under the Act, any person who buys goods worth $50 or more from an itinerant seller has the right to cancel the contract, provided he does so in writing, personally delivered or sent by registered mail, within three days of receiving his copy of the contract. If the goods are not delivered, the period during which the contract may be cancelled is extended.

If he cancels the contract, the buyer must return any goods he has already received and the seller must return any money or trade-in which he has received.

When a trade-in is involved, the goods given in trade only become the seller's property after the three-day "cooling-off" period has expired without the buyer cancelling the contract.

Advertising

If a lender of money or seller of goods on time makes any reference in an advertisement to the interest rate which he charges for extending credit then he is required to disclose the "true" interest rate, which includes all the charges and to which reference has already been made.

If a lender of money or seller of goods on time makes no reference in an advertisement to the interest rate but does make reference to other terms of credit, then the advertisement must contain every one of the following items:—

- the sum to be actually received in cash by a borrower or the actual cash price of the goods (whichever is applicable);
- the amount of the down-payment (if any);
- the amount of each instalment; and
- the number of instalments required to repay the total indebtedness, including the cost of borrowing.

No advertisement shall contain only one or two of the above provisions. All or none must be included.

Contracts relief

The Act also empowers a Judge, having regard to the risk and all the circumstances, to find that the cost of borrowing in a transaction is excessive and that the transaction is harsh and unconscionable and thereupon to reopen the transaction and settle it upon such terms as he deems fit.

The Act also deals with the assignment of negotiable instruments.

Penalties

Where the lender of money or seller of goods on time understates the cost of credit in the statement required to be disclosed prior to extending the credit, the borrower is only liable to pay the sum or rate so stated.

In addition, substantial penalties are provided for contravention of the Act and regulations.

Exemptions

As presently written the regulations do not extend to transactions involving mortgages or agreements for sale on the security of real property. Sales or credit extended to most industrial or commercial enterprises are also exempt.

What you should do:

The date on which the Act and regulations are to come into effect is January 1, 1968. Borrowers and buyers should bear in mind that nothing in the Act and regulations relieves them of their responsibility of making careful decisions when considering a loan or a purchase on credit. All interested persons should make themselves familiar with the Act and regulations which can be obtained from the Queen's Printer, Parliament Buildings, Victoria (price 15 cents each).

Keep this notice as a reminder of your rights. For advice on the working of the Act and all regulations, see your qualified business adviser.

LOOKS AT SPORTS

Professor Neil Swanson of the University of Victoria was studying some papers of Adlai Stevenson when he came across an introduction the statesman used at a meeting.

"I feel," Stevenson said, "like a mosquito at a nudist colony. I don't know where to start."

After seven years, 840 columns, 11,340,000 words I have a similar problem.

Readers who regularly scan this literature, two columns wide and often too deep, will probably contend the reverse is true. Well, this is it, finis. And on my Boy Scout oath, I'll miss it. And you.

There's nothing much to writing a column. As Red Smith said: "You just sit in front of the typewriter and the blood runs out your feet."

The art of athletics is looked down upon by a few people. They see it as a jungle of silk-suit promoters, overseeing burly brutes so dumb they think hoof-and-mouth disease is a politician's occupational disease. Real dumb, eh?

But it is hardly a world of doubletalk and gobbledegook.

Ask a baron of Bond Street a "yes" or "no" question ("Is business good?") and you can get an answer that runs as long as a Wagnerian opera.

Ask a coach why his team lost 72-0 and you can get a reply that is succinct if not pure Elizabethan prose: "We stunk."

●

Athletes may not be politic or articulate (although many are), but they are usually candid. No veneer of punctilious pretence ever inhibited Rudy Pilous, a former Victoria hockey coach.

Asked by a card-carrying Chamber of Commerce type what he thought of Victoria, Pilous replied: "Lovely. Just like Alcatraz . . . only three canoe lengths from Japan."

Your deponent doth not endorse Mr. Pilous' views. The rain, the gardens, the rain, the people, the rain—where is there a place like it?

Where else can you find a Sandown Park where in the damp autumn they really do have boat races—in the parking lot?

Where else a press box like the one in Memorial Arena where if nature calls she better do it BETWEEN periods?

Where else a place like Macdonald Park where you conduct interviews in a dark, freezing tunnel because the dressing rooms are so small you have to step outside to change your mind?

Don't knock them; they add a distinct flavor (in some dressing rooms a "rich" fragrance") to a city steeped in it.

But inanimate objects do not a city make. What gives a city life and a columnist breath is people as in the song "Up, up with people; they're the best kind of folks I know."

●

So many walk or run or skate or drive past the window of your memory and pass out of sight too quickly.

Others stain indelibly their deeds or words or actions . . .

- The boy who won a cross-country race and accepting his trophy dashed away without talking to you. He was afraid his name in the paper would precipitate positive action from his dad who thought his son was staying late at school for extra tutoring . . .
- The 10-year-old who slept in his first real basketball uniform and asked Harold Turner in dear earnest: "Sir, when can I play with the Chinooks?" . . .
- The countless times the late Billy Foster patiently fielded the question "Do you ever think of dying in a race car?" and saying with great calm, "Yes, I think of dying. Don't you? Doesn't everyone? But this is what I want to do." . . .
- The delightful insouciance of trainer Sid Martin when a hustler at Sandown asked if Martin's horse would win the next race—"He might as well; he's got nothing else to do." . . .

You learn a little about motivation; not so much what separated the pros (money) from the amateurs (sheer joy) but what distinguishes the boys (apathy) from the men (selflessness).

●

You never forget the immense intensity of Billy Gray on a lacrosse floor; the conscience of Andy Hebenton; the coolness of Basil Frazier; the dedication of Trevor Cole; the loyalty of Pat Frumento; the sincerity of Frank Grealy; the class of Dave Unwin.

You wonder how much a community owes to the thousands of hours spent by Harold Turner and Doug Fletcher and untold others who forfeit their leisure so that your children and mine can play games and learn to win and lose.

And you ponder the tolerance of the masses who have suffered a peasant's prose. At least the GIs in Vietnam get compassionate leave occasionally.

You showed a restraint beyond the call of duty in enduring H. Malone's Fearless Football Forecasts, Kentucky Derby winners who "ate great and ran late"; Grey Cup predictions that were always explicit and invariably correct until the games began.

●

Pin a medal on your suspenders for laboring through the experiences of an overstuffed stock car and motorcycle pilot. Lift a flagon, you hardy souls who waded through the annual sagas of a holiday with children. (One reader suggested a remedy: "Next year why not start a Hertz-rent-a-child?")

Readers' stamina defies a rational explanation. Maybe it can be found in a story announcer Jack Short tells.

As a radio-time salesman in Vancouver years ago, Short was suffering from shorts when he discovered a dentist with a remarkable advertising gimmick.

Short convinced the dentist his slogan, sent over the airways would bring in a rash of customers. It did.

The slogan: "If it hurts, you don't pay."

And did anybody get their money back?

"Never," Short said. "Those guys were given so much novocaine you could have hit them across the mouth with a two-by-four and they wouldn't have blinked."

So long. Sayonara. And good luck. To all of us.

Cardinals Reward Red With Substantial Hike

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Red Schoendienst was rehired Friday to manage the St. Louis Cardinals in 1968, but the pilot of the world champions will have only a one-year contract with a substantial hike in pay.

President August A. Busch Jr., in announcing that Schoendienst had agreed to terms, said the National League club was continuing its policy of one-year contracts.

Estimates placed the 1968 salary figure at about $45,000.

General Manager Stan Musial, who does not have a contract with the Cardinals in his position, said Schoendienst has "a very good contract . . . he had a great season and we're all happy."

Estimates placed Schoendienst's 1967 salary in the $30,000 range, indicating a $15,000 raise.

Schoendienst was named manager of the Cardinals late in 1964, shortly after the Redbirds had won the world championship and the late Johnny Keane had left the club to manage the New York Yankees.

In 1965, his first season, St. Louis finished seventh and Schoendienst was rehired Aug. 2.

This season the Cardinals jumped to the front early, and won the National League championship in a walkaway. After a 10½ game victory margin, the Redbirds whipped Boston in seven games for the world championship.

Shuttle Finals Slated Sunday

There was a glittering display of talent at the Racquet Club today as play started in the club's 12th annual invitational badminton tournament.

Among the bird-belters in action were Thailand's world-ranked Raetansaungshaung Channarong, Calgary's Jaimie Paulson and Canadian champion Allison Daysmith from Victoria.

After preliminary rounds in A, B and C divisions, semi-finals were to be played tonight in singles, doubles and mixed doubles. Finals are slated for Sunday.

RANJIT DILLON

SEATTLE TO ENTER . . . . . . LACROSSE LEAGUE

Ranjit Top Player

VANCOUVER — George Wainborn, commissioner of the Inter-City Lacrosse League, announced Friday that Seattle will join the league next year and an invitation may be extended to Portland for the 1969 season.

Addition of Seattle will bring the league up to five teams. This year's teams are from New Westminster, Coquitlam, Vancouver and Victoria.

"If this is found to be the right move, we plan to invite Portland the following year," Wainborn said.

The commissioner also announced that the 1967 award for the league's outstanding player has been won by Ranjit Dillon of Victoria. The Victoria Shamrock ace scored 24 goals and 71 assists for a total of 95 points—an average of 3.27 a game.

Runners-up in the voting were Paul Parnell of New Westminster and goalie Joe Comeau of Coquitlam.

The Maitland Trophy for good sportsmanship and assistance to minor league lacrosse was won by Gordie Gimple of Coquitlam—for the sixth time in 10 years.

WEATHERMAN DISRUPTS CITY SOCCER PROGRAM

There was a touch of sunny splendor at mid-morning, but that couldn't atone for the weatherman's soggy slap at soccer on Friday.

As a result of Friday's all-day rain, three inter-high school league games and today's Pacific Coast Soccer League battle at Royal Athletic Park had to be postponed because of field conditions.

The high school contests will be rescheduled for next week while Victoria O'Keefes and New Westminster will pick up their PCSL postponement later in the season. O'Keefes' next home game will be Nov. 11 against Vancouver Firefighters.

Friday's downpour also forced one change in District League activity on Sunday. A second division match between Gorge and University Norsemen has been shifted from the Gordon Head campus to Beacon Hill Park.

AGAINST BUCKAROOS

Cats Planning On Fast Start

Victoria Cougars will try to snatch a page from the Penticton success book tonight by zipping out of the starting gate against Kelowna at Memorial Arena.

At Penticton Friday night, the Broncos jumped away to a fast start and held on to defeat Kelowna Buckaroos 6-3 for their third B.C. Junior Hockey League triumph in three starts.

Buckaroos remained in a last-place deadlock with the Cougars and Kamloops.

Although the Cougars are sharing the cellar, they could make a jump to tie for second with a victory tonight. To do it, they'll have to overcome the goaltending antics of Doug Thompson, who was the lad most responsible for keeping the Broncos out in front in Friday's contest.

FINE DISPLAY

After his club had scampered to a 3-0 lead in the opening period, Thompson staged a remarkable display before about 700 fans. He turned back a rousing Kelowna charge by making 13 saves in the second period and finished with 25 stops for the night.

The Cats also have to worry about three former Nanaimo players who might have played for Victoria if they hadn't made commitments before Victoria was assured of a franchise. In action for the Bucks will be Islanders Gene Carr, Jim Robinson and goalie Bret Kneen, who made 23 saves in Friday's game.

Cougars will also have a trio of former Nanaimo juveniles—Al McIvor, Terry Mitchell and Greg Gow—in uniform.

WON AT KELOWNA

Cougars, who scored their only win in five starts by winning at Kelowna, will attempt to bolster their defence by using Dunc McLean, a member of the Kamloops juniors last season.

Friday's game at Penticton was marked by a first-period fracas involving five players that set the mood for the entire contest.

During the game there were 17 penalties called, including two major penalties for fighting and a misconduct penalty.

Jack Taggart paced the Penticton attack, scoring twice. Singles were added by Pat Laughton, Gene Taylor, Len Barrie and Adrian Blais.

Rookie Jim Robinson spearheaded the Kelowna attack with his two goals. Gene Carr added the third.

Olympics Still European Show Except in Pools

MEXICO CITY (CP)—Europeans have dominated the pre-Olympic Games and the story isn't likely to change when the real thing happens in 1968.

The European strength is down the middle of almost every sport on the Olympic program. One exception is swimming, where the Americans still dominate but are facing stiffer opposition from the Russians and Germans.

Many of the 2,200 athletes from 57 countries competing in this two-week-long dress rehearsal will be back for the 1968 Olympics, along with thousands more.

Europeans have won 87 of the 125 gold medals awarded in the pre-Olympics with the last big day of the program still to come today.

Thirty-seven more gold are up for grabs in boxing, Greco-Roman wrestling, swimming, canoeing, volleyball and field hockey.

The Games end Sunday with the team equestrian jumping event.

Russia has just about clinched the unofficial team title with 30 gold, 21 silver and 15 bronze medals, winning gold in 12 of the 18 sports on the program.

The Unived States, bolstered by its 11 swimming gold, has 17 gold, 18 silver and 19 bronze, a tally that has made second place secure for the Americans.

Except for the eight swimming finals today, there isn't much left for the U.S., while Russians have a flock of finalists in canoeing and entries in boxing and wrestling.

Canuck Canoeists Carry Final Hope

Canada's dimming chances for a gold medal rest in canoeing, where the Europeans rule.

Canadian swimmers Sandy Gilchrist of Ocean Falls, B.C., and Tom Arusoo of Montreal obviously are off form from their times. They got into a couple of finals, but wound up last.

Ralph Hutton of Ocean Falls, gold medallist in the Pan-American Games at Winnipeg, had been expected to compete here right up to the last minute, but he didn't make the trip.

The two Canadian medal winners so far are R. A. Green of Toronto, who won a silver in the Flying Dutchman yacht racing, and Donato Paduano of Montreal, bronze medallist in the light middleweight boxing class.

The U.S. won four swimming gold Friday night, East Germany and Russia two apiece and Mexico one.

The East Germans, led by Roland Mathes, boosted their swimming gold to four, second only to the Americans.

Mathes was the only swimmer to come close to a world record when he covered the men's 100-metre backstroke in 59.6, just a half second off the world mark of American Charles Hickox.

A dog-tired Don Schollander, with three gold including individual ones in the 100 and 200 freestyle, passed up the 400 freestyle final although he had qualified with the second-best time.

DOUBLE MEDALLISTS

Americans Debbie Meyer and Carl Robie joined Schollander and Holland's Ada Kok as double gold winners.

Miss Meyer won by about 15 yards over team-mate Pat Caretto in the women's 400 freestyle and Robie completed a butterfly double in the men's 200, again outstroking Russia's Sergio Konov.

Claudia Kolb in the women's 200 individual medley and the U.S. team in the women's 400 medley relay completed the American gold harvest.

Alston Reported Set to Step Down

DARRTOWN, Ohio (AP) — "I don't know anything about it," Walter Alston said at his home here.

The veteran manager of Los Angeles Dodgers was commenting on the story in the San Juan, Puerto Rico, Star that he would step down as manager within a week and be replaced by Preston Gomez, third base coach of the Dodgers.

Gomez, in Puerto Rico, also said he knew nothing about it.

"It's news to me," he declared. "It's the first time I heard about it."

Arthur (Red) Patterson, vice-president of the Dodgers, said he knew nothing about any changes and that Alston will be going to Mexico City for the major-minor league meetings there Nov. 25.

Walter O'Malley, president of the Dodgers, and Buzzie Bavasi, general manager, were not available for comment.

Alston, 56 on Dec. 1, has managed the Dodgers for 14 seasons and led them to six National League pennants and four world championships. Last season, however, the Dodgers finished eighth after winning the 1966 NL pennant.

Gomez managed Spokane in the Pacific Coast League and Richmond in the International League before being named a Dodger coach by Alston in 1965.

DON'T TAKE TEST RESULTS . . . . . . TOO SERIOUSLY, GIRLS

Ankles Thick? . . . You Must Be Smartie!

OTTAWA (CP) — Tests of Canadian women athletes at the Pan-American Games in Winnipeg last summer showed: the thicker the ankle, the smarter the girl.

Dr. W. F. Barry, director of the University of Ottawa's psychophysiology department, said 140 male and female Canadian athletes had been tested by an inter-university research team.

"I don't think ankle girth has any relation at all to a woman's intelligence," he said, but it was one of the more amusing results of the testing. Most of the women tested were swimmers.

Breast size did not seem related to intelligence.

'Perhaps this was due to extreme homogeniety in this measurement. That is, a range of sizes is needed to establish a correlation and these girls, God bless them, were all alike, and proud of it."

The study is only an early one, Dr. Barry said, in the text of a speech released Friday, the lighter side of its findings should not be taken too seriously.

Although, he added, studies in the U.S. claim to have shown the flatter the breast, the higher the intelligence.

A promising result showed that well-built male athletes are likely to be intelligent as well.

Muscular and nervous excitability of an athlete's limbs were found to be related to intelligence and speed of brain waves.

A man's physical attributes, such as shoulder width and lung capacity, showed a good physique ties in with intelligence.

'Bear' Really Growls

Nicklaus Fires Spectacular 62

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) —Jack Nicklaus — the Golden Bear of golf—shot a spectacular record round of 33-29—62, nine under par, and a 12-foot putt that missed dropping by an inch on the final hole cost him an even more fantastic score.

A lesser-known golfer, young Steve Spray, missed by an inch on a 40-foot putt on the 18th green that would have given him a tie with Nicklaus.

All this happened Friday, and today Nicklaus went into the final round of the $100,000 Sahara Invitational Golf Tournament leading 26-year-old Spray by a stroke for the $20,000 top money.

14 UNDER PAR

Nicklaus was 14 strokes under par for the Paradise Valley Country Club's, 7,069-yard, par 36-35—71 challenge. He had a 54-hole total at 199.

Spray was an even 200.

Four shots back of the leader was a solid threat, Bob Goalby, and young Terry Dill was in 4th at 205.

The show Friday belonged to Nicklaus. But Spray, a pro only since March 1965, met an acid test. His 64 Thursday put him into the lead and he added an excellent 67 Friday. He was playing just behind Nicklaus and commented: "I heard Nicklaus was just having a good round, not a great one."

'68 . . . SO WHAT?'

Goalby, who played with Big Jack and shot a fine 68, said: "He made you feel you were not doing so well, even with a 68."

Nicklaus' round was the best in his career. The 29 equalled the lowest nine holes on the 1967 PGA tour. The 62 equalled the course record set in 1964 by R. H. Sikes.

Nicklaus bagged two eagles on the back nine. He holed out an 85-yard wedge shot on the par-four 10th. On the par-five 17th he got his second eagle three in two days. A No. 4 iron dropped 12 feet from the pin and he holed out.

Arnold Palmer, who virtually blew himself out of the thing with an opening 76, had his second straight 68 and stood at 212.

PLAYERS STEER ALONE . . . . . . AGAINST VICTORIA TEAM

BUC COACHES RESIGN

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP)—Wednesday, it seemed the players would quit the professional Sacramento Buccaneers of the Continental Football League. Thursday, the players agreed to stay on, but now the coaches have quit.

The players had threatened to resign because they hadn't been paid for their past two games, the result of a poor attendance.

The player crisis was solved when the team members agreed to take a pay cut — from $100 a game to $25 a game—in return for certain concessions, such as changes in the team defence and an agreement players wouldn't be fined for missing practice.

The coaches refused to accept the concessions granted the players and resigned.

Head coach Don McCormick, former assistant at University of Pacific, said, "We refuse to be intimated by these players' demands which are not in the best interest of club."

The players will coach themselves for Sunday's game with the Victoria Tyees (nee Steelers) in Sacramento. The club's leading rusher, Adolphus McGee, will handle offence, and linebacker Tony Kehl will direct the defence.

At today's conclusion of the tournament, visitors will be entertained at dinner by the Russian community of Grand Forks.

BOWLER OF WEEK

Final game of 311 helped Diane Norbury to 815 series and "Bowler-of-the-Week" honors in women's fivepin division of Times-sponsored competition. She rolled earlier games of 279 and 225 in Classic League at Gibson's Bowladrome to lead division and qualify for year-end rolloffs next May.

Title Formula Set

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Professional Soccer League will use a two-out-of-three games series to determine its championship next season instead of the two-game series used this season, Commissioner Ken Macker has announced.

DISTAFF DIVOTS

Two for Thomson In Colwood Tests

There was one double winner as distaff divoters battled soggy weather this week to complete some competitions at Victoria-area golf courses.

Daily winners in the eclectic event were Marion Coxford, Kay Rickinson and Mrs. Thomson. Topping "B" and "C" divisions in the turkey test were E. Ewing and N. Lawson.

At Glen Meadows, Marg Sutton won a "pin" event while Emma Silverberg finished second and also topped the field in a novelty tournament.

Helen Mooney topped "A" division in a par contest at Victoria Golf Club as Frances McColl set the pace for "B" section.

Clark Escapes Track Injury

ROCKINGHAM, N.C. (AP) — Grand Prix driver Jimmy Clark of Scotland wrecked his 1967 Ford Fairlane in a spectacular accident at North Carolina Motor Speedway Friday in a qualifying run for Sunday's $78,000 American 500 stock car race.

The 1965 Indianapolis Speedway winner escaped injury. His crew said the car will be repaired for the final day of time trials today.

The right front wheel came off the car as the two-time world driving champion, making his debut in a big bore stock car, oval track racing, went into the shallow first turn.

The machine spun wildly across the track, smacked a high steel guard rail and came to rest on the infield grass.

Clark was trying for 17th spot in the 44-car lineup.

Esk Defenders Worry Stamps

By The Canadian Press

The opposition's press clippings are up in Calgary Stampeders' dressing room today and on a picture of five players is scrawled the message, "this is what's going to stop you."

The five are starters in Edmonton Eskimos' defensive secondary and their performance could be the key factor tonight as the clubs meet in a Western Conference Football game at Calgary.

Eskimos have already clinched the third playoff spot in the West. Stampeders, who have beaten them twice this year, want a win to wrap up first place and a bye into the finals.

In the other WFC game this weekend, conference-trailing British Columbia Lions, with five points in 13 games, meet Saskatchewan Roughriders in Regina Sunday afternoon.

Head coach Jerry Williams of Stampeders wondered aloud if Eskimos today would again run the blitz that helped them secure the last playoff spot for the second year running.

If that was an invitation, Eskimo coach Neill Armstrong wasn't biting Friday night.

EVASIVE ACTION

"You can use the blitz a certain amount but Liske (Calgary quarterback Peter Liske) gets the ball away so fast that even if you can get a man in there free and he'll get it away most of the time."

With Liske setting passing records, split end Terry Evanshen setting receiving marks and Stampeders flooding four to six receivers at a time, Eskimos defensive halves face heavy responsibility.

Tonight's game at Calgary between the Stampeders and Edmonton Eskimos will be telecast at 8 p.m. over Channels 2 and 6. British Columbia Lions at Saskatchewan on Sunday will be telecast on Channel 8 at 12 noon and will be broadcast over CKNW (980) at the same time.

Armstrong summed it up as, "a guessing game against the Stampeders.

"They're going to look over your defence and if they pick on you at the right time they're going to kill you."

LEADS TO FINALS

If Calgary wins, they will get a bye into the three-game finals starting Nov. 18. Eskimos would meet the second place Roughriders in a sudden death semi-final at Regina Nov. 11.

Armstrong said defensive end E. A. Sims will sit out with an ankle injury. Frank Cosentino and Terry Baker will play "about equal time" at quarterback but he hadn't decided who would start.

Stampeders have won four straight games and the fast-improving Eskimos three.

Proud Clarion Shows Old Form

NEW YORK (AP) — Kentucky Derby winner Proud Clarion finally made it back to the winner's circle Friday.

The Darby Dan Farm three-year-old, making his second start after a long layoff, captured the seven-furlong fifth race at Aqueduct by three lengths with a time of 1:22 4-5.

Proud Clarion was given a long rest after finishing fourth in the June 3 running of the Belmont Stakes. Then his return to competition was held up by a spell of coughing. On Oct. 14, he wound up fifth in a six-furlong race. Friday, however, he was more like his old self as Braulio Baeza guided him home ahead of Velvet Flash in a time that was only 1 1-5 seconds off the track record.

Game Re-Scheduled

EDMONTON (CP)—Bill Hunter, manager of the Edmonton Oil Kings, said an exhibition hockey game against Russia's National hockey team has been re-scheduled for Jan. 8.

Defenders Successful

Jim Douglas and Jack Betts of Uplands successfully defended the city senior golf buttons by defeating Oak Bay challengers Bob Peers and Glenn Coffey on the 16th green in a match at Gorge Vale.

ROOKIE GUARD in Intercity Junior Men's Basketball League, Glen Moffat will play important role for Victoria Chinooks in two weekend games against Vancouver IGA at Central Junior High School. Both unbeaten in young season, Chinooks and IGA will meet at 8:30 tonight and 3:00 p.m. Sunday. Senior women's games between Victoria and UBC will start 90 minutes before each of junior contests.

CURVED STICK

Change Helps Vic To Go Like Hull

(Times News Services)

Vic Hadfield is blond and plays left wing. Until now, that's where the comparison between him and Bobby Hull has ended.

VIC HADFIELD
. . . discovers secret

Hull has scored 370 goals in the last six National Hockey League seasons. Hadfield's total is 69.

Late last season, Hadfield started using one of the Chicago Black Hawk star's sharply-curved sticks.

Tonight's game between St. Louis Blues and Montreal Canadiens will be televised on Channels 2 and 6 at 5:30 p.m.

"If he can score 54 goals with it," Hadfield reasoned, "maybe I can get 20."

The change had an instant effect—nine goals in 12 games. He scored five goals in New York's final six games last season and this year he has scored four goals in the Rangers' first six games.

BORROWED STICK

"I started using the curved stick one night in Chicago," said Hadfield. "I had broken a couple of mine and Bobby lent me one of his."

A couple of quick goals made Hadfield a convert to the curved blade favored by most of the league's harder shooters.

"I've got more confidence with it," Hadfield went on. "I can shoot the puck harder with it and the shots really jump off it."

Sometimes the shots drop, sometimes they rise. Hadfield doesn't know exactly what the puck will do, but then, neither do opposing goalies.

BUSY NIGHT

Hadfield and the Rangers are idle tonight. Otherwise, it will be a busy evening.

Five games are schedued with Los Angeles Kings at Pittsburgh; St. Louis Blues at Montreal; Detroit Red Wings at Philadelphia; California Seals at Toronto, and Chicago at Minnesota.

Sunday Toronto is at New York, Pittsburgh at Boston, Chicago at Detroit and California in Philadelphia.

ORR RESTED

Boston also is idle tonight and coach Harry Sinden is hoping that the extra day layoff for Bruins will allow time for Bobby Orr to get back into action.

He did not play last season's "Rookie-of-the-Year" in the last two periods aginst Los Angeles Wednesday because the young defensive sensation was suffering sore back muscles.

But one of the most excited men getting ready for tonight's California game in Toronto is Leafs assistant general manager King Clancy.

Despite the fact that he'll be pulling all the way for a Toronto victory, Clancy will be torn by hoping his son Terry has a good game for the Seals.

It will be the first NHL game "the King" has seen his son play.

Oak Bay Tops Lake Runners By One Point

Oak Bay runners missed the top spot Friday and barely nipped Shawnigan Lake for team honors in a five-school cross-country running meet near Mount Douglas High School.

Shawnigan's Doug Hansen was the athlete who almost upset the Oak Bay apple cart as he trotted home in front after covering the four-mile course in 23 minutes, 19 seconds. His teammates, Randy Thompson and Randall Bruce were fifth and sixth.

In between came Oak Bay aces Dave Weicker, Gordon Ackerman, and Brian Harding.

CLAREMONT THIRD

Oak Bay finished with 45 points, one better than Shawnigan. Claremont (53) was third with Mount Douglas (93) fourth and Esquimalt (142) fifth.

Claremont was the only school to enter a team in a scheduled girls' race.

Next male cross country meet is scheduled next Friday at 4 p.m. at Oak Bay.

Archery Trophy Taken By Wood

Metchosin Bowmen have singled out Doug Wood as the first winner of the recently-instigated "Archer-of-the-Month" trophy.

Wood posted a 197 average during the month's events.

Ken Rainey (instinctive), Bev Miller (ladies) and Wood (freestyle) emerged as top marksmen in regular indoor competition.

SOCCER RESIGNATION

WINNIPEG (CP) — Tommy Murray, secretary-treasurer of the Manitoba Soccer Football Association for the last 15 years, has resigned.

Sharp Hastings Gives Stockers a 2-1 Shave

Applause went to the goaltenders at Esquimalt Sports Centre Friday night as Tudor Monarchs and University of Victoria Vikings remained deadlocked for first place in the Vancouver Island Hockey League.

Stockers North Americans, with new zip in their skates and new players in their lineup, did ther best to knock the Monarchs out of the top berth.

On many nights their efforts would have been enough, but this time they ran into a razor-sharp Ed Hastings in the Tudor nets and went down to a 2-1 defeat.

Vikings, getting stone-wall netminding from Wayne Hodges, kept their share of the lead by blanking Queen's Own Rifles, 5-0.

TOUGH BARRIER

Stockers gave Monarchs an uncomfortable evening but found Hastings too tough a barrier as they hammered 33 shots at the Monarch goal while the winners managed only 21 at the Stocker nets.

Vikings were never in danger of losing although Hodgson was forced to make 19 saves in order to preserve his shutout.

Monarchs scored once in the first period and again with less than five minutes remaining in the third session to take a 2-0 lead. Nick Nicoletti wrecked what had been shaping up as a perfect evening for Hastings as he fired the lone Stocker tally with only 55 seconds on the clock.

PHOENIX CLIPPED

Uphill Climb For Cleveland

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

It was an uphill fight, but Cleveland Barons finally established some sort of control over Western Hockey League opposition Friday as they completed the first full interlocking swing by an American League club.

In five games, they came away with three wins following a 3-2 decision over Phoenix Roadrunners Friday.

In another interlocking game Friday, Providence Reds downed Vancouver Canucks of the Western League 7-2. Buffalo Bisons handed Hershey Bears their first loss of the season, 7-5.

Cleveland's three wins have moved them to the top of the AHL's Western Division with 12 points, six more than Buffalo while the loss by Hershey left them atop the Eastern division, but with Providence and Springfield Kings just two points behind.

LATE RECOVERY

The Barons came back from a 2-0 first period deficit. Third period goals by Howie Glover and Jim Paterson gave them the edge after Cec Hoekstra's got them on the board in the second period. Del Topoll and Bob Kabel scored for Phoenix before a crowd of only 3,027.

Eddie Kachur and Brian Perry each scored twice to lead Providence as the Reds blasted in four goals in the second period.

Moe Mantha, Dennis Macks, Tony Goegan also tallied for the Reds. Vancouver goals went to Mike Corbett and Jean Picard.

Alain Caron scored three times for Buffalo and Guy Trottier, Billy Knibbs, Bob Jones and Gerry Ouellette once with Mike Nykoluk, Wayne Maxner, Don Marcotte, Ted Snell and Bob Leiter replying for Hershey.

Ingrahams Win Third Straight

Bob Harris and Gordie Strongman each scored twice to lead Ingraham Buckaroos to a 6-0 victory over VMD and their third straight victory in the Stuffy McGinnis Hockey League.

Frank Coburn and John Mossey scored Bucks' other goals.

In another game, Pete Oliver's pair helped Victoria Press to a 2-2 draw with Drake Hotel. Brian Bayton and Ken Henderson scored Drakes' goals.

Inflationary Chickens Come Home to Roost

By JOHN MIKA

As Premier Bennett loves to taunt his enemies, "chickens always come home to roost."

Perhaps that's why you can't see him for feathers just now. It's becoming increasingly difficult for the press gallery to get past his door to ask for comments on new developments—mainly I suppose because they're all such bad ones from his point of view.

I wonder what it will be like next month?

Because the Social Credit convention coming up next week promises to see a lot of Mr. Bennett's eggs cracking up under the strain of increasing rebelliousness within his own party.

Mika

Last year's convention was unusual with the number of implied criticisms in various resolutions and speeches, of Mr. Bennett's policies and methods of running the seriously disappointing election campaign.

This year could well see some open criticism as concerned delegates look at the isolated position they are in on the federal level with a premier who seems to be running around in increasingly frantic circles on the provincial level.

The word is beginning to seep out of the buildings that some really "socko" legislation is being prepared for the coming session and it may be more than coincidence that the rumors began flying just before Mr. Bennett's spectacular proposal that Ottawa slap compulsory wage and price controls onto British Columbians.

Ottawa has, as expected, rejected Mr. Bennett's proposal.

If he becomes desperate enough, it could be that Mr. Bennett will do it himself.

That would virtually kill the Socred party at the next election, of course.

But, while still rare, for the first time you can find Socreds who privately are beginning to think that Mr. Bennett could do just that. A sort of: "I made you and I'll break you" attitude.

What would he gain from that? Nothing, except proof positive in the history books that the years 1952-? (I think myself it'll be 1952-71) were dominated by Mr. Bennett alone and not by any party.

If it came to a choice between his party and all the programs he has stood for, it seems reasonable to me that Mr. Bennett would opt to protect the latter.

But what kind of extremity could drive him into such a position that he had to make the choice?

Does $250 million and your entire credit rating seem reason enough?

As finance minister, he's signed out $250 million of 5½ per cent parity bonds. That's getting to be a very low interest rate these days but there's no run on them—yet.

But as federal government bond yields continue to climb, how much longer can Mr. Bennett hold his investors?

If a run starts, he can stop it (as he did several years ago) by using up his budgetary reserve. But that's the foundation of his credit rating on Wall Street and if it is washed away, who will lend him the money he still needs?

And, no matter how he inveighs against the moral sins of Ottawa's deficit financing, Mr. Bennett has arranged his economic policies entirely on borrowing. Whether the borrowing is through government offices or Crown corporations hardly matters.

Even Mr. Bennett acknowledged this when—speaking through Education Minister Peterson—he recently informed school trustees that no longer would the Crown corporation set up to finance school debentures handle borrowings for "non-shareable" capital projects nor would the cabinet give school boards a government guarantee on their own borrowings.

So, wherever Mr. Bennett begins to turn, the fires of inflation, which he fanned so diligently a few short years ago, begin to sear him.

Opposition Leader Robert Strachan is the best barometer of Mr. Bennett's fortunes—and the NDP leader has been chuckling happily to himself for some time now.

Way back in May of 1965, he recalls, he urged the government to convene a government-business-labor conference to lay down guidelines for heading off inflation by putting priorities to the backlog of construction projects.

Mr. Bennett laughed that off as wild talk by Mr. Strachan and Labor Minister Peterson subsequently derided it as tantamount to a call—get this—for wage and price controls.

Say, would you say those funny noises coming from under Capt. Vancouver's dome are the cluckings of roosting chickens?

Quebec Could Stand Alone Gregoire Tells Paris Audience

PARIS (Reuters) — Canadian separatist MP Gilles Gregoire said Friday night he is confident an independent Quebec could stand on its feet and withstand outside economic pressure.

Gregoire, independent member of Parliament for Lapointe, arrived in Paris Tuesday to explain to Frenchmen "the meaning, the reasons and the goals of Quebec independence."

His statement Friday night was made to a group of Quebec university students at Canada House. He was faced with a barrage of questions from his audience.

Sympathetic but sceptical, several of his listeners expressed concern over Quebec's future and economic independence.

Questions included: "How can you reconcile Quebec economic independence while the whole nation's economy is largely in American hands" and "Could Quebec stand on its feet and withstand pressure from the United States and English-speaking Canada."

They also asked whether Quebec has the necessary experts in economic and social development and whether he thinks the government of an independent Quebec would have recourse to nationalization.

Gregoire admitted that if Quebec Premier Daniel Johnson were to hold a referendum or new elections now, "We are not ready."

But, he added, "In 1970 we would win."

About 25 to 30 per cent of Quebec's electorate favors independence, compared with only 10 per cent earlier this year, said a poll that Gregoire quoted.

He said negotiations are under way with dissident members of Parliament to merge all independence-seeking movements. They would meet Nov. 22 to prepare for a national convention in June.

He said Quebec independence movements need more financial support from outside.

"If there is any country which can help us achieve independence it is France," he said.

Gregoire said that in the last few days he had met French political leaders from all sides, Gaullists and opposition socialists included. After President de Gaulle's famous "Vivre le Quebec libre" declaration, the province "needed the support of all French parties, and not just one party, even if it be the ruling party," he said.

"We must try to 'depoliticize'" the Quebec problem in France and take it out of the hands of the Gaullists and see that it does not fall into opposition hands either," he said.

Several big French industrial concerns favor Quebec independence, Gregoire said. He said they saw better conditions for investments in an independent Quebec.

Woman Remanded

Martha Haynes, 3319 Painter, was remanded without plea to Nov. 3 when she appeared in central court Friday charged with selling an Irish sweepstake ticket at Colwood.

The charge was laid after a citizen complained about ticket sales in the area, police said.

Van Horne May Try to Void Defeat

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP)—J. C. Van Horne, New Brunswick Progressive Conservative leader who suffered personal defeat in the province's general election Monday, says he may seek to have the election in his home constituency of Restigouche declared "null and void."

The fiery PC leader who disappeared Monday night following his party's loss to Premier Louis J. Robichaud's Liberals, telephoned the Times-Globe and radio station CHSJ Friday and said he was undergoing a cancer checkup at the Lahey clinic in Boston.

He said that in one Restigouche county district—Balmoral — 170 ballots were cast although the number of eligible voters was only 134.

Asked whether he would be applying for a recount, Mr. Van Horne replied:

"It would not only be a recount, It's also a matter of declaring the election null and void in Restigouche."

J. Donald Whalen, the province's chief electoral officer, and Restigouche returning officer Francis Bernard later rejected the charge of irregularities.

"I don't know of any irregularities there," Mr. Whalen said.

Public Drinking Costs Three $50

Terrence Plunkett, Ross Partriquin and Alwyn Peterman, all of HMCS McKenzie, were each fined $50 Friday for consuming liquor in a public place.

They pleaded guilty to drinking rum and coke in a cafe.

Canada's Cattle Industry Studied On Sunday Program

The future of the beef industry and what it holds for the beef producer in the Canadian agricultural economy, is the subject of a special national edition of country calendar, Sunday at 4:30 on Channels 2 and 6.

Unlike some other areas of agriculture, where sweeping changes have been seen in production and breeding of livestock and grain, the beef cattle business appears to some cattlemen and research scientists to have been standing still.

However, changes are indicated that will have far-reaching consequences for feed-lot operators, packers and ultimately, the consumer.

Most important of these is the cross-breeding of different breeds of beef cattle, which in turn may be crossed with the traditional dairy breeds such as Holsteins and Jerseys.

All this, being tried now in a research project at Duchess, Alta., is probably the largest experiment of its kind in the world. The Canada department of agriculture is providing a scientific know-how for the project, and Bryce Stringam, a respected rancher, is overseeing the practical side of the undertaking.

The program also features the views of many well-known cattlemen and agricultural scientists on the potential of cross-breeding, as well as beef-grading and marketing.

The program also shows visible proof of the potential in cross-breeding during a visit to the ranch of Tom Lasater of Colorado.

Lasater's crossing of Hereford, Shorthorn and Brahman cattle has attracted interest from all over the world.

Camera Three

British film maker Peter Whitehead, whose work "The London Scene" recently was shown at the New York film festival, will discuss his art and career on Camera Three Sunday morning at 10 in color on Channel 7.

Included on the broadcast will be excerpts from part one of "The London Scene," titled "Tonite Let's All Make Love in London," a free-wheeling examination of the city as a new centre for European Bohemianism and of the young Londoners who are shaping its artistic mores.

Part two of the film, "Benefit of the Doubt," focuses on director Peter Brook and the Royal Shakespeare Company's Vietnam comment play "U.S."

A 29-year-old Cambridge graduate, Whitehead tried his hand at being a novelist, musician and scientist before turning his attention to film making. His first effort, "Wholly Communion," was shown at the New York film festival last year.

Wallace Appears

George C. Wallace, former governor of Alabama, whose wife now holds that post, will be the guest on "Face the Nation" Sunday morning at 10:30 on Channel 7.

Wallace will be appearing on Face the Nation midway in his swing through the western states to establish himself as a possible third-party presidential candidate in 1968, a move which would not bar him from entering the 1968 Democratic presidential primaries. He followed a similar course in 1964, when he won a substantial number of Democratic votes in Indiana, Maryland and Wisconsin.

CBS news correspondent John Hart will lead the questioning, joined by CBS news correspondent Bill Stout and Jack Nelson, Atlanta Bureau chief for the Los Angeles Times.

This Land of Ours

Tijs and Dietrich Bellaarspruyt, two Dutch immigrant brothers, have done what many people dream of, yet seldom do—give up a career in the city for the simple joy of being able to raise their own livestock, and walk on their own land.

CATTLE seen on ranch in Alberta are object of major research project by federal department of agriculture. Future of industry will be studied on CBC program Sunday at 4:30 on Channels 2 and 6.

On Saturday night at 6 CBC-TV's This Land of Ours series presents Everyman's Dream, the story of these two young men, both well educated and from a family with a distinguished record of service in the Netherlands diplomatic corps, who gave up the certainty of excellent careers for the peace, hard work and uncertainty of farming.

The Bellaarspruyts' buying of two rundown Quebec farms in the Gatineau Hills was a sudden decision—a complete break with their background and training.

Dietrich gave up medical studies to buy his farm. His wife Joan, an Ottawa girl, willingly accepted the prospect of a few lean years while her husband and his brother Tijs pulled the land into shape.

The Bellaarspruyts's 400 acres are no prize. There are hundreds of similar farms in Eastern Canada that have driven young men into the city. The soil runs from sandy loam to clay, some of it low and poorly drained, with fields steep and rocky. The buildings are old and weatherbeaten.

However, the Bellaarspruyts have no concern for discouraging facts. They have decided to become farmers — successful farmers—and they intend to enjoy themselves all the way.

With the Bellaarspruyt land and buildings came two old houses, both in bad shape. Helped by enthusiastic friends (as many as 15 on weekends) with hammers, nails, paint brushes, and free meals, they turned both buildings into comfortable homes.

Bonanza

Ben Cartwright (Lorne Greene) is accused of helping a horse thief when he allows ranchhand Mark Cole (guest star Robert Walker) to nurse a stolen horse on the Ponderosa, in "The Gentle Ones" on Bonanza, Sunday night at 9 on Channels 2, 5 and 6.

Major Dawson (Douglas Henderson), accompanied by his daughter, Dana (guest star Lana Wood), selects Ponderosa horses for the army. Mark's strong-willed brother, Frank (Pat Conway), fails to sell any of his. When Frank insists he will break in the stallion overnight, Mark strongly objects to his brother's harsh training methods and later steals the injured animal. There are no laws protecting animals from cruelty and Ben prepares to go to jail rather than see the horse mistreated.

TV TIDBITS

Deborah Walley, who portrays Eve Arden's daughter on NBC-TV's "The Mothers-in-Law," has a record collection ranging from classical to rock'n'roll. Quips Debbie, "I sort of go from Bach to rock and Bach again."

John McIntire and his wife, Jeanette Nolan, signed to do several guest-star appearances on NBC-TV's The Virginian, have been acting together since appearing on a radio show in 1937.

Newest appetite-teaser on the MGM commissary menu is "The Maya Sandwich," named in honor of the elephant who plays the title role in NBC-TV's "Maya" series. Asked why the Maya sandwich contains hams, cheese and chicken, the waitress responded: "Do you have any idea how hard it is to get elephants?"

Andy Griffith made his first appearance on television as a guest on the Ed Sullivan Show, presenting several monologues.

Just Matter Of Feeling, Says Actress

HOLLYWOOD — Kathleen Widdoes will rattle off a string of words in just about any language at the slightest provocation—Italian, German, French or Siamese

She claims to have a working knowledge of these. She improvises the others.

"Language," she said, "Is really more of a feeling than anything else."

"I speak excellent Italian," Kathleen said. "I picked it up in my neighborhood fish market in New York. I also speak a little Siamese which I learned while understudying for 'The World of Susie Wong.' I can carry on a conversation in German and I learned French so I could study in France, where I spent a year."

Kathleen has some imposing credits to her name. She performed in "Our Town" a few seasons ago. Her motion pictures include "The Group" and she recently completed the part of Wilma in "Petula."

In "A Bell for Adano," Kathleen plays the romantic lead opposite John Forsythe, who stars as a U.S. Army Major Joppolo.

Nothing, however, can compare romantically with her real-life romance, which, literally, was a case of Romeo and Juliet.

"I was doing the play in France," said Kathleen. "He (Joseph Papp) was my third Romeo—and he outlasted all the rest. How did he propose? In no special way. It was just the way he said Shakespear's lines."

They were married in France in 1962 under Napoleonic Law.

"That means the husband has all the rights," said Kathleen. Legally I have not rights at all."

They did "Romeo and Juliet" again recently.

"My husband directed the play this time," said Kathleen. "I didn't get the role automatically—I had to read for him three times before I got the part. I love working with him as a director."

Shakespeare didn't give Kathleen any trouble, but a TV soap opera did.

"I did 'Young Doctor Malone' for eight months," said Kathleen. "I was fired for giggling on the air. In fact, I giggled on three different occasions in a love scene. It's the only time I was ever fired."

When Kathleen isn't acting, she reads, sings, or looks after her pet avocado tree.

"I'm reading U.S. history," she said. "I also sing for my own enjoyment. I learned a lot of arias. I wish opera weren't such a big thing and could be done in tiny opera houses. It's really the only kind of grand theatre that's left. It would be exciting if actors with good voices did opera."

Tracking Giant Grizzly

Geographic Society Special Features Bid to Save Bears

Twin brothers Frank and John Craighead hunt rare game in America in "Grizzly," the season's premiere National Geographic Society special in color, Monday night at 8 on Channel 8.

The Craigheads track grizzlies in Yellowstone National Park, not to kill the big bears but to save them from extinction. The grizzly bear (Ursus horribilis) has roamed North America for countless eons, but in just a century and a half it has been nearly exterminated. Less than 1,000 grizzlies remain in the United States outside Alaska and Canada.

On the program, the Craigheads are shown in the early years of this first major scientific study of the grizzly, trapping and then drugging bears in order to examine them. Each bear gets a number and a brightly colored ear tag to make possible a census and to enable researchers to keep track of individual bears.

The Craigheads collect much valuable biological data. Milk samples supply clues to the grizzly's body chemistry and reveal relationships with other species. Samples of blood disclose that grizzlies, like humans, have high cholesterol and low thyroid levels. But grizzlies, unlike humans, apparently escape hardening of the arteries. Further research, hopefully, will tell why and lead to a better understanding of the disease in humans.

As the program progresses, the Craigheads are shown seeking further means to increase their observations of bear behavior. They demonstrate electronic devices to locate, follow and get close to this powerful animal that is most active at night and sleeps much of the day in dense, timbered retreats. Viewers will see the Craigheads attach tiny radios to collars around many grizzly necks and then track every move of the "bugged" Ursus horribilis.

The brothers are shown working in other wildlife experiments with predatory birds, Canadian geese and elk.

"Frank and John Craighead have spent their lives seeking to understand and preserve wild creatures," says writer-producer-director Irwin Rosten in his script of "Grizzly." "They believe all mankind would somehow be poorer if the grizzly or eagle or any other species vanished from earth. They see all beings as part of a wondrous scheme."

Fitness Program

"She's a 53-year-old grandmother with the body of a chorus girl."

That's how one man described Bonnie Prudden after seeing her television show on CBC-TV last season.

If that man is still around and appreciates good form, he'll be interested to know that Bonnie Prudden returns to CBC television Monday afternoon at 4 in color on Channels 2 and 6.

Although the daily program is designed mainly for the woman of the house, many of Bonnie Prudden's tips on how to keep fit and in a good frame of mind are directed at men, too.

The Bonnie Prudden show this year has gone international. The show's crew filmed Bonnie interviewing personalities in the Far East and in Australia.

There are interviews with Finnish beauty queen Satu Ostring, this year's Miss Scandinavia, an Indian TV personality, a Venezuelan business woman, a Czechoslovakian diplomat, an Israeli woman consular official, two Formosan beauties, a Roman Catholic priest, a Delaware Indian, and an Australian physical education director, and many more.

Kennedy Feature

Mrs. Joseph Kennedy reminisces about the early years of her son, President John F. Kennedy, and talks of Kennedy family life on "JFK—the Childhood Years: A Memoir for Television by His Mother."

The broadcast, originating at the home where President Kennedy was born, will be presented on "Who, What, When, Where, Why?" Tuesday night at 10 on Channel 7.

CBS news correspondent Harry Reasoner accompanies Rose Kennedy on a tour of the house at 83 Beals St., Brookline, Mass., where the Kennedys lived afrom 1914 to 1920.

Mrs. Kennedy will talk of John F. Kennedy as a child, of his relationships with other members of the family and his strong family loyalty, of growing up in a politically minded family in the public spotlight, of Kennedy family mores and traditions, and of the effects of the presidency on the family.

The house on Beals St., restored and historically authenticated by Mrs. Kennedy, has been presented to the U.S. people. It was established as a historical site by act of Congress and will be open to the public early in 1968.

Wayne, Shuster

Johnny Wayne and Frank Shuster set sail aboard HMS Bounty in their first show of the new season. Their wacky spoof of the classic sea story concerning the struggle between Captain Bligh and his first mate is the highlight of the Wayne and Shuster comedy special, to be seen in color on CBC-TV's hour-long show of the week, Monday night at 8 on Channels 2 and 6.

Frank is cast as the tyrannical Captain Bligh, who is quite capable of shooting a sailor who forgets to put lettuce in his cheese sandwich, and Johnny plays a foppish Mr. Christian who tries to bring his butler and maid aboard the Bounty.

"We think this is one of our best recent sketches," says Shuster. "It has lots of visual humor and we really enjoy the characters we're playing."

Also featured on the show is a new Julius Caesar sketch, with Frank as the Emperor and Johnny as a visitor from the 20th century. Sylvia ("I told him, Julie, don't go!") Lennick again appears in her famous role of the long-suffering Calpurnia.

World Premiere

World Premiere, the series of new color motion pictures produced by Universal City Studios to be first shown on the NBC television network, will begin its second season Tuesday night at 9 on Channel 5, with the premiere of "Stranger on the Run," starring Henry Fonda, Michael Parks, Anne Baxter, Dan Duryea and Sal Mineo.

The show was the highest rated movie package during the 1966-67 season, according to Nielsen audience estimates. A total of eight feature films was premiered, averaging a 39 share and over 13,000,000 homes per minute, according to Nielsen. (A share is the per cent of the U.S. TV households using television which are tuned to a program.)

In "Stranger on the Run," the setting is the bleak railroad town of Banner, New Mexico, in 1885, where cattlemen and railroad men are rivals.

CBC Festival

CBC-TV's Featival presents a two-part bill Wednesday night with Don Owen's award-winning Notes for a Film About Donna and Gail occupying the first hour (9:30-10:30), to be followed by a half-hour concert, Byron Janis Plays Prokofiev (10:30-11), the latter in color, on Channels 2 and 6.

Donna and Gail is a character study, on film, of two girls who come to the big city and team up to assuage their loneliness. In an article in the film magazine Take One, Owen describes it as "the only film I've made that I really like."

The NFB film-maker also sees it as the first part of a trilogy—the second is his color feature film, The Ernie Game, an NFB-CBC co-production, scheduled for initial showing on Festival Nov. 8.

GIANT grizzly bear with her cub survey open spaces where their ancestors have roamed for years. Rare animals and what is being done to protect them will be shown on special in color Monday night at 8 on Channel 8.

Jack Webb called for a long coffee break following the filming of a doughnut shop scene for an NBC8TV "Dragnet 1968" episode recently. Webb invited case and crew from several nearby stages to help eat 672 doughnuts.

Jerry Van Dyke, who stars as a comedian turned gentleman farmer in NBC-TV's "Accidental Family," says his favorite farm joke is about the farmer who has lived on his Vermont farm for 45 years when surveyors informed him that, due to an error in the original boundary lines, his property is really in New Hampshire. "Thank goodness," explained the farmer, "I don't think I could have lived through another of those Vermont winters."

Canada 'Land Bridge' in New Plan

By ALAN HARVEY
Times London Bureau

LONDON—An all-container transport network, linking Japan and Europe by a land bridge across Canada, is arousing interest among British shipping officials.

The Canadian proposal, advanced at the world's first container conference, envisages unit trains speeding across the continent from Halifax to Vancouver, enabling the rail-sea journey between Rotterdam and Tokyo to be made entirely by container transport.

Gabriel Alter, president of Steadman Industries Limited of Toronto, said the proposed land bridge would cut the time of Japan-Europe transportation from about 45 to perhaps 25 to 30 days. Mr. Alter visualized the movement of freight being handled faster and cheaper than by ship through the Panama Canal.

Unit trains are now carrying freight at ton-mile costs as low as container-ship ton-mile costs, Mr. Alter said in an interview before returning to Toronto on Friday after a London visit.

"A true container system should therefore link container ships with container unit trains for maximum economy.

"Canada, by utilizing its facilities from Vancouver to Halifax, taking advantages of our two trans-continental railroads and the experience already gained in road and rail movement of containers, can provide a land bridge that will attract the world's merchant marine to Canadian ports with a staggering potential for Canadian industry and world trade."

Mr. Alter stressed some of these points in a paper he delivered to the World Container Conference, held Oct. 19-21 in Genoa, Italy.

REVIEWING 100 years of Canadian history and politics Monday at a meeting of the University Extension Association will be Alfred E. Loft, assistant professor of history at the University of Victoria. The meeting is the second in a series examining aspects of the Canadian scene over the past century. It will be held in Room 168 of the Elliott Building on campus starting at 8:15 p.m. and is open to the public.

INDIA PLANS MORE CONTROL OF BANKS

JABALPUR, India (Reuters)—Prime Minister Indira Gandhi today accepted demands from her ruling Congress party for "social control" of banks and nationalization of general insurance.

The program included abolition of the privy purse—government incomes—of Indian princes.

A party spokesman said Friday "social control" of banks does not mean nationalization at present.

Social control would mean that funds are invested according to national priorities, a party spokesman said.

Playboy Removed

SASKATOON (CP)—Saskatoon police said Friday the distributor of Playboy magazine has removed the magazine from newsstands following a controversy over a series of black and white photographs.

British Nazi Leader Granted Divorce

COVENTRY, England (Reuters)—British Nazi leader Colin Jordan has been granted a divorce from his French-born wife Francoise, ending four stormy years of joint devotion to the Fascist cause.

A court Friday upheld his claim of adultery by Mrs. Jordan, 35, with her 20-year-old secretary, Terence Cooper, a fellow member of the National Socialist party. The case was not defended. Jordan, 43, is serving an 18-month sentence for inciting race hatred.

HUME CONTRADICTED

Statement Denied In Alberta Inquiry

EDMONTON (CP) — Edmonton alderman Ed Leger Friday contradicted testimony by a former reporter for the Edmonton Jounral given at a judical inquiry.

Leger denied that he had ever told Jim Hume, former political affairs reporter for the paper, that he had a cancelled $25,000 cheque made out to Welfare Minister A. J. Hooke. Hume testified Thursday that Leger had told him this shortly before Hume met with Hooke in a South Edmonton motel owned by Leger.

Leger made his statement at a judical inquiry into allegations by Garth Turcott, former New Democratic Party MLA, that Hooke and E. W. Hinman, former provincial treasurer, used or attempted to use their public office for personal gain.

Leger's statement was made under questioning by W. B. Gill, counsel for Turcott and NDP leader Neil Reimer.

Earlier, Leger said that "on no occasion, at no place and at no time did I make the statement that I had a $25,000 cheque issued in Mr. Hooke's favor."

But Leger said that, before the meeting between Hooke and Hume, he had told Edmonton businessman Tom O'Dwyer in Hume's presence that there was evidence to indicate that "a man had been paying bribes to the treasury branch in order to get loans."

Hume testified that he went to the meeting with the impression, gained from both O'Dwyer and Leger, that Hooke would "confess all" regarding the reasons for the dismissal of E. W. Hinman as provincial treasurer and other cabinet secrets.

Leger said Hume could not have gotten the impression from him, although he had observed that "some people get involved in wrongdoing and have a compulsion to confess."

Earlier, Leger said he had received a suggestion from Hooke that Hooke could provide "help politically" if Leger would support one of Hooke's business transactions.

He said the offer was made at a meeting in the summer of 1964 and about one week before the Hooke-Hume meeting.

Leger said Hooke told him of personal financial difficulties, and became extremely emotional and upset, finally breaking down and crying.

Leger said he thought Hooke was "a very sick man." But when Hooke stood up well under "severe interrogation" by Hume a week later, he began to think Hooke had been "play-acting ... in order to win my sympathy."

VICTORIA DAILY TIMES

Dinner on the Rocks in Lush Galapagos

By JOHN MANNING

Former Victoria Times reporter John Manning and his wife, Pat, are currently on a 12,000 - mile "Centennial Cruise" aboard their tiny sailing ship Powindah. The pair started in England and hope to end their cruise in the Inner Harbor. This is the 46th in a series on their adventures.

Marchena Island stands above the sea like an altar above a cathedral floor, untrammelled by humans, ministered to by a host of wildlife, ethereal, and seemingly lost from the face of the earth. It was Powindah's first anchorage in the Galapagos Islands.

We found shelter in a tiny unnamed cove on its northern side, in the lee of the southeast trades.

The local populace, a giant herd of sea lions, greeted our arrival with disgust and sent their leader out to inspect us.

This enormous, battle-scarred bull sniffed at the anchor chain, then swam around to the stern and butted the rudder, as though to ascertain whether the boat wished to do him battle. Satisfied with Powindah's response, the old man swam back to his harem, bellowing victoriously.

Spectacular Beauty

The cove was rimmed by lava rock giving it more the appearance of a cinder dump than an equatorial island.

In spite of this there was a spectacular beauty about the place that had us tumbling the dinghy into the water as soon as the sails were furled.

As we approached the beach, none of the sea lions, except the giant bull, took much notice and he only followed the dinghy at a discreet distance.

On landing, a marine iguana, looking like a miniature prehistoric monster, scrambled into view.

A brown hawk stood watching us, no more afraid of humans than the ship's parrot. Crabs dotted the black rocks like scattered rubies, for as the swells washed over them sunlight brought them glittering into view again.

It is no wonder that explorers, ships of war, pirates and whalers have been glad to make the Galapagos Islands, for they could revictual their vessels simply by going ashore with a gudgel. At one time they almost stripped the islands of their giant land tortoises—their meat being regarded as a great delicacy.

Slaughter Prohibited

Many of the whale boats even cooked the tortoise flesh as they would whale blubber, in order to render the oil out of the meat. This, they claimed, was most superior for lighting compass lamps.

Today the islands are strictly governed by the Ecuadorian Navy.

Laws have been passed prohibiting the slaughter of any wildlife indigenous to the islands and a society, under the name of the Charles Darwin Research Institute has been set up to aid scientists in their study of native wildlife. The Galapagos tortoise is now on the increase.

On San Cristobal Island is a naval garrison and a small port.

Here, all foreign ships, including yachts, must clear in before they can be allowed to visit any of the other islands.

Unfortunately Powindah had been set north of this port by at least five days sail and since it is dangerous to navigate amongst the islands by night we had no alternative but to island hop during daylight hours south to San Cristobal.

In doing so we visited many uninhabited coves and bays, most of them abounding in sea turtles and fish. We saw giant manta rays, hammerhead sharks, and countless grouper, a most excellent eating fish.

Shoot from Dinghy

When meal time approached I would simply row over to a likely looking patch of rock and, shooting from the dinghy, let fly at the nearest grouper or rock fish. In this way we could select the size and type of fish for the meal at hand.

In Caleta Buccaneer, the most beautiful of all the anchorages we stopped in, a pelican took to sitting on the prow of the dinghy as I skulked along looking for suitable dinner.

As soon as the fish came aboard the bird would flap its wings like a gourmet beckoning to a waiter and keep on doing so until I had fed him a portion of the catch.

Upon arrival in Wreck Bay, San Cristobal Island, we learned that the commandant of the naval garrison is changed every year.

Each new arrival makes his own set of rules governing inhabitants of Galapagos and the comings and goings of seagoing craft, including those owned by the Ecuadorian fishermen. It is in the power of the commandant to fine, throw in jail, or banish from the islands any one he pleases.

Overtime Bill

At Wreck Bay most commandants have a standard procedure for incoming yachts. They must anchor during office hours, or be charged overtime; they cannot clear on a weekend without being charged overtime; failure to fly an Ecuadorian courtesy flag results in a $15 fine. However, if one observes these preliminaries the officials will usually be more than cordial and perhaps may even sell you diesel fuel.

In Powindah's case we managed to drop anchor at 10:30 on a weekday morning, thus escaping the overtime; Pat had already sewn together a gold, blue and red Ecuadorian flag, so our coffers were $15 richer; and when the port captain came aboard she made him a cup of English tea which may have contributed to our being allowed 10 gallons of diesel.

In port was the American yacht Helly down from Panama. "How many days?" we called across.

"Thirteen," replied her skipper. "Had head winds most of the way, sort of delayed us."

"Oh."

"How about you?" asked the American.

"Well . . . we were a bit longer than that," I said.

"Tell him the truth," nudged the mate.

"Two and a half months."

"Good God!" exclaimed the American. "Did you go by way of Hawaii?"

I then explained that our Tahiti ketch goes to windward with about as much grace and velocity as a prairie haystack. Later, we learned that our sister ship Gitana out of Seattle and on her way around the world, took 35 days from Balboa non-stop. In any event, we all felt that the Galapagos were more than worth the effort in sailing to them.

Sea Lion greets Powindah travellers

Give Cans, Not Candies

Youngsters of Victoria Seventh-Day Adventist Church don't go for trick-or-treating at Halloween. Instead they go from door to door collecting canned soup, canned fruit and vegetables to give needy local families.

Last Halloween the boys and girls collected enough cans of food to distribute 100 hampers to Victoria's needy at Yuletide.

"We encourage our children to celebrate Halloween (All Hallows Eve) by giving help to those in need," says Mrs. J. M. LeMarquand of the Seventh-Day Adventist Community Welfare Centre, 1117 Blanshard Street.

Scenery, Climate S. Africa Assets

The Republic of South Africa, a country with two capitals, has been attracting increasing tourist attention from abroad in recent years. Compared with the previous decade, when visitors originating outside the African continent averaged 30,000 annually, the last five years have seen a rise of 10 per cent from 36,055 in 1962 to 75,618 in 1966.

Canadian tourist interest has more than kept pace with this overall increase. In 1962, a total of 658 Canadians visited South Africa. Last year, the number was 1,625, a rise of 147 per cent.

The expectations today are that this growth of tourism from abroad will accelerate rapidly, for South Africa, with its superb scenery and magnificent climate, is ideal tourist country.

Only a few years ago it was simply too far removed from the world's large centres of affluent populations to attract travellers in any number.

Now, with the jet airliner ending its relative isolation, you can be strolling along Johannesburg's Commissioner Street or Cape Town's Heerengracht the day after you leave Toronto, Montreal or Vancouver.

South Africa is not the small land it may appear to be from a casual glance at the map. Its more than 470,000 square miles make it larger that all of Ontario, and if you add South West Africa it covers an area greater than that of Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba combined. The straight line distance between Cape Town in the southwest and the northeastern corner of Transvaal province is roughly equal to that between Montreal and Winnipeg, and you would have to journey from Vancouver almost to the B.C.-Yukon border to cover South Africa at its widest part.

YEAR-ROUND SUNSHINE

The best time to visit this land of diverse peoples (the population of 18,300,000—almost equal to that of Canada—is made up roughly of 12½ million Bantu, 3½ million whites, nearly two million coloreds, and a half-million Asiatics) is not dictated by weather, for the climate is excellent the year-round, but by school holidays, when hotel and resort bookings are heavy, and by the open dates of the country's game reserves, particularly Kruger National Park.

School holiday dates vary slightly from year to year and from province to province and it is therefore wise to check with your travel agent before making final plans.

As a rough guide, however, the major school holidays are from early December through the middle of January, a period of about six weeks, followed by approximately 10 days at Easter, three weeks in late June and early July, and 10 days in late September and early October.

Kruger Park, three times the size of Banff National Park, should be a "must" on the itinerary of any first-time visitor to South Africa.

VIRGIN BUSH

It covers 7,340 square miles of virgin bushland in northeastern Transvaal on the border of Mozambique, and its 1,200 miles of roads, on which a speed limit of 25-mph is enforced, enable visitors to study and take pictures of the many fascinating animals from the safety of cars.

The entire park is open to visitors only through the so-called winter season (May 1 to Oct. 15) but this need not worry Canadians who, understandably, may prefer to visit South Africa when the snow is swirling at home.

At that time of year, only the northern third of the park is closed to tourists. (It should be noted that while Kruger is the most famous of the country's game parks, there are more than 90 others you can visit.

Ho, Ho, Santa Coming On a Lollipop Boat

In Southern California, where a white Christmas is as rare as a July freeze in Iowa, it's the custom to celebrate the Yule according to what each locality is most proud of.

Thus Hollywood gives Santa Claus a parade of scores of movie and television stars. There's carolling on a mountaintop at the Palm Springs Aerial Tramway. The desert, a terrain much like the land around Bethlehem, stages a Holy Land pageant.

And ocean-oriented Long Beach, where the giant liner Queen Mary is about to find her final floating place as a No. 1 travel attraction, has the Naples residential district built along a circular canal.

What can Santa do with a canal?

Right about now the Naples residents are busy preparing the answer. Their work will climax at 7:30 p.m. of Dec. 23 when a flotilla of light-decoated boats glides through the canals and out onto the water of Alamito's yachting bay.

They'll be fashioned into snowy cabins, North Poles, giant lollipop boats, anything that the residents of Naples can conjure up for the inevitable family pleasure boat that is tied up outside the front door.

Santa Claus will ride in overstuffed comfort on a big chair on a motor cruiser. Barges will bear costumed carollers. As a sort of watery shotgun guard, rubber-suited skin divers will swim along the flanks.

NEW YORK OFFERS DISCOUNTS

Travel Cheap for Young

Many airlines, hotels, restaurants and sightseeing attractions serving New York offer attractive discounts to youths and students visiting the city individually or in groups.

With the encouragement of the New York Convention and Visitors Bureau and Student Travel Magazine, a wide range of New York establishments have agreed to offer substantial savings on their services to young people with proof of age or a valid student identification.

Those co-operating in this special discount program have a simple motive.

They reason that these young visitors will be able to stretch their travel dollars during what may be their first visit to the world's most exciting city and—in so doing—will often return as adult tourists or adopted citizens of New York.

One of the most lucrative lures of a vacation in New York is the "standby" fare plan now in effect by most major airlines serving the city. The plan allows youths between the ages of 12 and 22 to fly at half of the established fare provided they are at the airport and ready to accept a cancelled seat on a scheduled flight.

Standby priority is awarded on a first-come, first-served basis by the carriers who have reported a decrease in "no show" passengers and an increase in flights filled to capacity since the program was first inaugurated in 1966.

Participating airlines in the half-fare plan serving New York airports include American, Braniff, Eastern, National, Northwest, TWA, United and Northeast.

They stipulate that Youth Fares are effective only on flights within the continental United States and that the fares do not apply during periods of three to five days before and after long holiday weekends.

Music School Takes an Annex

By BERYL PROUDMAN

When the current timetable revealed that 16 music teachers were scheduled to work simultaneously in 12 rooms, Robin Wood, director of the Victoria School of Music, and John Graeme, president of the board of directors, realized that they must expand from the original premises at 613 Pandora Avenue.

They took one floor of the large office building at 602 Broughton Street, soundproofed and furnished it, named it The Annex and allowed the overflow to spread into its spacious rooms.

* * *

When the School of Music was opened in 1964 with fewer than 100 students, it was hoped that interest would be great enough to justify the venture.

This year's enrolment of nearing 500 students has realized the most sanguine hopes of the founders.

The teaching faculty has grown in proportion, so that a small army of teachers, each a specialist in his own field, now works in association with the school.

Plans for affiliating the school—soon to be renamed the Victoria Conservatory of Music—with the University of Victoria, have added several more names to the roster of teaching specialists.

* * *

While lessons may be taken on almost any instrument, and vocal tuition has been added to the prospectus, certain facilities provided only by such a school, greatly enhance the value of individual lessons.

Of inestimable value to a large number of students are the theory courses organized by assistant director of the school, Rodney Webster.

These courses provide a broad understanding of music and add all the advantages of challenging competition and discussion which are part of group lessons.

The policy of the school is to offer as many courses as possible and to encourage students to take up more than one instrument.

* * *

A special comprehensive course available to the most talented students, combines instruction in at least two instruments with the theory course and an opportunity to participate in consort and ensemble work.

The popular rhythm classes conducted by Mrs. Ivy Screech introduce the very young musicians to basic concepts of rhythm, tune and mood in music.

Instruments used in these classes, implemented by a generous grant from the Women's Committee of the school, now comprise all the usual percussion instruments and a complete range of beautifully modulated glockenspiels.

* * *

Many scholarships are available to talented or hard-working students, and as the donor usually knows the recipient of his financial aid, great satisfaction can be had by generous citizens in watching over and taking an interest in their particular proteges.

A lively program of Saturday noontime recitals and evening concerts gives the young people many opportunities of hearing music well played.

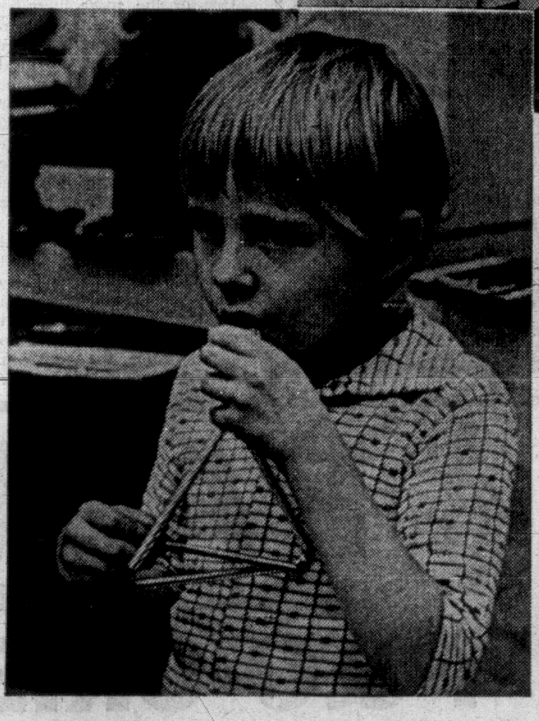
Advanced students also enjoy the added advantage of performing frequently in concert before an audience.

Thus it is that a school of music grows up and out and becomes a conservatory.

* * *

For the Victoria School of Music, however, the rate of development has been quite phenomenal, thanks in great measure to the splendid administration provided by head of the faculty, Mr. Wood, and assistant director Mr. Webster.

In the new annex recently opened by Victoria School of Music to take care of booming registration and numerous subjects, Mrs. Ivy Screech conducts rhythm classes for primary and pre-primary children. Several weekly sessions are held for children ranging from four to eight-year-olds in spacious surroundings at 602 Broughton Street, corner of Government.



Ting—Ting! It's easy to make the triangle sound but more difficult to make it sound on exactly the right beat. But by listening and watching alertly six-year-old Sandra Tregear knows she will get it right and so she does — 1—2—3—Ting!

One of the new aspects of the rapidly-expanding School of Music is the vocal department under Miss Catherine Wendol. Miss Wendol has come from Edmonton, where, as well as teaching privately, she gave vocal instruction in the Bachelor of Music course at the University of Alberta. Here she works at coaxing beautiful, free tone from student Carla Levinson.

Susan Philips looks on as string department head Jack Kessler discusses a point with violin faculty member, Julia R. Hunt. Mr. Kessler was formerly a member of the Hungarian String Quartet and the Philharmonia Orchestra of London and concert master of the Vancouver Symphony and CBC Chamber Orchestra. He is in charge of ensemble work. The string faculty also includes Elfreda Gleam and cellist Hans Siegrist.

Instruction in most brass instruments is available from top professional instrumentalists such as Dave Fisher (trumpet), Charles Moore (French horn) and Herbert Bootsman (tuba). Here James Underwood demonstrates a technical point on the trombone for student Kahlen Wood.

Happy piano beginners undergoing instruction from class method specialist Mrs. Betty Mack, find learning painless and a lot of fun in the communal atmosphere of the group, the most natural environment of learning for the young. Held in the annex, the piano classes mix together beginners of varying ages, from seven to 12, to their mutual benefit. Piano faculty, headed by Robin Wood, includes a number of outstanding teachers.

One of the most gifted musicians to have grown up and trained in Victoria, is oboist Ian Franklin. After playing through his secondary school years with the Greater Victoria Schools Symphony Orchestra, he has played for three seasons with the adult Victoria Symphony and last summer with the National Youth Orchestra. Winner of many bursaries and competitions, he is now on the faculty of the School of Music—he is seen here instructing Donald Drummond — and is also attending University of Victoria B.Mus. classes.

Port Alberni Merger Cause for Celebration

By DESMOND BILL
Times Staff Reporter

PORT ALBERNI — The most natural civic marriage in British Columbia will take place today but the Twin Cities Friday night enjoyed some premature fruit of the union.

And citizens of Alberni and Port Alberni turned out in hundreds to be in at the birth of Echo 67, the spectacular community centre and swimming pool that is a joint centennial project of both cities.

It was a great occasion for the Albernis and civic chests fairly swelled with pride. Civic tongues got loosened too, and as a result the speech-making was still going on at midnight, two hours after the crowd was supposed to have started dancing.

Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell was featured as the main speaker but by the time he got up at 11:50 the crowd had had enough and he knew it.

RAISED A CHEER

He raised a cheer when he suggested they would be better to get started dancing after what he described as "the longest mess dinner I have ever been at." It had started at 8 p.m.

But he did take time to add that the Twin Cities had set an example that could well be followed by some other municipalities in the province.

And he congratulated the cities on Echo 67, a truly outstanding community centre that is probably unrivalled anywhere in British Columbia.

Alberni and Port Alberni co-operated in building Echo 67 and it is regarded by many as an indication of what the merger of the two cities can do for this area.

But if their merger is natural, it took a long time in coming. Port Alberni was incorporated as a city in 1912; Alberni became a city a year later. The twin cities occupy the head of the Alberni Canal, 29 miles wes of Parksville.

DISJOINTED AREA

For years Port Alberni had the industry, the now huge McMillan-Bloedel pulp mill and wharves that provide 65 per cent of the city's taxes. Alberni had people, most of whom worked in Port Alberni, and a Gateway shopping and motel area.

There was strong rivalry between the people of both places. For years youngsters would rather throw stones at those from the other city than play with them. And this hostility and rivalry was carried into adult life, in a more sublimated way.

But in recent years changes have come about. Many newcomers to the area were unaffected by parochial feelings. The advantages became obvious of having a single government for the two cities which make a single geographic, economic and social area.

One other important factor in the merger was the personalities of Mayor Les Hammer of Port Alberni and Mayor Fred Bishop of Alberni.

Several speakers Friday night eulogized their role in bringing about the union. Municipal Affairs Minister Campbell said there are no better mayors anywhere in B.C.

NOT A TAKEOVER

The merger will take place tonight and it really will be a merger, not a takeover of one by the other, although the new city will be named Port Alberni. It will cover 4,560 acres and have a total population of 18,538 persons.

Echo 67—the name was suggested by 10-year-old Jane Hanson as a play on Expo 67—cost $640,000 of which $380,000 was spent for the Olympic-sized swimming pool, described by Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes as the best in Western Canada.

Bill Russell, chairman of the centennial committee, recalled the project was twice rejected by the voters and the delay in getting approval meant there was a great rush in drawing plans, calling tenders and in construction.

Some work remains to be done on the landscaping but the project was completed in time to be opened before the merger—one of the principle objectives.

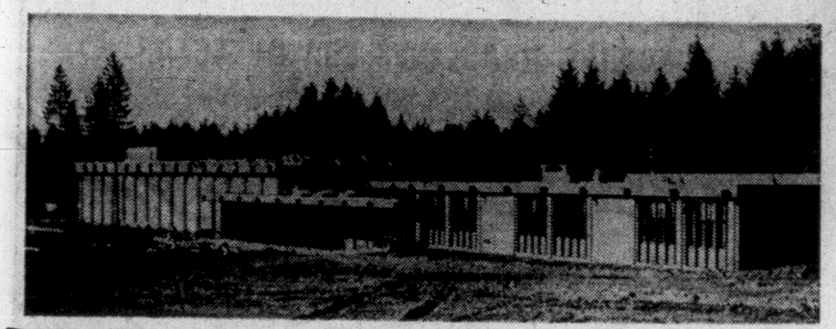
Friday night the accent was on the centennial theme but tonight it will be amalgamation that will be celebrated and Premier Bennett will be here for the festivities.

The favorite analogy here to describe the merger is that of a marriage, and there is little chance that anyone can miss the point of that analogy tonight.

The municipality of Burnaby has sent an eight-foot-high wedding cake!

ONE BIG CITY where there were two, is shown in this aerial photo. Port Alberni, the dense area to the right of the pulp mill, today is joined with Alberni, the residential area far left. The new merged city has a population of 18,538 persons spread over a combined area of 4,560 acres. Pulp mill and logging are mainstays of the local economy. — (Anton's Studios Photo)

SHIRT-SLEEVED Lieutenant-Governor G. R. Pearkes wields shovel in a workmanlike job of planting a blue spruce in front of Port Alberni City Hall as part of commemorative celebrations, above. At left, the new community activity centre, Echo 67 is shown. It was a $640,000 project and it features a $380,000 swimming pool. Mr. Pearkes called it "The best in Canada." (Anton Studios.)



Parksville Wife Gets One Year

NANAIMO—Mrs. Gladys Lillian Pitt, 41, who bludgeoned her husband with a hammer, was sentenced to a year in jail Friday night.

She had earlier been acquitted on a charge of attempting to murder her husband, Ted, 45, in their Parksville home last April but convicted on the lesser charge of assault causing bodily harm.

Mr. Pitt is in a Victoria hospital recovering from brain surgery.

"A serious crime must be marked as such, and will be treated as such, and not as a minor misdemeanor," said Mr. Justice J. S. Aikens in handing down sentence shortly after 6 p.m.

But in the light of the wounded man's character and history "a long-term sentence would not be of benefit to Mrs. Pitt or society," the judge added.

'GRIEVOUS' HARM

"It seems to me that the crime was not committed with a propensity toward crime but rather in the situation which arose."

However, he said, "the harm to Pitt was grievous."

Mrs. Pitt's trial made legal history Tuesday when she was hypnotized before the jury in the course of her defence testimony.

Mr. Justice Aikens permitted the precedent-setting move when a gap was revealed in her recollection of events the night her husband was struck.

No evidence was taken while she was under hypnosis but under post-hypnotic suggestion she was able to recall more detailed events leading to the beating.

The charge arose from an incident at the Pitts' home April 22 during a party involving the Pitts and Irving King of Port Alberni, a friend of the family.

'HAD TO STOP'

Mrs. Pitt told the court her husband had asked her to indulge in sexual activity with King. She had asked her husband to send Mr. King home "because this had to stop."

In testimony she said the next thing she remembered she had a hammer in her hand and Mr. King muttered an obscenity.

The jury of 10 men and two women deliberated for 4½ hours Thursday night and early Friday before finding the mother of two guilty on the lesser charge.

Regional Board Chairman Hits Incorporation

DUNCAN—John Bateson is not convinced the unorganized territory of South Cowichan is financially capable of sustaining a district municipality.

Mr. Bateson is interim chairman of the recently formed Cowichan Valley Regional Board.

But Friday he took issue as a private resident with the findings of a three-man investigation committee.

He said: "I'm not entirely in agreement with what North Cowichan Councillor George Whittaker has to say on this subject."

The commitee of Mr. Whittaker (a South Cowichan property-owner), Frank Martin and Peter McLennan reported the district could maintain a municipality "at the present level of services."

OPEN MIND

Mr. Bateson said: "I'm maintaining an open mind as to the formation of a South Cowichan municipality.

"However, I feel the population has insufficient information at present to come to any decision as to whether such an entity would be economically feasible."

He said the committee report deals almost entirely with running costs and does not allow for capital expenditures to the extent they are bound to be involved.

"No allowance appears to have been made for equipment to maintain secondary roads and other public work requirements. This would involve considerable cost.

HIGHER COSTS?

"The question of what roads would be the responsibility of the municipality would be a matter of negotiation with the provincial government after, and not before, the municipality had been formed."

Mr. Bateson said this could result in a roads budget far in excess of the $100,000 quoted by the committee.

He said: "The suggestions of Mr. Whittaker do not make allowance for the demands of progress or expansion.

"In other words they maintain the status quo and the farmers pay higher taxes to achieve it."

LACK OF WATER BLOCKS HOSPITAL

North Saanich Reeve J. B. Cumming said today the north end of the peninsula only has a "slim" chance of getting a new hospital.

He blamed the district's dependence on wells for its water supply.

The reeve is chairman of the liaison committee for the community hospital and health survey being conducted by Agnew Parkham Associates of Toronto.

The committee meets Dr. Harvey Agnew of Toronto on Monday to discuss the survey.

"If a 250-bed hospital is built on the peninsula, I venture to predict it will not be built at this end," he said. "With our balkanized water systems, we could not guarantee a water supply or sewage system for it."

The north end of the peninsula has three water boards—Sidney, Deep Cove, Brentwood and Central Saanich.

The reeve said there is no guarantee how long the wells will last.

QUALITY DROPS

"Moreover, as more septic tanks are installed, the quality of the water deteriorates."

The reeve said the Greater Victoria Water Board has a plan to install a 30-inch main to serve the peninsula and has agreed to acquire the land for a right-of-way.

"But plans have been shelved because there is no single body it can deal with," he said.

"No hospital, no water main—a dim future because we can't get together," he added.

The site for a new hospital is one of the problems besetting hospital officials. It is expected that the Agnew Parkham will make some suggestions.

In the past several suggestions have been made. One of the locations proposed was a site in Royal Oak.

Girl Missing Five Days Object of Police Search

Port Alberni and Saanich police today are still seeking information on the whereabouts of 17-year-old Linda Tutube, last seen on Monday.

The girl's parents live in Port Alberni but she was visiting an aunt in Saanich and disappeared after going out to a movie.

Linda is five-foot three inches tall, weighs 130 pounds, has black hair, dark brown eyes and a fair complexion. When last seen she was wearing an orange sweater with black stripes, a black nylon jacket and black boots.

Any information should be telephoned to Saanich police at 388-4321.

Peninsula Fair Opens at Sidney Next Saturday

Lieutenant - Governor George R. Pearkes will officially open the Peninsula Country Fair in Sanscha Hall at Sidney on Nov. 4, at 2 p.m.

The event will be patterned after an old-time fair, with costumes and decor after the style of the late Victorian era, and is sponsored by the combined parishes of St. Elizabeth's in Sidney and Our Lady of Assumption in Brentwood.

Star attraction of the day for many children will be Peter Rolston and his small friends who appear regularly on the daily morning television show "Pete's Place." Mr. Rolston, besides his well-known talent as a ventriloquist, is an accomplished magician.

Adding color and excitement, Chief Hummingbird and his Sun Dancers will perform such dances as the buffalo, cougar, chief's, and the difficult boys' hoop and girls' hoop numbers.

As well as stalls of home-baking, sewing, garden, penny social and attic treasures, there will be a delicatessen bar with ready-to-serve items, a table for children shoppers only with all items priced to fit their means.

—Dane Campbell Photo

MODELLING costumes they will wear to Peninsula County Fair at Sanscha Hall, Sidney, Nov. 4 are Mr. and Mrs. Dennis D. Shaw. Lieutenant-Governor George R. Pearkes will open the event at 2 p.m. Added attractions will be top television entertainer Peter Rolston of "Pete's Place", The Indian Sun Dancers, and the Kuper Island School Band.

Quinsam Fate Decided

CAMPBELL RIVER—Voting is under way today on whether the 700 residents in the unorganized suburb of Quinsam Heights will amalgamate with Campbell River.

Ratepayers in the four-square-mile area west of the community are getting their third and final chance to join Campbell River by vote alone.

Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell has set the year end as the deadline for Quinsam Heights joining the district without approval from Campbell River ratepayers.

Helicopter Pilot Condition Improves

The condition of Nanaimo helicopter pilot Ronald Jeffery, in hospital following an accident at Carmanah lighthouse Thursday, has improved slightly.

Royal Jubilee Hospital spokesmen list his condition as fairly good.

Two passengers in the helicopter, Norman McCurrie and Alex Jergeris of Vancouver, are both in good condition.

HISTORY OF BERRY PRODUCTION REVIEWED

Saanich Fruit Growers Mark 50th Anniversary

By HUMPHRY DAVY

Fruit growing on the Saanich Peninsula will thrive for years to come despite urban growth and rural land development.

This is the opinion of growers who will observe on Nov. 9 the 50th anniversary of the farmer's co-operative—the Saanich Fruit Growers' Association.

The event will be marked with a dinner to be held at the Keating Institute Hall, starting at 7 p.m.

While admitting that fruit growing on the peninsula is not as extensive as it was in the thirties and twenties, president Tom Michell said there was still a lot of land available for loganberries.

"Apple production is also making a come back," he added. Experiments being carried out at the Dominion Experimental farm also indicate that the prospects of growing grapes on a commercial scale is good.

He also pointed out that the Saanich Peninsula is the best growing area for logans in the province . . . a factor which ensures continual production.

The history of the co-operative is a story of ups and downs.

Mr. Michell, 65, who has been farming all his life on Island View Road, remembers much of its growing pains and its achievements.

Founded on Jan. 10, 1917 to protect growers from unfair competition and price squeezes, its first president was H. E. Tanner, a strawberry grower. The secretary-manager was J. H. Sutton.

None of the original members are living today.

The association's worst year was in 1939 when growers received 4½ cents for a pound of strawberries and four cents for loganberries.

Pickers were paid 1½ cents per pound for strawberries and 1¼ cents for logans. Now they receive between four and five cents.

A blow to the fruit industries was the closing down of all its canneries in the thirties. There are now none—all are operating on the lower mainland.

The association's records show that 1925 would have been an excellent year for fruit but for a caterpillar infestation.

It was so serious that the Royal Oak Women's Institute offered $5 to the child who killed the most caterpillars. With today's volatile insecticides there would be no such problem.

There was more land growing "logans" in 1929 than there is at present. The total acreage was 520 as compared with today's 300.

But Mr. Michell believes production of logans will increase in the next few years and may eventually equal the 1929 record.

Price of materials have also gone up by leaps and bounds, the records show.

In 1928 farmers paid 27 cents for an empty shipping crate. Today the price is 84 cents.

Straw sold for $12 a ton as compared with $32 today.

One of the great achievements of the association members was the founding in 1927 of Growers Wine Ltd. at Lakehill, now a major industry. The farmers behind the company were loganberry growers.

"This enterprise too also had its ups and downs," said Mr. Michell, "but it survived and sells its products all over Canada."

Mr. Michell recalled that in the thirties and twenties, blackberries and sour cherries were also big crops. The cherry orchards started to decline in numbers after the Second World War due mainly to urban development.

"There have been big changes alright," he said. "But the industry at present is going uphill and will be with us for many years to come yet.

At the Nov. 9 dinner, many of the sons and grandsons of Saanich pioneer growers will be present.

Guest speaker will be George McCarthy of Oldfield Road, whose father played a major role in the development of the Saanich fruit industry.

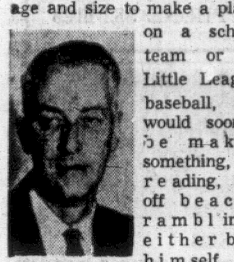
Arthur Mayse

There are in this town as in any other, parents who worry because one of their children is 'different.'

He is not retarded, as the reports he brings home from school testify, neither does he display any visible sign of emotional disturbance. He is normally affectionate, and gets on well enough with other children.

But from his earliest walking and talking years, he has shown a dismaying tendency to shun organized group activity whenever and wherever the choice was his to make.



Although he is now of an age and size to make a place on a school team or in Little League baseball, he would sooner be making something, or reading, or off beach-rambling, either by himself or perhaps with a friend of his own stamp.

Should the child be a girl, she's a 'poor mixer' or 'dreamy'.

This apparent determination to disprove the definition of man as a social animal can be distressing, especially since good parents want more for their children in popularity and acceptance than they themselves may have enjoyed when young.

Sometimes tangible reasons for this shunning of group activity may be found. A physical flaw, or what the boy or girl imagines to be one, can be terribly hard on young morale.

But if none such exist — and both subtlety and diplomacy may be required in the search — there's but one sensible conclusion.

Here, bestowed on a set of parents by the luck of the genetic draw, is a non-organization child.

I have happened across a few such young ones, and listened while more than one parent plagued by honest concern told about others.

'Andy would make a wonderful ball-player if he could just be persuaded to take his nose out of the books! . . . 'We wanted Bill to join the Boy Souts, but he'd sooner be off by his lone!' . . .'We hoped so much that Joanne (who is not especially shy, just quiet) would join the drama club. . . .'

But she doesn't and they don't and the fact is not necessarily a waste of opportunities and a dowright tragedy.

The tragedy comes when a boy or girl of this stamp is forced 'for his own good' and strongly against his grain, into being a joiner.

Let me make it plain here that I am not sneering at the joiners. Without them, and their ability to function as team members, much of the world's work would never get done.

But there is also a place for the unorganized and the unorganizable, and it becomes an increasingly important one.

★

Today in Canada as in the United States, I think we are in grave danger of being over-organized. We adopt the group opinion too easily, and for fear of offending against group belief — or prejudice — we grow increasingly reluctant to challenge and, when necessary, to defend.

I have been told gravely by a man who believed his own words that 'No man really has the right to be an individualist', and how many times have you heard an opinion that goes against majority view dismissed because 'That man's thinking is all wrong."

We need the team players, but we also need people whose makeup defies organization.

For this reason, I am all for letting the child of this mould go his way to the full extent that our close-knit society will permit.

It's possible that he will eventually find a place in a group of his own choosing when he moves up to university where the horizons are wider. But he may remain that rare and necessary ingredient to the human mix, an individualist who will forever remain outside the groups.

If you have one of these under your roof, give him all the chance you can to find himself on his own terms.

His thoughts may be longer, and their potential greater, than we can know.

School Vote On Dec. 9

Rural Saanich ratepayers will vote on a $550,000 supplementary school construction referendum Dec. 9.

School board chairman Nora Lindsay said Friday the money is needed to complete projects approved in a 1965 referendum. Soaring construction and land costs were blamed for making the first referendum for $1,855,000 fall short.

Sidney, Saanichton, Keating and Prospect Lake elementary schools are involved in the unfinished work.

A public meeting will be held Nov. 6 at Royal Oak elementary school to air the subject, said Mrs. Lindsay. The date for a second meeting in North Saanich has not been set.

HOW MANY decks did you say? A model of the passenger liner Queen Mary, in all its intricate detail, is spread out for inspection by the carver, Charles Clare, 539 Lampson Street, Esquimalt. Each deck was carved to show details of construction. Most of the work on the model was done at sea—Mr. Clare was a shipwright officer before his retirement. He has been making models "all his life" and has several in the maritime museum.

Ramblers Ready To Roam Abroad

First B.C., then Expo. Where next . . . Tokyo? Czechoslovakia?

It's quite possible that Victoria's Midnight Ramblers could go to these two faraway places, says Norm Winquist, the combo's leader on his return from Montreal this week.

The four men, Mr. Winquist, his brother Bob, Norm Watson and Stan Bell, have just spent 15 days at Expo and five at Winnipeg where they backed up western singer Wilf Carter in the Great Western Rodeo's stage show.

"We have provided backing for Mr. Carter in his B.C. tours," said Mr. Winquist, "and he particularly asked that we should be engaged for his Montreal shows at Expo and at Winnipeg."

Mr. Winquist said that Japanese representatives looking over Expo with their own Expo '70 in mind, talked of taking the whole rodeo, including the stage show and musicians for their world's fair three years from now.

Officials from Czechoslovakia also discussed the possibility of taking the whole show to that country for a tour.

"We just have to wait and see" said Mr. Winquist.

The Ramblers played 10 shows including some matinees at Expo after a few days of rehearsal. In the stadium crowds were as large as 23,000. Smallest crowd was 6,000.

Courts Busied In Marijuana Upsurge Here

Marijuana cases continue to appear before Victoria magistrate's court.

There have now been 17 marijuana cases before court this year. There have been nine convictions, two persons are on trial, five are waiting trial, and there has been one acquittal.

There was only one case in 1966.

In a trial which opened Friday, city police Det.-Constable Murray MacArthur told the court he observed Verne Green, 20, of 536 Johnson, and Alfons Hughes, 19, of Lake Cowichan, painting a house at 1519 Amelia St. They were arrested Oct. 11.

The detective said Green was observed to smoke a cigarette three times as he worked on the house.

BAGS FOUND

Det.-Constable MacArthur said he examined a shed at the rear of the house Oct. 10 and found two plastic bags containing marijuana.

Police removed the bags on the night of Oct. 10 and placed dye in them, returning them to the shed the following morning.

The detective told the court when Green was arrested he could see no dye on his hands.

RCMP Constable Gerald O'Neil said he never observed Green or Hughes handling the bags. Both accused denied knowledge of the existence of the bags.

The youths were remanded to Monday to set a date to continue the trial.

Two other men, arrested Thursday night, appeared in court Friday on marijuana charges.

Bail was set at $5,000 for Francis Neel, 746 Dupplin, charged with possession of marijuana for purposes of trafficking.

Bail was set at $1,500 for Edward Sukis, 809 Penwell, charged with the lesser offence of possession.

Death Is No Longer An End to Living?

By KATHRINE THOMAS

For $3,000 in cash or instalments, you can purchase a chance on a gamble called life extension.

"Cyrogenic storage" will put you on ice with a possibility of revival if and when science has caught up with the idea, says Desmond Clancy, a second year political science student at McGill University in Montreal. He was in Victoria as co-ordinator and publicist of the Canadian branch of the Life Extension Society of which his father is head.

The Life Extension Society which has its main branch in Washington, D.C., is a scientific non-profit organization dedicated to advancing the idea that death can be postponed.

Two dollars a year buys a membership and a newsletter.

Mr. Clancy envisions a future in which clinics and hospitals over the world will be prepared for cyrogenic storage.

Immediately after clinical death (heart stoppage) attempts would be made to revive the heart. If this proved impossible artificial respiration would be given, providing oxygen to the brain to prevent cellular deterioration.

Concurrently attendants would be placing dry ice around the corpse, lowering the body temperature. In the process, the blood would be removed and replaced with DMSO—a type of anti-freeze.

The body would then be placed in a cyrogenic capsule, immersed in a solution of liquid nitrogen and kept at a constant pressure and a temperature near minus 160 degrees centigrade. This would keep molecular activity at a minimum.

23 COUNTRIES

The Life Extension Society has branches in 23 countries. So far 50 people have signed up for cyrogenic storage.

At the moment facilities are available only in Washington and Los Angeles.

"There is no guarantee whatsoever. The Life Extension Society doesn't promise anything. In the grave you can rot in peace—with cyrogenic storage you at least have a chance that scientific advances will make revival and life extension possible."

What about the religious question that we should not tamper with life and death?

"We are living with concepts of the past. Death is not necessarily a way of life. What was natural 100 years ago is not natural today. We no longer believe in strict mores—today we are groping in our own minds for new answers.

"I feel already such institutions as marriage and religion are outmoded. This is an age of no gods—we no longer depend on abstract symbols—we have the independence to find out for ourselves."

CHIEF WON'T RESPECT BAN

Chief John Albany of the Songhees Reserve, said today the ban of fireworks in the whole of the capital region on Halloween, doesn't apply to the Craigflower and Esquimalt Reserve.

"There is nothing to stop our children from using firecrackers on the reserve," he said. "We are not an organized municipality and don't come under the jurisdiction of any of the local governments."

He said Indian children will not observe the ban.

"Naturally we will supervise the use of fireworks," he said, "for the protection of our children. But that is all."

INJURED DEER is pulled from a water hole 200 feet from the Pat Bay Highway near the Beaver Lake entrance by SPCA officials today. The 2-year-old buck had a broken leg and had to be destroyed. Officials believe it may have been struck by a car Friday night. Saanich police had a report of a deer being struck in the area. They searched the vicinity to no avail. A passing motorist spotted the deer this morning.

MEETING SUNDAY

Memorial Society Sees 'Threat to Existence'

The Memorial Society of British Columbia meets Sunday to discuss "a threat to our existence," a spokesman said Friday.

Mrs. Jean Mohart of Vancouver said the "threat" comes in the form of draft legislation by the funeral industry expected to come before the January session of the legislature.

But the president of the B.C. Funeral Service Association, Gar Jennings of Vancouver, said the bill is not a threat to the Memorial Society. It aimed to educate undertakers and assure the public of qualified funeral people.

The Memorial Society, with more than 15,000 members, aims for simple and dignified funerals with specific costs quoted for each service.

●

Mrs. Mohart said the draft legislation is "an indirect attempt to get us under control."

The draft suggests a regulatory board composed of the deputy health minister as chairman and five other persons, "of whom not less than three shall be licensed funeral directors or embalmers."

This board may grant or issue a certificate of qualification to a person who applies "and has had special training or experience as a funeral director or embalmer either in or outside B.C."

The board may, for cause, suspend the licence or permit of any person "for such period and upon such conditions as it deems proper."

It may also revoke the certificate of qualification and cancel the licence or permit of any person for prescribed causes.

●

"We are set up under the Societies Act," said Mrs. Mohart.

"This has hurt them. The undertaker has been a victim of his own free enterprise system. The people in our society want simplicity in funerals.

"Embalming is mentioned 21 times in the draft legislation. The public thinks it is compulsory but it is not."

She said the society, one of the largest in North America, has "overcome some pretty drastic hurdles they've thrown at us."

Until last year, she said, "no one would sell us a coffin." The society found a carpenter who did the work.

Mr. Jennings said the B.C. Funeral Service Association is trying to find out "the proper and correct way" of submitting the draft to the legislature and so far that has not been decided.

●

"It's an act that will allow us to educate our own people in this work to the point where any member of the public who goes to the funeral establishment (is assured) that the people there are completely qualified to do what they (the public) wish," he said.

"Anyone who takes exception to this legislation, I would suggest they might be worried about the strictness of it."

He pointed out that there is no law in B.C. that a person must call an undertaker at all.

"Anyone who is not prejudiced will find this (legislation) will only build up and protect the public. It is not a threat to the Memorial Society—they are free to operate, I personally invited them to become a member of our organization two years ago."

The beginnings of the draft bill go back as far as 1938, he said.

HOLD BODY FOR DOCTOR

People who die in private hospitals must be pronounced dead by a doctor, Coroner Edmond Jorre de St. Jorre said today.

He was commenting on a report that funeral establishments must not take dead bodies from private hospitals before a doctor certifies death.

Mr. St. Jorre said the attorney-general's department mentioned a year ago to a coroner's conference a regulation that "a private hospital should have a dead person pronounced dead by a doctor.

"From time to time I've mentioned that to private hospitals. I didn't make a ruling I simply mentioned it to some matrons."

He said there is no problem at the public hospitals because doctors or internes are available at all hours.

There was a case in Toronto, he said, where a person thought to be dead turned out to be alive when examined in the morgue.

Should Bible Be Censored For Realism?

If language of realism is too much for English students, maybe the Bible should be expurgated, too.

"The Bible contains some pretty realistic language . . ."

This is among comments Friday by Esquimalt high school teacher Justice Havelaar, chairman of a committee of educators concerned with a controversial short story for optional reading on the Grade 12 curriculum.

His statement on behalf of the committee's executive suggests Education Minister Leslie Peterson is in for a battle in his bid to have the book removed from the course.

VULGAR WORDS

At issue is the short story, Defender of the Faith, by American author Philip Roth, which includes several vulgar words including a four-letter one for sexual intercourse.

Trustee Ted Wood touched off the controversy when he publicly objected to the language. But the Greater Victoria School Board voted 7-2 in support of the curriculum and the ability of teachers to handle it.

Thursday, Education Minister Peterson ordered the committee responsible for selecting the anthology containing the short story to take another look at its recommendation.

MORE MEETINGS

That committee met Friday and apparently will meet again to consider the matter further.

But Mr. Havelaar, chairman of the Secondary Association of Teachers of English, made it clear where his executive stands.

"Literature as we see it," he said, "is an interpretation of reality.

"Anyone who is aware of life's realities is also aware of its rough sides and the dirt that is all around us. Whether that dirt affects us depends on our attitudes.

VIEWPOINTS

"Experiencing the reality of life does not mean that we approve of it, leave alone that we holding it up as something desirable."

Fear that dirty words might affect the minds of students is an admission society has failed to teach them proper values, he said.

Children are familiar with vulgar expressions "but that does not mean they are affected by them.

"There seems to be one sure way to make them look for vulgar words and that is to make a fuss about one example."

KINGS: 14, 10 . . .

He referred to the Bible's first Book of Kings, chapter 14, verse 10.

"The Bible contains some pretty realistic language and descriptions. Maybe it should be purified also."

Havelaar said the executive believes "giving in to this form of censorship would set a very dangerous trend and we will oppose it with all means at our disposal.

"Filth exists mostly in the mind of the reader.

"It is our task to make our students into intelligent readers and responsible people who will not be affected by filth when they meet it in others."

DRIVER INVITES TROUBLE

A man fined last Tuesday for driving while his licence was suspended was picked up by police later the same day driving once again.

And he was picked up for the same offence again Friday.

Robert Brown, 19, of 726 Goldstream, pleaded guilty to the two new counts in magistrate's court.

Court was told the accused has a lengthy record of driving offences.

Magistrate J. A. Byers remanded Brown to Tuesday to enable the court to obtain his driving record from the motor vehicle branch.

Champ Gardener To Be Honored All His Life

Victoria's champion "mum" grower has been made a life member of the Victoria and District Chrysanthemum Society.

The presentation, including a gift of a desk pen, suitably inscribed, was made to A. H. (Andy) Anderson at a recent society dinner.

Mr. Anderson has been exhibiting chrysanthemums over a period of 21 years.

In 1947 he won the aggregate trophy in the novice classes and since then for at least 16 years has won the over-all show aggregate as well as many other trophies.

He has also served on the society's executive for 10 years and has done much to improve the chrysanthemum show — one of the major gardening events of the year.

Doing The Town

with DOROTHY FRASER

Italian knits by Amalfi . . .

Any woman who loves beautiful clothes should make a point of dropping in to Wilson's frequently these next few weeks . . . because there's hardly a day goes by without exciting new things arriving and being put on display . . . A few days ago Wilson's received a shipment of terrifically smart . . . and very different . . . Italian knits by Amalfi . . . One which caught our eye is a full length coat and dress ensemble in a lovely shade of raspberry red . . . Plain shift dress with ¾ length sleeves . . . coat highlighted with collar, cuffs and front panel of royal blue diagonal stripes . . . a very striking costume and a real "find" for the woman who wears size 12 . . . Another ensemble . . . in royal blue . . . has ⅞ length coat in bulky knit with ribbed collar, cuffs and pockets . . . Matching dress is a lighter weight knit . . . size 8 . . . Another beauty is a black knit walking suit with square-necked shell striped in camel and white . . . camel trim on jacket and low belt . . . There's a 3-piece double-breasted suit in teal and pale blue . . . A shocking pink and a cornflower blue weskit suit with long-sleeved, turtle neck blouse . . . We like the imaginative combining of colors and weights in these Amalfi knits . . . and we assure you they're totally different from any other knits we've seen . . . W & J Wilson Limited, 1221 Government Street, 383-7177.

The important coat silhouette is still short, still slim in body and tight through the shoulders.

A great new line of street and party dresses . . .

We've been hearing glowing reports about the new line of Joseph Ribkoff dresses on order by the Madam and Eve Shop . . . Well, they came in last week . . . and after seeing them . . . we can only say that they more than live up to advance publicity! . . . In Step With Style

MEN'S STYLES ARE NEWS

CORONADO, Calif. — The Men's Apparel Guild in California, known by everyone in the trade by the initials MAGIC, chose the beautiful old Hotel Del Coronado as the setting for their fashion story. The pounding surf, the swell of the ocean and the delightful resort atmosphere of the hotel certainly inspired the right mood for a gay, well-presented story of men's sportswear for 1968.

Damaske

A commentator, who is well-versed in his field, means a fast, informative show, and that is what Jack Hyde, men's fashion editor of the Los Angeles Times, gave us.

People who come on strong with hard-nosed predictions often have to "stew in their own broth" but I have felt for some time that men's wear is to be our next big fashion story. The young, bless 'em, have had their time at the top. The changes in women's fashions are not revolutionary enough to start a whole new theme, so something has to give.

Men's toiletries have taken over great gobs of space on the cosmetic counters; little boutiques with ties, belts and shirts are springing up all over. There are many magazines on the stands that deal with men's fashions exclusively.

Jack Hyde says, "A style becomes a fashion when the eye becomes accustomed to it." Our eyes are becoming accustomed to brighter shades for men, to lightweight comfortable fabrics and change-of-season wardrobes.

There is now no real barrier in color between men's and women's fashions. The leading colors in MAGIC's presentation were melon, yellow and avocado green. The deep rich greens are masculine, and why not team deep green slacks with a soft yellow sports shirt?

Mr. Hyde feels that tattersal will be the most popular story, and it was shown in soft subtle tones, as well as sharp bright shades. The tattersal trouser, worn with a plain shirt, will be a swing from the more universal plain slack and tattersal shirt.

The return of white trousers for sportswear could catch on now that they are washable and perma-press.

The shirt jacket is a great piece of clothing . . . it stands alone . . . not to be worn with a sports coat.

Knits are a way of life for men's sportswear. The loose knit is big with the younger man. Swimwear and surfwear is great in the psychedelic prints.

The show's finale was a series of "Night Games" for lads and lassies . . . elongated pyjama tops in mad prints with side slashes designed by Crust of San Francisco.

DEAR ABBY . . .

This Friend Not Worth the Bother

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: A few years ago, a man who was employed in our retail business left us to open up his own shop in competition with us. No particular ill-will was involved here, but naturally we were not overjoyed, as we felt we had taught him the business. Our business continues to do well, and this man has done very well, also.

A friend of ours is constantly pointing out our competitor's ads in the newspapers, and he seems to delight in discussing how "well" this man is doing. We are bewildered and somewhat hurt. Are we too touchy? Or is such talk in poor taste?

We surely wouldn't run down a competitor, but we find it hard to applaud his success considering the background. How should this be handled?

BEWILDERED.

DEAR BEWILDERED: A real "friend" avoids subjects that could be irritating. To deliberately bring up a subject that stings is mischievous. The Chinese put it this way, "Never speak of a rope in the home of one whose relative has been hanged." If I were you, I'd demote that "friend" to a nodding acquaintance.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I recently were invited to a wedding. The invitation was called in by telephone. Would you call this a legitimate invitation? It seems to be a hurry-up sort of affair.

WONDERING.

DEAR WONDERING: In my book, ANY invitation that is sincere is legitimate. Maybe it is a "hurry-up" sort of wedding.

DEAR ABBY: I am 22, earn my own living, and live at home. I'm practically engaged to a very fine young man named Bruce. He is 26, has a steady job and he also lives at home, not far from me.

Abby, I don't know whether Bruce's mother is going through "the change" or what, but she is impossible. She will call up here at midnight and say, "SEND BRUCE HOME!" And bang goes the receiver.

Bruce is not a child, and he knows when to go home. There are other people in this house: my parents and younger brothers and sisters, and they don't appreciate being disturbed at that hour.

We took the telephone off the hook one night, and she got the busy signal so she WALKED OVER HERE and made Bruce take her home. How can this problem be solved?

BRUCE'S GIRL.

DEAR GIRL: Marry Bruce.

DEAR ABBY: Am I being silly and childish, or is my husband at fault?

There is this young woman in our crowd who is peppy and cute and is always playing up to the men. At a party, she's the first to say, "Let's sit by somebody else's husband." Or when we get into a car, she'll plunk herself down next to somebody else's husband, and his wife has to pair up with hers.

Now, Abby, I want to sit by my own husband, and I don't like all this switching around.

Once when my husband and I were dancing together, this woman danced by with her husband and tried to change partners. I said, "No, this is OUR song. We requested it." My husband got angry with me and said I was rude. We have three children and a good marriage, Abby, and I don't want to take any chances with it.

If I am wrong, please tell me. If I am right, I need some support.

LIKES MY OWN.

DEAR LIKES: The switcheroo game your cute and peppy friend is playing can lead to "splitsville." Hang on to your own husband. I'm with you all the way.

DEAR ABBY: A relative of mine invited me to a buffet-style supper for out-of-town company. While I was eating, without any warning whatsoever, the hostess stuck her fork into my macaroni salad. Abby, all I said was, "Please, if you want some, get some of your own."

She looked at me as though I was in the wrong and in a very snotty tone she said, "Well, pardon ME!" Then she turned her back on me.

Then I said to her, "Oh, that's all right, as long as you already started it, you may as well finish it because I'm not going to eat it now." She didn't say another word to me all evening. Naturally, this spoiled the whole party for me.

Abby, what I want to know is, was she out of order for eating from off my plate? Or was I wrong in telling her I didn't like it? You know germs are passed from one to another through the mouth and I try to be as careful as possible.

CAREFUL

DEAR CAREFUL: I don't know how old you two are, but you sound like a couple of kids. It is not the best manners to "taste" the food on another's plate, neither is it anything about which to become exercised. A closed mouth is a good precaution against "germs." And it also has other advantages.

Miss Hulda Pettersen (at left) is visiting Canada for the first time as part of a three-month holiday which will see her flying back to her home in Sala, Sweden, in late November. She's seen here with her cousin and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Erickson of Harrison Hot Springs. The trio was in Victoria to visit another cousin and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Erickson of Cloverdale Avenue. Prior to coming to Victoria Miss Pettersen visited relatives in Kimberley and another cousin, Mrs. Gordon Mackenzie of Nelson. The latter will join Miss Pettersen today when she heads for San Francisco to meet with other members of the family. Now retired, Miss Pettersen was matron of an old persons' home in Sweden.

AFTER WEDDING CEREMONY ON SERVICE BASE

Guard of Honor Greets Couple

A naval guard of honor greeted Sub-Lt. James Clarence Montgomery, RCN, and Mrs. Montgomery as they left the Church of St. Andrew, Canadian Forces Base, Esquimalt, following their wedding.

The bride, the former Patricia May Barker, wore a gown of white silk chiffon over satin trimmed with lace appliques at the neckline and waist. A coronet headpiece held her cathedral veil, which was trimmed with matching appliques. She carried a bouquet of white gladioli and coral carnations. As a "something old" talisman she wore a brooch of seed pearls and amethyst which belongs to her grandmother, Mrs. J. S. Barker.

Rev. A. G. Faraday heard vows uniting the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon A. Barker, 4336 Layritz Avenue, and the son of Lt.-Cmdr. and Mrs. C. W. Montgomery, 388 Vincent Avenue. Mr. Barker gave his daughter in marriage.

FALL FLOWERS

White and bronze chrysanthemums decorated the church for the service. Miss Frances Coalston was the organist, accompanying Mrs. F. Smith, who sang the "Wedding Prayer" during the signing of the register.

Mrs. Louis Pollard was matron of honor and bridesmaids were the Misses Marilyn Duncan, Gail Cockburn, Susan Godfrey and Judy Lunn. They wore matching A-line gowns of graduated shades of coral chiffon over taffeta and carried bouquets of white glamelias with ivy and white streamers.

Anne Montgomery, sister of the groom, and Laura Barker, the bride's sister, were the flower girls, wearing floor-length gowns of white peau d'elegance and carrying baskets of white gladioli, coral carnations and ivy.

Walter Price acted as best man and Paul Montgomery, the groom's brother, Frank Hird, Gary West and Larry Thomas ushered the guests.

At the reception following in Dunsmuir Castle, Canadian Service College, Royal Roads, a cake decorated in white and coral centred the head table. David J. Barker proposed the toast to his niece and acted as master of ceremonies.

For travelling on honeymoon to the mainland the new Mrs. Montgomery chose a beige wool dress and coat ensemble with tangerine and brown accessories. White roses en corsage completed her costume.

On their return the newlyweds will make their home at Suite 105, 467 Lampson Street.

A Dual Thermometer Keeps Weather Watch

By PENNY SAVER

My next-door neighbor is a "weather fiend." It's not likely that anyone but the Saver household knows what such a creature is, but the symptoms are easy to recognize. Anyone who has a compulsive desire to test the conditions of the outdoors atmosphere, the indoors temperature, the likelihood of rain and the presence of wind before even venturing out to the corner store fits the category. We've been teasing her about this for years but the other day the joke was on the Savers. We left for a drive up-Island early in the morning thinking it was going to be a warm, sunny day. It rained, the wind blew a gale, and with one coat among us we straggled home at the end of the day sniffling and sneezing.

When I mentioned this to our neighbor she didn't say "I told you so" (as I was sure she would) but suggested that we buy a gadget that she has in her kitchen. It's a thermometer that shows the temperatures both indoors and outdoors. The thermometer that gauges the outside temperature has a long metal cord and bulb attached. If placed on the windowsill, this cord can be strung outside. This winter you will be able to sit in the comfort of your home and watch the mercury skid down below freezing. Priced at $5.50, this handy device has turned the Savers into "weather fiends," too.

The Saver junior set always take lunches to school and lately I've been faced with some pretty sloppy messes when they bring home the remains. We have two leaky hot-drink bottles and one broken lid to contend with, so I thought I'd better correct the problem. Instead of having to buy whole new bottles I bought just new lids. These are leak-proof vacuum seal stoppers that will fit all wide-mouth bottles and they are priced at 59 cents each. For narrow bottles there are small triple-seal stoppers priced at 35 cents each.

Another household mess that I get tired of cleaning is the soap collection on the bathroom sink. I found a gadget in one store that has helped me keep things neat . . . a rubber grip soap holder that can be fastened onto any glazed surface. You can put this on the wall by dampening the suction cups on the back. Once attached, a damp cake of soap, no matter what the size, will stick to the tiny suction cups on the front. Great for kitchen, bath, shower or basin, it is priced at 59 cents.

If you'd like to know where I found these items, please give me a call at 382-3131.

Woman Colonel Taboos Fighting

WASHINGTON — Israel's top military woman, Col. Stella Levy, veteran of four wars, said here this week she does not believe that women should fight.

The trim, size-8 uniformed commanding officer of the women's army of Israel is here to promote the sale of Israel bonds and, incidentally, to re-create the image of the "sabra."

Although the women soldiers are popularly pictured as carrying light machine-guns or making parachute jumps, they do not serve as combatants, Col. Levy said at a National Press Club luncheon.

She described their work as "rear line" and concerned with supporting military services which are clerical, signal or hospital work. A major function, however, is entirely peaceful—the teaching of adult literacy in the Hebrew language to adults in the villages, she said.

No army, navy or air force women, all of whom are under her command, were casualties in the six-day war, she said in proof. Some were wounded at posts of duty where they manned communications or performed other non-combatant services.

"A few sneaked in to be there while the fight was on," she admitted, adding that one went to jail for deserting her post of rear-line duty.

Training in operating light weapons is part of all women conscripts' basic training, but this is for purposes of self-defence, Col. Levy said. Volunteers who will be packing parachutes sometimes make a jump for the experience of feeling what it is like, she said.

Small Victoria Group Pioneers To Help the Hearing Handicapped

By JOANNA DREWRY

The child with a hearing handicap has the same learning potential as any other child, provided he can receive specialized training.

It is in a child's first five years that his inability to hear will most impair his development. He cannot develop his speech, there is a slow increase in his vocabulary and his ability to communicate is limited to such an extent that his mental growth is crippled unless he receives speech training.

Three years ago the Vancouver Island Society for Hearing Handicapped Children formed to help dissolve the communication barriers for these children.

A. E. Nichol, president of the society, explains their need for training facilities: "If a child needed an artificial leg, you wouldn't withhold this from him until he was of school age and then say, 'You have to have a leg now because you're going to have to walk to school'."

"This is the problem faced by a child who cannot hear. If, at the age of two years, he can receive training by the use of a hearing aid and receive special pre-school instruction, his development will parallel that of a normal child. When he is of school age there will no longer be a learning barrier.

A child who does not receive this training develops handicaps beyond deafness. As Mr. Nichol states, "Any child who has been fed, clothed, had toys provided without having to learn to speak finds the process of learning a painful one if it is forced upon him at the age of six or later. He may never learn to speak because he can get along without it.

Mr. A. E. Nichol speaks out on the problems faced by deaf children. "I regard this work as pioneering. Canada is still a young country, and it is our job to work to provide facilities for the well-being of all Canadians — facilities that other countries have had for years."

"The aim of the society is to get federal or provincial departments of education to take the responsibility for these children from two years of age. At present we can only help parents to adjust to the problems involved in caring for such a child and give limited pre-school classes."

Although there are no federal or provincial facilities for these children on the Island, the society has done its best to provide training. Three years ago, through the combined efforts of the school board, the metropolitan board of health and Mrs. Rose Bannister, speech therapist, classes were started.

Last year a retired teacher, Mrs. A. B. Donald, took charge of a class on a salary of $200 every two months. The Victoria School of Music donated a classroom, and the Optimist Club provided transportation.

Mrs. Margaret Hallam has taken charge of Marigold School where she teaches nine deaf children, four of whom are pre-school age.

Through the use of speech therapy and electrical teaching aids Mrs. Hallam patiently works to bring these children into a hearing world. Mr. Nichol explains part of her teaching problems.

"A child must learn to develop concepts, rather than just memorize words. The difference in the development of a deaf child and one who can hear is illustrated by a student at Marigold who says "It's a yellow day" rather than "It's a sunny day" because this ability to form concepts has been hampered by an early lack in vocabulary learning."

Mr. Nichol started a similar society in Calgary seven years ago and today, operating on a budget of $10,000 a year, it has been able to provide all the necessary facilities for the development of these children.

"If there was an epidemic of deafness the problems faced by these children and their parents would quickly be recognized. As it is, these children come into the world quietly, one at a time, and nothing is done for them.

"Across Canada and the United States there has been a great movement recognizing the necessity of bringing sound to the deaf child at the earliest possible age. This is what can and must be done on Vancouver Island."

HUGE FLOWERS SET DECOR

Giant orange, red and gold crepe-paper flowers, set in bowls of moss, centred the tea tables at the K of P Hall when the Emerald Rebekah Lodge No. 17 held its bazaar and tea on Friday. Mrs. L. Allison was the convener for the affair, which was opened by Mrs. E. Burkholder.

Greeting the guests at the door were Mrs. E. McMath and Mrs. S. Graham.

A bowl of gold, white and purple chrysanthemums centred the tea table where Mrs. B. Daniels, Miss Betty Higgs, Mrs. V. Hayward and Mrs. E. Burkholder presided.

The members must have spent days preparing the hand-made items displayed at the various stalls. Hand-crocheted doilies, embroidered linens and knitwear, plus an array of home cooked breads and pastries attracted many customers.

Looking after the stalls were Mrs. T. Fortt, Mrs. L. Hookway, Mrs. R. Chambers, fancy work; Mrs. M. Hallett, Mrs. E. Hogg and Mrs. B. Shea, home cooking; Mrs. L. Wilson, Mrs. M. Sutherland, novelties; Mrs. P. W. Smoothy, Mrs. M. Guyatt, receipts; Mrs. K. Jones, touch-and-take stall.

Tea convener Miss Delcina Guelpa was assisted by Mrs. M. Scott, Mrs. E. Norcroft and Mrs. J. Gower.

A tombola of a hand-made basket, crocheted mat, glass serving dish and chocolate cake was handled by Mrs. A. Homuth and Mrs. L. Redware.

Proceeds of $175 were raised.

Appliques of Alencon Lace Enhance Bridal Gown of Delicate Norganza

PIKE-DOERSAM VOWS IN METROPOLITAN UNITED CHURCH

Following their wedding in Metropolitan United Church Mr. and Mrs. David Stephen Matheson Pike left on a honeymoon trip to Portland, Ore. On their return they will make their home in the Lady Simcoe Apartments.

The bride, the former Darleen Lynda Doersam, chose a gown of norganza encaged in nylon sheer and styled on A-lines with sleeves softly belled at the wrist and edged with appliques of Alencon lace. A tiny norganza bow headpiece held a cathedral train of silk illusion. She carried a bouquet of a calaya orchid, centred in stephanotis. For luck, she wore a sixpence in her shoe.

Rev. A. E. King officiated at the service uniting the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Willard N. Doersam, 3405 Diana Road, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Pike of Traytown, Nfld. Mr. Doersam gave his daughter in marriage.

Standards of fall-toned chrysanthemums were at the altar and rust chrysanthemums and ribbons marked the pews. Eric Boothroyd was organist, accompanying Miss Joan Oswald who sang "The Wedding Prayer".

Miss Maureen Doersam was maid of honor and Miss Laurel Doersam, junior bridesmaid, for their sister. The Misses Jean Morris and Jean Calderwood were also bridesmaids. They wore matching gowns of coral peau d'elegance, styled on empire lines, and carried bouquets of bronze, rust and gold chrysanthemums with sprays of wheat.

Little Laura Wilson was flower girl, wearing a gown to match the senior attendants' and carrying a basket of autumn flowers.

Gordon Graham was best man. Gerald and James Doersam, brothers of the bride, Sidney Jorna and Earl Dawson ushered the guests.

At the reception following in the Empress Hotel's Duke of Kent Room a tiered wedding cake, made by the bride's mother and topped with lily of the valley and bells, centred the head table. Arrangements of chrysanthemums and wheat continued the fall theme. W. D. Tindall proposed the toast to his niece.

For travelling, the bride chose a gold, orange and brown printed wool crepe dress which she topped with a gold coat. Dark brown accessories and a corsage of rust chrysanthemums completed her costume.

Realize Proceeds of $1,250 to Help Shriners' Hospitals for Crippled Children

LOCAL DAUGHTERS OF THE NILE HOLD SUCCESSFUL BAZAAR

One of the most successful bazaars of the season took place Thursday when members of Miriam Temple No. 2, Daughters of the Nile, raised $1,250 at their annual bazaar and tea, held in the K of P Hall.

The proceeds are earmarked for the group's support of crippled children's hospitals maintained by the Shriners.

As in many events this year, the theme was Canada's centennial, delightfully epitomized with a huge model of a three-tier birthday cake. The future was also included in the theme, being depicted by a gay arrangement of balloons, noisemakers and carnival hats to set the stage for Canada's next century. Adding to the color of the occasion, several of the helpers donned old-time costumes. Bright fall flowers and Halloween decorations added further zest.

After being introduced by general convener Mrs. T. Parker, the temple's queen, Mrs. J. K. Hilliard, opened the event and assisted with greeting guests.

In the tea room, guests gathered at tables that were effectively decorated with tiny glass bowls containing a glowing candle, with gilded maple leaves as the bowl's place mat. These decorations were the work of Mrs. R. H. Muirhead, Mrs. A. Edmonds and Mrs. B. Newstead.

One of the busiest stalls at the affair was heaped with delicious home-baked items that were quickly sold by Mrs. A. Curtis, assisted by Mrs. H. E. Savage, Mrs. H. Lillie and Mrs. A. A. Sabiston.

Other stall conveners were: Jewelry, Mrs. A. L. Hooper, Mrs. R. W. Campbell, Mrs. P. A. Gibbs, Mrs J A Carter and Mrs J. E. Harris; flowers and plants, Mrs. Mary Lyttleton, Mrs. S. T. Preston and Mrs. J. Hogan; sewing, Mrs. G. M. Irvine, Mrs. J. A Watson, Mrs. C. W. Hunt, Mrs. A. W. Wallis, Mrs. J. W Gillis and Mrs C. Joyce; novelties, Mrs. R Newstead, Mrs R. H. Muirhead, Mrs. J. Randall, Mrs. W. E. Tomlinson and Mrs. S. E. Sunderland; white elephants, Mrs. A. Bagattin, Mrs. W. A. Bayliss and Mrs. G. Ford; candy, Mrs. A. Cuthbert, Mrs. E. E. Farmer and Mrs. H. Mathews.

Some of the most savory dishes in town were on sale at the delicatessen table convened by Mrs. A. L. Horne, Mrs. A. G. MacBride and Mrs. O. O. Fife.

Mrs. L. M. Williams and Mrs. G. Thomson were in charge of a hooked rug raffle, a raffle for a grocery hamper was handled by Mrs. L. Wicks and Mrs. E. Moore. In charge of a Christmas cake raffle was Mrs. L. Williams.

Mrs. J. St. E. Meiss and Mrs. D. E. Fry were kept busy selling tea tickets and a veritable army of helpers kept tea arrangements running smoothly.

They were Mrs. Roy Comrie and Mrs. W. Jensen, assisted by Mrs. C. M. Jasper, Mrs. J. Rogers, Mrs. E. C. Webster, Mrs W. Sands, Mrs. W. Cloggie, Mrs. A. Wallis, Miss M. Kirby, Mrs. F. Trace, Mrs. J. A. Walloch, Mrs. I. Webber, Mrs. M. Camp, Mrs. J. Parker, Mrs. J. Greaves and Mrs. K. Smith.

Wears Heirloom Bracelet As 'Something Old' Token

An heirloom gold bracelet belonging to her grandmother was the "something old" talisman for Janet Mary Johns when she became the bride of Barrie Charles Penrice in St. Luke's Anglican Church. As jewelry accents she also wore a pearl necklace and earrings, gifts of the groom.

Her gown was fashioned of organza with Swiss embroidered lace trimming the sleeves which tipped the elbow. Matching lace appliques enhanced the bodice. Appliques edged the skirt which swept back en train, complementing her Chantilly lace bouffant veil which misted from a headpiece of satin roses. She carried a cascade bouquet of white rosebuds, carnations and stephanotis with ivy.

Archdeacon C. E. F. Wolff officiated when the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Johns, 4700 Cordova Bay Road, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Penrice of Vancouver exchanged rings and vows. Mr. Johns gave his daughter in marriage.

White chrysanthemums were at the altar and ribbons were on the pews. Mrs. K. M. King was the organist playing "Praise My Soul the King of Heaven" by Sir John Dawson, Schubert's "Ave Maria" and Bach's "Jesu Joy of Man's Desiring."

Miss Gail Roper was maid of honor and Darlene and Teresa Penrice, the groom's sisters, were bridesmaids. They wore matching gowns of blue sparkle crepe fashioned with blue velvet bodices with velvet bows at the back waistline. Fabric flower headpieces en tone held their illusion net veils. As jewelry they wore pearl earrings, gifts of the bride. They carried cascade bouquets of white carnations and fern.

Tom Burry, Vancouver, was best man and David Thornley and Josh Taguchi, Vancouver, ushered the guests.

At the reception following in the Olde England Inn a three-tier wedding cake centred the head table which was decorated with a hand-crocheted cloth. C. F. Beard proposed the toast to the bride.

As her costume for travelling on honeymoon to California the bride chose a turquoise dress and coat ensemble with black accessories. A corsage of red rosebuds completed her costume.

On their return the newlyweds will make their home in Vancouver.

Fundamentalists Split With United Church

By NORMAN CRIBBENS
Church Editor

The cleavage between the United Church of Canada and the Pentecostal churches is widening, says Canadian evangelist Don Cantelon, now conducting a crusade in Victoria.

"The New Curriculum of the United Church is a denial of our most sacred beliefs. It denounces Bible stories as myths and legends when we know these are the sacred words of God.

"Why is it so many people want to explain away the truth?"

Mr. Cantelon, a native of London, Ont., said there was a time when the Pentecostal Assemblies of Canada had much in common with the Anglican church.

"But now the Anglicans are drawing closer to the United Church of Canada we have little we can share with them. We stand solidly behind the Bible as the sacred word of God while they seem to be drawing away from it."

Mr. Cantelon, as national evangelist of the Pentecostal Assemblies of Canada, is conducting a Centennial project called the Canada for Christ Crusade.

He will address two public meetings in the McPherson Playhouse tonight and Sunday at 7:45 p.m.

Tonight he will answer Dr. Timothy Leary's much-quoted statement that the drug LSD is the equivalent of knowing Christ.

"I shall challenge Dr. Leary to show that religious experience can be equalled through LSD or any other drug," Mr. Cantelon said.

"The Pentecostal Church has never engaged in a national crusade before. But, in this centennial year, we felt we should witness to our faith in Jesus Christ in the form of a national crusade."

Mr. Cantelon said he had audiences of close to 1,000 at his tent crusades at Kingston and Oshawa, Ont.

"They were very responsive," he said, "but we have to face the fact this is a very materialistic age and the general trend is against the spiritual way of life.

"People haven't lost interest in religion—they never will. But there is no sign of any religious revival at present."

Mr. Cantelon believes there will be a revival of belief in Christianity, but it may be some years away.

"For the present, we are fighting through great clouds of doubt and disbelief—and these are caused by all the wickedness existing in the world today."

He Addeth No Sorrow

"The blessing of the Lord, it maketh rich, and he addeth no sorrow with it. This verse from Proverbs is the Golden Text of this week's Christian Science Lesson Sermon titled "Everlasting Punishment."

Christian Survival Debated

Has Christianity collapsed?

The question will be debated in Christ Church Memorial Hall Wednesday at 8 p.m. when a new course on the survival of Christendom will begin.

"This course will attempt to show that the renewal of the church is not on a denominational, but a universal plane," says Rev. Walter Donald of Christ Church Cathedral.

"The whole of the Christian church is being affected by renewal. Denominational splits are becoming less significant, while the gaps between liberal and conservative elements within the Christian movements are widening.

"The real challenge facing the church is how to relate the Christian message to an urban, technological society without alienating sincere Christians who cannot accept change."

NEWS OF CITY CHURCHES

'Trumpet Call To Revolution'

Many Protestant churches throughout the world are celebrating this Sunday as the nearest to the 450th anniversary of the Reformation. For it was on Oct. 31, 1517, that an obscure monk named Martin Luther nailed his 95 theses to the door of the castle church at Wittenberg, Germany.

"What he intended was a scholarly debate, but the action turned out to be a trumpet call to revolution and the inauguration of the mighty Protestant Reformation," writes Rev. Gilbert D. Smith, minister of Trinity Presbyterian Church.

"The movement, with its good news of God's forgiveness and mercy, made a mighty impact on both church and state. And the 20th century, so long concerned with incidentals and compromisings with a materialistic culture, needs the Reformation message loud and clear."

Mr. Smith will speak on Proclaiming the Reformation at the 11 a.m. service in his church.

The cover is a gift from the afternoon and evening branches of the Anglican Church Women.

Father of Navy Reserve To Receive Church Honor

The father of Canada's reserve navy will be honored in a special ceremony at St. Paul's Naval and Garrison Church, Esquimalt, Sunday at 9:30 a.m.

A plaque will be dedicated in honor of the late Rear-Admiral Walter Hose, who was Canada's first Chief of Naval Staff.

Similar ceremonies already have been held this month in Halifax, and in Windsor, Ont., where the late Admiral Hose lived for 15 years before his death in June, 1965.

Men and Wrens of Victoria's naval reserve division — HMCS Malahat — will play a leading role in the ceremony. They will lead a church parade along Esquimalt Road prior to the service and head a march-past following the dedication.

Also taking part will be cadets of the Canadian Officers' School Venture, and cadets of the University of Victoria's University Naval Training Division. An RCN band will accompany the marchers.

UNVEILS PLAQUE

Rear-Admiral J. A. Charles, Commander Maritime Forces Pacific, will take part in the dedication ceremony along with Cmdr. W. F. Walker, commanding officer of HMCS Malahat. Admiral Charles will unveil the plaque and will take the salute on the march-past.

The service will be conducted by Rev. J. A. Roberts, assisted by Chaplain A. G. Faraday, Protestant. Chaplain R. Pelletier, Roman Catholic, will also attend.

The late Admiral Hose, a former Royal Navy officer who helped organize Canada's naval force in 1911 had strong ties with the west coast reserve movement.

MAJOR WARSHIP

Admiral Hose, then a commander, was commanding officer of the cruiser HMCS Rainbow when it became the major warship in Esquimalt in 1912. He encouraged the formation of a group of volunteer yachtsmen and former RN sailors into a company which provided a ready supply of trained personnel when the First World War began in 1914.

After that war, Admiral Hose fought the effects of a drastically-reduced naval budget by forming naval reserve divisions in 16 cities across Canada. By spreading his limited funds across the country, he was able to have the framework of a much bigger organization ready for the eventuality of war.

His theory was proved sound when the Second World War began in 1939. Of the 87,000 peark enrolment in the navy during the war, 78,000 of the officers, men and Wrens were RCNVR personnel.

Admiral Hose retired from the service in 1934. However, his theory is perpetuated by the present reserve force that maintains divisions in 16 major Canadian cities.

Joins Committee

Donna Johnstone, 23-year-old graduate of the University of British Columbia, has joined the Victoria committee of Young Life of Canada. She will work with Jim Sclater, area director for the past four years, and Arnold Webb, chairman of the Victoria committee.

Mass to Honor Pioneers

By JIM HUME

Sunrise was at 6:47 on Oct. 30, 1892, with a gusty wind blowing from east.

A cloudy day with the temperature struggling to get over the 45-degreee mark and a threat of rain on the wind.

In a small church on View Street the gas lamps had brightened the gloomy morning since 5:30, a glowing beacon for the Roman Catholic worshippers on their way to 6 a.m. mass.

It was the first mass of a series of seven to be held every 30 minutes until 9 a.m. in the old and outgrown pro-St. Andrew's Cathedral.

WIND GUSTS

At nine, with the wind gusting up to 16 miles an hour and still from the east, the massive doors of the new St. Andrew's Cathedral, two years in the building, swung open.

Led by Rt. Rev. Bishop Lemmens and paced by the strident brass of the band from HMS Warspite, the first worshippers filed beneath the soaring Gothic arches to take their appointed seats for the 10 a.m. Pontifical High Mass.

And their seats — some 2,000 of them — were appointed on that blustery October morning.

HIGHEST BIDDER

A week prior to the dedication ceremonies, church officials had solved the problem of who should sit where by simply auctioning seats and pews to the highest bidder, the money raised going into church funds.

Unfortunately the records fail to show how the bidding went. But it must have been high for every seat was filled that morning 75 years ago.

It had not been an easy year in Victoria.

Throughout the summer the frightening disease smallpox, of unknown origin and with no known cure, had decimated the populace. So great was its spread, so mysterious its beginning, that a Royal Commission headed by Sir Matthew Begbie, was conducting learned inquiries to ascertain the best methods of combating the killer.

Cholera was rampant in the major cities of North America and the Apaches were on the warpath in New Mexico.

RISING CHANT

But these, and other problems, were far from the minds of the city's 2,000 Catholics jamming St. Andrew's that morning as they listened to the rising chant of the Litany of the Saints.

Rarely has Victoria seen such splendor.

Rarely will the city, even in the years that lie ahead, witness such a gathering of church dignitaries.

Bishop Lemmens led the procession and celebrated high mass. He was assisted that far-off morning by Archbishop Gross of Portland, Oregon; Very Rev. Father Gross, V.G., of North Carolina; Very Rev. Father Fayard of the Superior Oblate Fathers, Westminster; Rev. Father Demanez, Seattle, and Rev. Fathers Nicolaye and Laterme whose home communities are not listed.

Very Rev. Father Hylebos of Tacoma was there with Father Donckele, Rev. Father Althoff from Juneau; the Rev. Father Heynen, Calyoquot; Rev. Father Durand, Comox; Rev. Father Solry, Nanaimo and Rev. Fathers Van Goethen and Van Nevel of Victoria.

DEDICATION

The morning dedication ceremonies commenced 75 years ago with "Messe Solonelle in G" by Marza and ended with the 40-voice choir singing Handel's Hallelujah Chorus.

The evening service, with the cathedral again jammed, opened with the Gregorian Compline and ended with the Liudate Domine.

Of the evening service the local press commented with a degree of awe "the cathedral was aglow with all its lights, electric and gas."

The wind still blew from the east but was swinging north as the long day of worship closed. It was still cool and rainy.

But more than a day of worship had ended.

The Liudate Domine brought to reality the dream of Fathers Lootens and Deyaert who in the 1850s had gathered the first handful of Roman Catholic worshippers together in a small hut near the site of St. Joseph's Hospital for the first public R.C. service.

There were 22 present to celebrate mass that day. Eleven white men and 11 Indians the day.

record says, "gatheing in a small hut which also served as the residence of the priests."

On Sunday, Oct. 29, all masses celebrated in St. Andrews will, in effect, be in memory of those men.

On Momday, Oct. 30, exactly 75 years to the day from the dedication ceremonies, a special musical festival will be held to celebrate the historic event.

The program will include works for brass quartet, solo flute, choral and organ selections. The artists are local but tops in their respective fields.

"It will be," say Cathedral officials," a memorable evening of celebration."

But not as memorable, nor could it hope to be, as Oct. 30, 1892, when the sun rose at 6:47 a.m. and brought a blustery dawn to St. Andrew's dedication day.

HAVE YOU HEARD OF BAHA'U'LLAH?
A hundred years ago, a Prisoner in a Turkish fortress in the Holy Land announced a new Revelation of God. His name was Baha'u'llah. His "Letters to the Kings" are, without doubt, the most remarkable documents in religious history. Several million people have now responded to His call.
Local clergy of all faiths have just received an offer of Baha'u'llah's Messsage. We urge you to investigate it either through your clergyman, or by writing:

Bishops End Meeting With Peace Plea

VATICAN CITY (CP) — The Roman Catholic synod of bishops ended a month-long meeting today with an appeal to the world's major powers to "spread justice and love so that peace may flourish among men."

The appeal was an unmistakable plea to the world's two super powers—the United States and the Soviet Union.

The appeal was a dramatic closing note for the synod. It served to demonstrate that beyond its own problems world peace was the overriding concern for the 500,000,000-member church.

DRAFTED BY COMMISSION

A commission of synod bishops from Africa, Asia, America and Europe drafted the appeal.

The synod, first in church history, disappointed liberals who hoped to see it blossom into a body superior to the antiquated, conservative Roman Curia—central government of the Vatican.

It disillusioned others who thought it would produce solutions to big issues like birth control.

The synod discussed canon law, seminaries, doctrine, liturgical reforms and mixed marriages.

On doctrine, the bishops recommended a positive papal pronouncement to clear up confusion over what Roman Catholics should believe in the wave of new ideas sweeping the church.

The Pope was to consult the bishops again before making such a declaration which was expected to include moral guidelines on birth control.

BRIDGE LESSON

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Our old friend Charley Solomon of Philadelphia, president of the World Bridge Federation, has managed in his long career at the table to win just about every trophy there is. Charley is noted for his excellent bidding.

Opening lead—♥K

In a recent tournament, Charley was playing with a new partner when he picked up the South hand shown today. It would have puzzled him in any event, but he finally reached the spade slam by bidding in the box.

He opened with one spade only. They were playing weak two bids but that did not matter. An expert does not bother to open with a forcing hand when he knows that someone will surely be in the bidding with or against him.

Charley's three club rebid was a force. Like all modern experts, he plays that after a two-over-one response a new suit bid is a one round force.

His five spade bid that followed is the one we really like. He clearly said, "I am very interested in a slam and I don't care about what you have in the red suits. I can play five spades anyway. Can you go to six?

This put some pressure on North. He got the message that South did not care about the red suits, but how good were Charley's black suits? North finally decided that the combination of jack and one spade and jack of clubs plus the ace of hearts for a discard would be enough.

They just were. Charley discarded a club on the ace of hearts at trick one, led a club to his ace, ruffed a club with dummy's six of trumps, ruffed a heart, ruffed another club with dummy's jack of trumps, ruffed a diamond, played his ace of spades and claimed his slam.

Like most slams you see in print — you wonder why it wouldn't be a cinch to bid. It wasn't at the table, as may be judged from the fact that only three of 26 pairs did bid it. Some stopped at four or five, a couple got to seven, and one unfortunate pair worked its way to six no-trump.

FERNWOOD DUPLEX
$615 CASH MAY HANDLE

In discussing the exterior aspects of the premises it would perhaps have been desirable to use language a little more delicate and polished — yet the dictates of conscience demand that the visual impact be ADEQUATELY DESCRIBED. Since the English language does not appear to offer an alternative that will do the job in its entirety, we are driven, albeit with some hesitancy, to sacrifice considerations of finesse on the altar of truth by saying flatly that

IT LOOKS LIKE HELL

True, the owner has spent money on this property — but he has spent it where it doesn't show. It has been REWIRED WITH SEPARATE METERS. There is NEW COPPER PIPING. There is an OIL PACKAGE HEATING SYSTEM. The building is of sound construction and it has a lot that is a little bigger than average. But the EXTERIOR is rather badly in need of a major facelifting job. What the situation calls for is YOUR imagination, initiative and ambition and Government cash from the coffers of C.M. and H.C.

Please call DON BACON

All Tight-Lipped Over Suspension

Officials of Esquimalt police department are tight-lipped about the suspension of their union president pending a police commission board of inquiry Thursday.

Cpl. Frank Bell was suspended earlier this week. Contacted this morning he said he had been advised not to say anything about the suspension.

The step is believed to have come after a conversation between Cpl. Bell and Esquimalt councillor Roy Elphick.

Mr. Elphick was out of the city today. Friday he had no comment on the situation. Police commission chairman, Reeve Ray Bryant, said the suspension is an internal police matter and declined comment.

No comment has come from eigher the Esquimalt police union or the B.C. Federation of Peace Officers.

Police Cheif Earl Sarsiat was out of town for the weekend and not available for comment.

Alderman's Remarks 'Irresponsible'

The young editor of Peter's Magazine said today he has consulted a lawyer on the question of libel by a city alderman.

The matter is still under investigation, said Charles Barber.

He called Ald. Robert Baird "utterly irresponsible."

The alderman earlier had called Barber "sick" and termed the first issue of the magazine "soul-destroying."

Baird said he had been derided by the magazine althouth it "did not have the courage to use my name."

"He certainly has good reason to be upset because most of the charges are true," said Barber.

And the young editor wondered aloud what the alderman meant by "soul-destroying."

One of the magazine's stories says "We must build a world that is, in every sense, without murder."

An essay concludes "Yorkville (Toronto's hippie community) is a statement of our own corruption."

"Is this what he means by soul-destroying?" Barber asked.

Three Cs Dispute Aired in Commons

The year-old dispute between the Three Cs Association and the Victoria division of the Canadian Corps of Commissionaires was raised on the floor of the House of Commons in Ottawa this week.

R. A. Webb, Conservative MP for Hastings-Frontenac, Ont., referred to complaints concerning the administration of the corps in Victoria.

He asked the acting minister of veterans affairs what had happened to a query made by H. W. Herridge (NDP Kootenay West) in November, 1966, asking if any members had received complaints of "grave injustice" suffered by some members of the Three Cs Association.

SPECIAL PROBE

Mr. Webb then asked if the government had considered setting up a special committee to investigate the administration of the Corps of Commissionaires in Victoria.

Mr. Herridge suggested the minister of national defence should consider inviting representatives of the Three Cs Association to appear before the standing committee on veterans affairs in Ottawa.

In Victoria, Don Sykes, secretary of the Three Cs, said he had received a copy of Hansard for Oct. 24 from Mr. Webb in which both he and Mr. Herridge were quoted.

"I have also received replies from nine other federal and provincial legislators, most of them promising to investigate the charges of discrimination and maladministration made by the Three Cs in a brief to Parliament."

Mr. Sykes said the Three Cs sent letters to all members of the Ottawa Parliament on Oct. 21. Each letter contained a copy of the brief the association sent to Victoria lawyer E. E. Pearlman last summer when he undertoook a one-man investigation of the corps at the request of the board of governors.

The executive assistant to Agriculture Minister J. J. Greene replied saying the minister would look into the matter.

BRIEF SENT

Letters and copies of the brief were also sent to members of the B.C. Legislature.

Mr. Sykes said provincial Liberal leader Ray Perrault is making inquiries at the federal and provincial level, with particular reference to the firing of Victoria commissionaires who were also members of the Three Cs Association.

"I'm prepared to go to Ottawa any time and put our case before the standing committee on veterans affairs," Mr. Syke said.

"Whatever happens, we shall fight this battle against injustice to the bitter end."

Visitors Undress Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP) — This centennial summer the nation's capital was dressed up with some 12,000 decorative flags and during the hectic months of celebration souvenir hunters were almost successful in completely undressing her.

The federal works department, which says there are 290 flags along the route between Parliament Hill and Government House, has had to replace its entire stock more than once since May 1, at a cost of $3,000. Each flag is valued between $5 and $7.

Missing are 222 centennial flags, 211 Canadian flags, national flags of Ceylon, Britain, Iceland, Cuba, Switzerland, Venezuela, Morocco, Russia, Iran, the Ivory Coast, and Grenada, as well as 92 flag poles.

More than 150 flags put up by the national capital commission for the federal centennial commission have disappeared.

Ottawa police recovered 25 flags; had reports of 20 flag thefts and have laid five charges.

The main suspects are souvenir hunters, but it is also believed that some stolen flags are being offered for sale.

STAMP CORNER

By REG. NAIRNE

While the stamps of Cyprus are not collected with the same enthusiasm here as are the issues of B.N.A. and the B.W.I. they certainly have included an unusual number of winners from an investment standpoint.

For instance the first set of King Edward VII which had a face value of about $2.50 when issued in 1903 is now listed at over $200. The following year they were re-issued with a change of watermark, and these too didn't do so badly, for they are now quoted at $50.

●

The George V issues included some comparatively high values—10sh and £1 which, before the days of air-mail postage were thought by collectors to be somewhat superfluous, and many omitted to buy them.

Too bad, for today they are listed at $200 and $670 respectively.

But the Grand Prix goes to the £5 stamp of 1928. This value did indeed seem to be an imposition from a philatelist's point of view. However, the lucky few who bought one can congratulate themselves, for the latest catalogue lists it at $1.200!

●

Even a quite recent example which seems to be following the same pattern is the Queen Elizabeth set of 1955 overprinted in small letters (in both Greek and Turkish) "Cyprus Republic."

Collectors who already had the original set were not too ready to buy the same stamps over again just because they had a few additional characters added to the design. Yet the latest quotation runs to over $100.

On Nov. 8 Cyprus is issuing three Chistmas stamps. A 25 mils features the icon of St. Andrews; a 50m, the Crucifixion; and a 75 mils the three Magi. The latter stamp commemorates as well the 20th anniversary of UNESCO.

●

The demand for the Christmas issue of St. Lucia has been so great that all orders had to be cut by 50 per cent. Total number of sets was 159,000.

●

Dominica celebrates National Day on Nov. 2 with a set of four stamps—5, 10, 15 and 25c. Another issue—this one to honor the visit of Queen Elizabeth to the island of Malta, will be released on Nov. 13, and will consist of three very large sized stamps, designed by the Chev. E. V. Cremona.

Denominations will be 2d, 4d, and 3sh. The 4d will be a very handsome stamp showing a full-length portrait of Her Majesty in her royal regalia.

COMPANION PERPLEXITY AT HOME

"Just a week ago my wife called to say our cat had quadruplets. Today she phones to tell me the cat has triplets."

"You're out of your mind," said the mystified listener. "She can't have triplets a week after she's had quadruplets."

"But she has," insisted the first speaker.

Can you explain the mystery? There is a tricky explanation for it.

Answer: One of the quadruplets was given away.

Longliners Claim Damage By Trawlers

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — The proposed 12-mile fishing limit would give protection to Canadian fishermen against the growing pressure of foreign fishing fleets operating near Canada's coasts.

However, one group of Newfoundland fishermen is waiting to see whether the 12-mile ban on trawler operation applied also to Canadian vessels, which they claim are crippling a crucial segment of the fishing industry.

Longliner operators, near-water fishermen who work up to 20 miles offshore, cannot chase the fish stocks into the ocean as do the deepsea fishermen.

Conflicts between the longliner operators and the deepsea fishermen appear to be growing, amid increasing reports of Canadian draggers cruising close to land at night through gear set by longliners during the day.

GEAR DESTROYED

This gear, the longliner men contend, is torn up and destroyed as the big deepsea vessels scoop up fish.

The deepsea draggers have been prohibited from operating within three miles of the coast as protection for the "inshore" or dory fishermen. The longliner crews want this kind of outright ban on all dragger fishing extended to 12 miles.

Currently animosity between the longliner crews and the dragger fishermen has been compared to the cattlemen - sheepherder conflicts of the old American west, but no real violence has been reported.

The men of one longliner fleet apparently have banded together in an attempt to secure evidence of thousands of dollars damage they say is being done to their gear by the draggers.

Levy Norris, operator of the longliner Georgia Diane out of Bay de Verde, Nfld., says he and others in the 10-boat Bay de Verde fleet have lost some $15,000 in gear this season, most of it in the last month.

NET HAULED UP

Mr. Norris said in an interview he witnessed a trawler hauling up bits of gill net with her catch this summer and other longliner men photographed it.

The pictures and statements were given to federal fisheries officials and the fishing company involved indicated it would pay compensation, but none had been paid.

The longliners carry 60-120 gill nets, value $100 a net, which they set in 90-130 fathoms of water and mark, according to the law, with 60-inch plastic buoys and radar reflectors.

Their annual catch of 6,000,000-8,000,000 pounds is processed in a fish plant at Bay de Verde and the three or four men on each longliner can clear $3,000-$7,000 in a seven-month season, he said.

Bay de Verde is stuck out on the tip of a finger of land that separates Trinity and Conception bays, the biggest indentations on the east side of Newfoundland's Avalon Peninsula.

'Put Victim Aid Before Legal Aid'

VANCOUVER (CP)—A Vancouver magistrate Friday said he would rather see public funds spent on aiding victims of crime than on increased legal aid.

Magistrate Les Bewley, speaking at a convention of Certified General Accountants of B.C., questioned the "alleged necessity of greatly expanded legal aid, paid for by the taxpayer, for every person charged with a criminal offence."

He claimed accused persons get fair trials without being represented by lawyers. Prosecutors, said Magistrate Bewley, are supposed to present only the facts and not seek a conviction—the courts seek justice.

He said those who advocate universal legal aid do so on the mistaken assumption that the criminal courts operate on an adversary system, which would mean that no man could get a fair trial.

"If it is a question of priorities and, if public funds are available, I would rather see a system of payment or indemnity for the victims of crime," he said.

Pair Released On $500 Bond

Two men who pleaded guilty to four counts of theft under $50 were each released on a $500 bond pending their appearance for sentence November 7.

James Gruber and James Bourne, both of 1029 Tolmie, admitted stealing a battery from a new car on the National Motors lot on Yates Street, two sets of hand tools and a power drill from Smith Cedar Products plant.

Police said the two walked into the groover shed through an unlocked door and pried open a locker to get at the tools.

They were ordered to make restitution of the property.

Canada's Really Big Show Ending

MONTREAL (CP) — Fireworks, gunfire, flags and Very Important People will abound Sunday as Canada's 185-day Expo 67 ends.

It will wind up as it began, in pomp and circumstance, with Governor-General Michener, Prime Minister Pearson, Quebec Premier Daniel Johnson and Mayor Jean Drapeau of Montreal presiding.

There is no doubt that the magic 50,000,000 attendance figure for the six-month run will be reached, if not tonight then certainly by the time the turnstiles click for the last time at 2 p.m. Sunday.

On Friday, Expo was jammed with 428,978 visitors to bring attendance total to 49,652,397 when the fair opened this morning.

By noon today attendance was at 49,852,713.

The switch from daylight saving on Sunday will give the fair an extra hour to increase its attendance total.

At 3:30 p.m. Sunday all pavilions will begin to close as a 67-gun salute is fired by artillerymen stationed on the eastern tip of Cite du Havre.

Visitors leaving pavilions will be handed Expo flags, streamers, toy flutes and flower garlands.

Restaurants, bars, boutiques, hot-dog stands, the Minirail, the trackless trailer-train known as la Balade and boat tours through the canals and lagoons will end and La Ronde, the amusement area, will close.

At 3:50 p.m., a 35-minute fireworks display will fill the sky with noise and smoke, set off from points near Habitat 67 on Cite du Havre and the Canadian pavilion on Notre Dame Island.

Five minutes later, at 4:30 p.m., everyone will be asked to leave the site and Canada's six-month blast will be over.

EXPO SYMBOL frames Montreal's Mayor Drapeau as he discusses future of world's fair which closes Sunday.

Easing Suffering, Cost Arthritis Clinic Service

The man was dressed in every other respect impeccably.

But his shoe laces were undone.

They clicked against the floor tile as he moved across the room.

But nobody at the Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society office at 63 Gorge appeared to notice. They knew this was another arthritis sufferer coming for help.

He explained that even on his good days it might take him half an hour to get those darned laces tied.

Sometimes he can't bend over far enough. Sometimes he gets bent over and he can't get up again, so once in a while he says to heck with it—and lets them be. He rarely moves fast enough to shuffle out of his shoes anyway.

And what do shoe laces matter when your joints are swollen and stiff and the nagging pain is back?

The arthritis clinic can't take away his ailment, but it can help him live with it. For a start there's a shoe horn with a long handle and elastic shoelaces for sale at below cost.

There are drugs and household help and specially designed furniture and treatments to ease the pain.

C.A.R.S., a Community Chest agency, founded in 1947 with one physiotherapist, now has 50 branches across the province.

●

Last year the Victoria Branch diagnosed 140 new cases and gave 150 out-patients 3,243 treatmens, 2,735 were at the clinic and 508 in patient's homes.

The cost to an arthritis sufferer could be enormous if it weren't for the clinic.

But public contribution to the United Appeal can help to ease the pressure and in many cases pay for treatments and aids otherwise impossible to obtain.

The estimated 1967 budget for C.A.R.S. is $41,175. The United Appeal has allotted 4.3 per cent or $17,875 to help meet this figure.

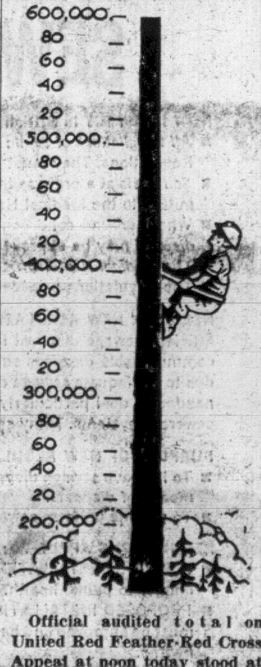
This contribution enables C.A.R.S. to have a sliding pay scale for treatments.

"If a patient can pay the standard $5 per treatment, fine, but if he can't, we'll still see he gets full benefits," says Wendy Smylitopoulis, a physiotherapist and occupational therapist who is head of the Victoria branch clinic.

Togther with another physiotherapist, she may see up to 20 patients a day. She applies hot and cold treatments to ease the pain, takes them through exercises to reduce stiffness in the joints and teaches them the many tricks that can be used to make the small activities of daily life more bearable.

United Appeal

Put Him Up On Top



Official audited total on United Red Feather-Red Cross Appeal at noon today stood at $342,407, 57.1 per cent of the $600,000 objective.

Killers Hunted

NORTHLAKE, Ill. (AP) — A nationwide manhunt was under way today for three members of a holdup team who killed two Northlake policemen in a gun duel following a robbery at Northlake Bank Friday.

Hopes Sag For UN Formula

UNITED NATIONS (CP) Hopes for an early agreement on a Middle East peace formula grew fainter today as the 10-member United Nations Security Council remained deadlocked over the question of new Israeli frontiers.

Members agreed after private talks Friday night to meet again Monday in hopes of working out a compromise between two proposals, one by Canada and Denmark and the other by India.

The Canadian-Danish proposal would have the council call for the withdrawal of Arab and Israeli troops to "secure frontiers."

Israel was understood to prefer the phrase "secure and agreed frontiers," which it felt would imply holding negotiations before making any withdrawals from the Arab territory it conquered in the June war.

The Indian proposal called for a pull-back to positions held immediately prior to the outbreak of fighting. But the Latin American council members, Argentina and Brazil, found this unacceptable, said diplomatic sources.

Both proposals were understood to include giving UN Secretary General U Thant authority to send a special representative to the Middle East.

Danish Foreign Minister Hans Tabor who presented the Canadian-Danish proposal, told reporters both formulas were "balanced."

But he said he could not see sufficient agreement on the issue for at least a week or 10 days to allow the council to hold a public session.

Both the Israelis and Arabs wanted to amend the Canadian-Danish proposal, he said.

The council adopted Wednesday a stop-gap resolution condemning all violations of the ceasefire without fixing the blame for either the sinking of the destroyer or the shelling of Port Suez.

Turn Those Clocks Back

Don't forget to turn your clock back tonight.

Daylight Saving Time ends officially at 2 a.m. Sunday when all clocks will go back one hour.

This means an extra hour of sleep Sunday and the privilege of going to church one hour "late." But for the poor night worker it will mean an extra hour on duty.

Cheaper By The Thousands?

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia undertakers have presented a master plan to civil defence planners detailing how they can help if a major disaster strikes Vancouver.

The plan advanced by the B.C. Funeral Service Association, which represents 85 per cent of undertakers and embalmers in the province, is aimed at providing services for air or shipping disaster victims.

★ ★ ★

The plan also includes a schedule of fees—$50 for embalming if authorized by a coroner, $16 for a hearse call and $150 plus mileage for shipping bodies.

"I suppose there are some people who will think we are just trying to get our hands on some business, but we drew up this master plan in the sincere hope that it will never have to be used," association president Gar Jennings said Friday.

Closing Stirs 'Combine' Cry

By ROGER STONEBANKS

The federal monopolies commission should "definitely" inquire into the selling of Victoria Machinery Depot's shipyard operations to Burrard Dry Dock, the president of the Victoria Labour Council said today.

Jack Groves was commenting on Friday's closure announcement which leaves only one major shipbuilding company on the West Coast. Burrard in Vancouver and Yarrows in Esquimalt are associated companies.

He also said "every possible avenue has got to be looked into to keep shipbuilding out of one family's hands.

"The shipyards should be brought up to date in techniques and not get behind.

"They've let their techniques fall behind but they are blaming labor costs. Everyone has got to get together to impress on the government this industry has got to be kept."

At the same time, the B.C. Federation of Labour will urge the federal government to nationalize VMD's shipyard and run it as a Crown corporation.

President E. T. Staley also said the resolution calls on the government to establish a merchant marine for the country.

Comparison With Dosco Closing

He said the single ownership means a monopolizing of the shipbuilding and repair industry and "there should be some alternative form of bidding.

"This is a grave situation which we compare to the Dosco situation on the East Coast.

"As an executive, we are disturbed by the monopolistic control of West Coast shipyards, the extremely bad effect on the Victoria economy and the personal hardship likely to be suffered by many workers and their families."

The VMD yard will close Jan. 1 but the Bay Street engineering factory will continue. Shipyard equipment and stocks have been sold to Burrard and VMD president Harold Husband has become a director of that company.

Ownership of the 20-acre shipyard property, however, remains with Mr. Husband. He said today there are no definite plans for its use.

The VMD president, in his statement Friday, said closure was forced because of "learning from reliable sources in Ottawa that the federal government is planning to cancel its promised vessel construction program for the Coast Guard."

Today, Victoria MP David Groos said he knows of no such cancellation.

'We Build Better Ships'

Mr. Husband said "there is absolutely nothing, it is absolutely flat" on the work books beyond the end of this year.

Mr. Groos said the amalgamation will make operations more efficient "and give us the opportunity to bid more successfully for nation-wide contracts. This is where the secret of our success lies."

There was "no question" that the West Coast builds better and more efficient ships than anywhere else in Canada.

"This (VMD shipyard closure) will make no difference to the amount of work available to west coast shipbuilding industry because we still have a certain amount guaranteed to the west coast over the next three years, which is all that remains of the five-year period," he said.

"We still have the opportunity

Russians Launch Giant Spacecraft

MOSCOW (Reuters) — The Soviet Union announced today it has launched a new space vehicle to test the design for future space ships.

The craft, named Cosmos 186, was launched Friday into an orbit closely similar to that of the ill-fated Soyuz 1, which carried Col. Vladimir Komarov to his death on April 24.

The announcement of the launching came soon after London press reports said the Russians had orbited a giant Soyus-type spacecraft capable of carrying five men as a rehearsal for a spectacular new Soviet space venture.

There was no immediate description of the size of the new vehicle, but the statement that it was intended to test "elements of the design of space vehicles" was a departure from the usual formula used in connection with the Cosmos series.

MARKET SUMMARIES

Weakness Hits 'Critical Point'

By FRITS ROOS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Prices at Canada's major stock markets slipped again this week although the decline was not as marked as last week.

There was no panic selling, however, as only a moderate 15,061,000 shares changed hands at Toronto compared with 14,383,000 the previous week.

The Toronto industrial index slid .50 to 160.22—considerably less than last week's 4.79-point drop. However, in mid-week this key indicator of the market's performance dipped to 159.77—lowest level since Feb. 27.

It was down for four of the five sessions.

Brokers were unable to pinpoint an immediate cause for the market's weakness but agreed it seemed to have reached a "critical juncture."

One blamed investor uncertainty caused by "lack of positive government action against obvious inflation."

"There's nothing intrinsically wrong with corporate conditions that cannot be quickly corrected, but that correction doesn't seem to be forthcoming."

BLUE CHIPS DECLINE

Inco, which dropped 3⅞ last week, rallied 1½ to 115½ but was one of few blue chips that advanced.

Falconbridge dropped 2 to 88, Walker's 1⅜ to 32⅝, Bell Telephone and Massey-Ferguson ¾ each to 44¾ and 19 and CPR ⅝ to 60⅞.

Banks and steels were slightly off.

Toronto-Dominion fell ½ to 12¼ and Bank of Montreal ⅛ to 11¼ as Royal Bank gained ⅛ to 14⅞. Banks of Nova Scotia and Commerce remained unchanged at 13 and 11⅞.

Algoma Steel declined ⅛ to 20¾ as Stelco and Dofasco remained even at 21 and 21⅝.

HIGH FLYER

Shares of General Products Manufacturing, a London, Ont., company that makes tubing, auto equipment, builders' hardware and other products, bounced 19 to 79 after it became known an unidentified company wants to buy part of its assets.

The stock, which stood at 37 last September, went as high as 85 during the week.

Laura Secord was off 1⅛ to 14⅛ after it was announced Fanny Farmer had won its takeover battle with Salada Foods. The latter dropped ⅜ to 10 in the process.

Ford of Canada jumped 4 to 172 following settlement of a strike against its U.S. parent company which closed most of Canadian Ford plants.

Corby Distillery, which announced an increased dividend of $3.25 a share, was up 3 to 35 and Beaver Lumber, FPE Pioneer and International Utilities gained 2 each to 36, 34 and 40, respectively.

Chrysler dropped 2¾ to 56¼ in light trading and IMC 2 to 31.

Scurry-Rainbow paced western oils with a jump of 6¾ to 40 after reaching 42 during the week. There were no official reasons for the sudden increase but a broker said the price was pushed up by New York investors.

Hudson's Bay Oil gained 1 to 38½ after the company announced profits at 88 cents a share—up from 66 cents. Home A advanced 2⅛ to 23½ and Canadian Superior 1 to 44. Dome Petroleum dropped 2⅝ to 56⅝.

In base metals, Hudson Bay Mining fell 2⅞ to a low of 58 after the company announced a $1.19-a-share profit, down from $1.42 last year. Rio Algom picked up 1¼ to 34⅝ while Roman Corp. declined ¾ to 28⅛ and Denison ¼ to 83.

Among golds, Kerr-Addison was off ⅝ to 17 and Campbell Red Lake ⅛ to 20⅞. Dome moved up ¾ to 47½.

On the speculative side, Vascan, which makes steel alloys, and Quebec Lithium rose 70 cents each to 3.80 and 2.80, respectively.

Cochenour Willans Gold Mines climbed 50 cents to 1.40 before and after the company announced a new base metal zone in the Red Lake, Ont., area.

Granby Mining Net Income Drops

VANCOUVER (CP)—Granby Mining Co. Ltd. has reported net income for the nine-month period ending Sept. 30 at $829,000.

The income indicated at $1.74 per share value down from $2.23 for a similar period last year when net income was $1,059,000.

A quarterly dividend of 25 cents was declared payable on Dec. 15.

WITH CAPACITY of Canadian Helium plant at Swift Current, Sask., tripled to 36 million cubic feet annually by addition of a second and larger extraction tower, right, the company has put into service a fleet of six specially-designed cylinder trailers to transport helium in bulk to a new plant in Montreal where conventional cylinders are filled for export customers and eastern Canadian market. They are the largest gas trailers ever built for "piggy back" rail service.

U.S. CONGRESS

Trade Barriers Drive Shattered

WASHINGTON (CP)— The trade protection drive in the U.S. Congress appears to have been shattered—for this year at least.

But there are more than 300 splinters lying on the Congressional agenda as individual bills calling for import quotas on commodities from mink pelts to potash. It's regarded as possible that some conceivably could slip through individually.

"Now the danger is that the industrial lobbyists with a precedent in the existing quotas for oil, cotton textiles and beef will proceed in piecemeal fashion to add a few more prizes to the fiefdom of protection," the Washington Post speculates editorially. There is also a quota on some dairy products including cheddar cheese.

More worrying in the long run for domestic and foreign observers opposed to any trade curbs is the possibility that the protectionist climate next year—with the 1968 elections that much closer—will be even warmer.

State Secretary Rusk and three other cabinet members carried the anti-protectionist fight to the Senate finance committee with the warning of inevitable foreign retaliation if the U.S. starts to raise trade barriers.

They were supported by official representations of concern from Canada and at least 16 other U.S. trading partners.

Support has also been rallied from important consumer interests objecting to the higher prices resulting from dependence on domestic commodities at the expense of cheaper imports.

But some observers still feel there may be an attempt to have a majority of the 100-member Senate approve a general resolution expressing concern for industries that could be harmed by imports.

This would have no power but be a useful debating point later.

There is concern at home and abroad that the wide range of tariff cuts negotiated in the Kennedy Round at Geneva could be eroded.

The issue is regarded by the government as crucial economically because of U.S. reliance on expanding trade. Rusk also argued that trade harmony, while never easy, is an important glue in cementing relations with allies.

Chrysler Sales In Sharp Rise

NEW YORK (AP)—A sharp rise in third-quarter income and sales has been reported by Chrysler Corp.

Lynn Townsend, Chrysler chairman, and Virgil E. Boyd, president, told shareholders income for the three months ended Sept. 30 was $26,800,000 or 58 cents a share, compared with $6,500,000, or 14 cents a share in the 1966 quarter.

Townsend and Boyd said consolidated world-wide sales for the three months were a record $1,300,000,000 compared with $1,100,000,000 in 1966.

'Canadians Support Sales to U.S.'

VANCOUVER (CP)—A National Energy Board commissioner said Friday granting Westcoast Transmission Ltd. permission to export natural gas to the U.S. for a price less than that charged domestic users would mean that Canadian customers are supporting sales to the U.S.

D. M. Fraser made the comment during the fourth day of hearings into Westcoast's application to export an additional 200,000,000 cubic feet of gas daily to El Paso Natural Gas Co. at prices fixed by the U.S. Federal Power Commission. Westcoast now exports 300,000,000 cubic feet of natural gas a day to the U.S. In addition, it is exporting 100,000,000 cubic feet a day on a one-year temporary permit which expires Tuesday.

Last year the NEB approved an export application from Westcoast based on a 25-year contract at specified prices which escalated each year. However, the FPC turned down the application when it was submitted by El Paso.

The FPC subsequently said it would agree to a 20-year contract on which it fixed the price at 29.5 cents U.S. Funds per 1,000 cubic feet.

Westcoast is now asking the NEB to approve a contract at the FPC-stipulated price and terms.

E. T. Tyler, Westcoast's vice-president of planning, told the hearing that his company could make a profit of 5.3 cents per 1,000 cubic feet on the extra 200,000,000 cubic feet daily. He based the figure on a gas-cost-price to the company of 26.9 cents and a selling price to El Paso at 32.2 cents.

STUDIES SUBMITTED

Douglas J. Owen, president and treasurer of Westcoast, and David Hunter, assistant treasurer, submitted cost of service studies which showed that between 1968 and 1975, revenue from Canadian sales would be slightly above cost and revenue from U.S. sales would be just below cost.

Mr. Fraser then asked Mr. Hunter that if the cost-revenue situation were to exist, "would Canadian customers be supporting U.S. sales?"

"Yes, that would appear to be the case from this cost of service allocation," Mr. Hunter said.

"Am I correct in my recollection that this in fact has been the historical position," Mr. Fraser asked.

"Yes," Mr. Hunter replied.

D. P. McDonald, senior vice-president of Westcoast, said Canadian customers — mainly Inland Natural Gas Co. and B.C. Hydro and Power Authority — were being offered new contracts contingent on approval of the export, at a price fixed for the next 15 years.

He said there would be provision for a renegotiated price for another 24 years.

He said the price would be subject to approval by a regulatory body.

Arthur Mayse

There are in this town as in any other, parents who worry because one of their children is 'different.'

He is not retarded, as the reports he brings home from school testify, neither does he display any visible sign of emotional disturbance. He is normally affectionate, and gets on well enough with other children.

But from his earliest walking and talking years, he has shown a dismaying tendency to shun organized group activity whenever and wherever the choice was his to make.

Although he is now of an age and size to make a place on a school team or in Little League baseball, he would sooner be making something, or reading, or off beach-rambling, either by himself or perhaps with a friend of his own stamp.

Should the child be a girl, she's a 'poor mixer' or 'dreamy'.

This apparent determination to disprove the definition of man as a social animal can be distressing, especially since good parents want more for their children in popularity and acceptance than they themselves may have enjoyed when young.

Sometimes tangible reasons for this shunning of group activity may be found. A physical flaw, or what the boy or girl imagines to be one, can be terribly hard on young morale.

But if none such exist — and both subtlety and diplomacy may be required in the search — there's but one sensible conclusion.

Here, bestowed on a set of parents by the luck of the genetic draw, is a non-organization child.

I have happened across a few such young ones, and listened while more than one parent plagued by honest concern told about others.

'Andy would make a wonderful ball-player if he could just be persuaded to take his nose out of the books! . . . 'We wanted Bill to join the Boy Souts, but he'd sooner be off by his lone!' . . . 'We hoped so much that Joanne (who is not especially shy, just quiet) would join the drama club. . . .'

But she doesn't and they don't and the fact is not necessarily a waste of opportunities and a dowright tragedy.

The tragedy comes when a boy or girl of this stamp is forced 'for his own good' and strongly against his grain, into being a joiner.

Let me make it plain here that I am not sneering at the joiners. Without them, and their ability to function as team members, much of the world's work would never get done.

But there is also a place for the unorganized and the unorganizable, and it becomes an increasingly important one.

★

Today in Canada as in the United States, I think we are in grave danger of being over-organized. We adopt the group opinion too easily, and for fear of offending against group belief — or prejudice — we grow increasingly reluctant to challenge and, when necessary, to defend.

I have been told gravely by a man who believed his own words that 'No man really has the right to be an individualist', and how many times have you heard an opinion that goes against majority view dismissed because 'That man's thinking is all wrong."

We need the team players, but we also need people whose makeup defies organization.

For this reason, I am all for letting the child of this mould go his way to the full extent that our close-knit society will permit.

It's possible that he will eventually find a place in a group of his own choosing when he moves up to university where the horizons are wider. But he may remain that rare and necessary ingredient to the human mix, an individualist who will forever remain outside the groups.

If you have one of these under your roof, give him all the chance you can to find himself on his own terms.

His thoughts may be longer, and their potential greater, than we can know.

HOW MANY decks did you say? A model of the passenger liner Queen Mary, in all its intricate detail, is spread out for inspection by the carver, Charles Clare, 539 Lampson Street, Esquimalt. Each deck was carved to show details of construction. Most of the work on the model was done at sea—Mr. Clare was a shipwright officer before his retirement. He has been making models "all his life" and has several in the maritime museum.

School Vote On Dec. 9

Rural Saanich ratepayers will vote on a $550,000 supplementary school construction referendum Dec. 9.

School board chairman Nora Lindsay said Friday the money is needed to complete projects approved in a 1965 referendum. Soaring construction and land costs were blamed for making the first referendum for $1,855,000 fall short.

Sidney, Saanichton, Keating and Prospect Lake elementary schools are involved in the unfinished work.

A public meeting will be held Nov. 6 at Royal Oak elementary school to air the subject, said Mrs. Lindsay. The date for a second meeting in North Saanich has not been set.

Ramblers Ready To Roam Abroad

First B.C., then Expo. Where next . . . Tokyo? Czechoslovakia?

It's quite possible that Victoria's Midnight Ramblers could go to these two faraway places, says Norm Winquist, the combo's leader on his return from Montreal this week.

The four men, Mr. Winquist, his brother Bob, Norm Watson and Stan Bell, have just spent 15 days at Expo and five at Winnipeg where they backed up western singer Wilf Carter in the Great Western Rodeo's stage show.

"We have provided backing for Mr. Carter in his B.C. tours," said Mr. Winquist, "and he particularly asked that we should be engaged for his Montreal shows at Expo and at Winnipeg."

Mr. Winquist said that Japanese representatives looking over Expo with their own Expo '70 in mind, talked of taking the whole rodeo, including the stage show and musicians for their world's fair three years from now.

Officials from Czechoslovakia also discussed the possibility of taking the whole show to that country for a tour.

"We just have to wait and see" said Mr. Winquist.

The Ramblers played 10 shows including some matinees at Expo after a few days of rehearsal. In the stadium crowds were as large as 23,000. Smallest crowd was 6,000.

Death Is No Longer An End to Living?

By KATHRINE THOMAS

For $3,000 in cash or instalments, you can purchase a chance on a gamble called life extension.

"Cyrogenic storage" will put you on ice with a possibility of revival if and when science has caught up with the idea, says Desmond Clancy, a second year political science student at McGill University in Montreal. He was in Victoria as co-ordinator and publioist of the Canadian branch of the Life Extension Society of which his father is head.

The Life Extension Society which has its main branch in Washington, D.C., is a scientific non-profit organization dedicated to advancing the idea that death can be postponed.

Two dollars a year buys a membership and a newsletter.

Mr. Clancy envisions a future in which clinics and hospitals over the world will be prepared for cyrogenic storage.

Immediately after clinical death (heart stoppage) attempts would be made to revive the heart. If this proved impossible artificial respiration would be given, providing oxygen to the brain to prevent cellular deterioration.

Concurrently attendants would be placing dry ice around the corpse, lowering the body temperature. In the process, the blood would be removed and replaced with DMSO—a type of anti-freeze.

The body would then be placed in a cyrogenic capsule, immersed in a solution of liquid nitrogen and kept at a constant pressure and a temperature near minus 160 degrees centigrade. This would keep molecular activity at a minimum.

23 COUNTRIES

The Life Extension Society has branches in 23 countries. So far 50 people have signed up for cyrogenic storage.

At the moment facilities are available only in Washington and Los Angeles.

"There is no guarantee whatsoever. The Life Extension Society doesn't promise anything. In the grave you can rot in peace—with cyrogenic storage you at least have a chance that scientific advances will make revival and life extension possible."

What about the religious question that we should not tamper with life and death?

"We are living with concepts of the past. Death is not necessarily a way of life. What was natural 100 years ago is not natural today. We no longer believe in strict mores—today we are groping in our own minds for new answers.

"I feel already such institutions as marriage and religion are outmoded. This is an age of no gods—we no longer depend on abstract symbols—we have the independence to find out for ourselves."

CHIEF WON'T RESPECT BAN

Chief John Albany of the Songhees Reserve, said today the ban of fireworks in the whole of the capital region on Halloween, doesn't apply to the Craigflower and Esquimalt Reserve.

"There is nothing to stop our children from using firecrackers on the reserve," he said. "We are not an organized municipality and don't come under the jurisdiction of any of the local governments."

He said Indian children will not observe the ban.

"Naturally we will supervise the use of fireworks," he said, "for the protection of our children. But that is all."

Courts Busied In Marijuana Upsurge Here

Marijuana cases continue to appear before Victoria magistrate's court.

There have now been 17 marijuana cases before court this year. There have been nine convictions, two persons are on trial, five are waiting trial, and there has been one acqui[illegible]

There was only one case in 1966.

In a trial which opened Friday, city police Det.-Constable Murray MacArthur told the court he observed Verne Green, 20, of 536 Johnson, and Alfons Hughes, 19, of Lake Cowichan, painting a house at 1519 Amelia St. They were arrested Oct. 11.

The detective said Green was observed to smoke a cigarette three times as he worked on the house.

BAGS FOUND

Det.-Constable MacArthur said he examined a shed at the rear of the house Oct. 10 and found two plastic bags containing marijuana.

Police removed the bags on the night of Oct. 10 and placed dye in them, returning them to the shed the following morning.

The detective told the court when Green was arrested he could see no dye on his hands.

RCMP Constable Geral O'Neil said he never observed Green or Hughes handling the bags. Both accused denied knowledge of the existence of the bags.

The youghs were remanded to Monday to set a date to continue the trial.

Two other men, arrested Thursday night, appeaared in court Friday on marijuana charges.

Bail was set at $5,000 for Francis Neel, 746 Dupplin, charged with possession of marijuana for purposes of trafficking.

Bail was set at $1,500 for Edward Sukis, 809 Penwell, charged with the lesser offence of possession.

MEETING SUNDAY

Memorial Society Sees 'Threat to Existence'

The Memorial Society of British Columbia meets Sunday to discuss "a threat to our existence," a spokesman said Friday.

Mrs. Jean Mohart of Vancouver said the "threat" comes in the form of draft legislation by the funeral industry expected to come before the January session of the legislature.

But the president of the B.C. Funeral Service Association, Gar Jennings of Vancouver, said the bill is not a threat to the Memorial Society. It aimed to educate undertakers and assure the public of qualified funeral people.

The Memorial Society, with more than 15,000 members, aims for simple and dignified funerals with specific costs quoted for each service.

●

Mrs. Mohart said the draft legislation is "an indirect attempt to get us under control."

The draft suggests a regulatory board composed of the deputy health minister as chairman and five other persons, "of whom not less than three shall be licensed funeral directors or embalmers."

This board may grant or issue a certificate of qualification to a person who applies "and has had special training or experience as a funeral director or embalmer either in or outside B.C."

The board may, for cause, suspend the licence or permit of any person "for such period and upon such conditions as it deems proper."

It may also revoke the certificate of qualification and cancel the licence or permit of any person for prescribed causes.

●

"We are set up under the Societies Act," said Mrs. Mohart.

"This has hurt them. The undertaker has been a victim of his own free enterprise system. The people in our society want simplicity in funerals.

"Embalming is mentioned 21 times in the draft legislation. The public thinks it is compulsory but it is not."

She said the society, one of the largest in North America, has "overcome some pretty drastic hurdles they've thrown at us."

Until last year, she said, "no one would sell us a coffin." The society found a carpenter who did the work.

Mr. Jennings said the B.C. Funeral Service Association is trying to find out "the proper and correct way" of submitting the draft to the legislature and so far that has not been decided.

●

"It's an act that will allow us to educate our own people in this work to the point where any member of the public who goes to the funeral establishment (is assured) that the people there are completely qualified to do what they (the public) wish," he said.

"Anyone who takes exception to this legislation, I would suggest they might be worried about the strictness of it."

He pointed out that there is charged with the lesser offence of possession.

no law in B.C. that a person must call an undertaker at all.

"Anyone who is not prejudiced will find this (legislation) will only build up and protect the public. It is not a threat to the Memorial Society—they are free to operate. I personally invited them to become a member of our organization two years ago."

The beginnings of the draft bill go back as far as 1938, he said.

HOLD BODY FOR DOCTOR

People who die in private hospitals must be pronounced dead by a doctor, Coroner Edmond Jorre de St. Jorre said today.

He was commenting on a report that funeral establishments must not take dead bodies from private hospitals before a doctor certifies death.

Mr. St. Jorre said the attorney-general's department mentioned a year ago to a coroner's conference a regulation that "a private hospital should have a dead person pronounced dead by a doctor.

"From time to time I've mentioned that to private hospitals. I didn't make a ruling I simply mentioned it to some matrons."

He said there is no problem at the public hospitals because doctors or internes are available at all hours.

There was a case in Toronto, he said, where a person thought to be dead turned out to be alive when examined in the morgue.

Should Bible Be Censored For Realism?

If language of realism is too much for English students, maybe the Bible should be expurgated, too.

"The Bible contains some pretty realistic language . . ."

This is among comments Friday by Esquimalt high school teacher Justice Havelaar, chairman of a committee of educators concerned with a controversial short story for optional reading on the Grade 12 curriculum.

His statement on behalf of the committee's executive suggests Education Minister Leslie Peterson is in for a battle in his bid to have the book removed from the course.

VULGAR WORDS

At issue is the short story, Defender of the Faith, by American author Philip Roth, which includes several vulgar words including a four-letter one for sexual intercourse.

Trustee Ted Wood touched off the controversy when he publicly objected to the language. But the Greater Victoria School Board voted 7-2 in support of the curriculum and the ability of teachers to handle it.

Thursday, Education Minister Peterson ordered the committee responsible for selecting the anthology containing the short story to take another look at its recommendation.

MORE MEETINGS

That committee met Friday and apparently will meet again to consider the matter further.

But Mr. Havelaar, chairman of the Secondary Association of Teachers of English, made it clear where his executive stands.

"Literature as we see it," he said, "is an interpretation of reality.

"Anyone who is aware of life's realities is also aware of its rough sides and the dirt that is all around us. Whether that dirt affects us depends on our attitudes.

VIEWPOINTS

"Experiencing the reality of life does not mean that we approve of it, leave alone that we holding it up as something desirable."

Fear that dirty words might affect the minds of students is an admission society has failed to teach them proper values, he said.

Children are familiar with vulgar expressions "but that does not mean they are affected by them.

"There seems to be one sure way to make them look for vulgar words and that is to make a fuss about one example."

KINGS: 14, 10

He referred to the Bible's first Book of Kings, chapter 14, verse 10.

"The Bible contains some pretty realistic language and descriptions. Maybe it should be purified also."

Havelaar said the executive believes "giving in to this form of censorship would set a very dangerous trend and we will oppose it with all means at our disposal.

"Filth exists mostly in the mind of the reader.

"It is our task to make our students into intelligent readers and responsible people who will not be affected by filth when they meet it in others."

DRIVER INVITES TROUBLE

A man fined last Tuesday for driving while his licence was suspended was picked up by police later the same day driving once again.

And he was picked up for the same offence again Friday.

Robert Brown, 19, of 726 Goldstream, pleaded guilty to the two new counts in magistrate's court.

Court was told the accused has a lengthy record of driving offences.

Magistrate J. A. Byers remanded Brown to Tuesday to enable the court to obtain his driving record from the motor vehicle branch.

Champ Gardener To Be Honored All His Life

Victoria's champion "mum" grower has been made a life member of the Victoria and District Chrysanthemum Society.

The presentation, including a gift of a desk pen, suitably inscribed, was made to A. H. (Andy) Anderson at a recent society dinner.

Mr. Anderson has been exhibiting chrysanthemums over a period of 21 years.

In 1947 he won the aggregate trophy in the novice classes and since then for at least 16 years has won the over-all show aggregate as well as many other trophies.

He has also served on the society's executive for 10 years and has done much to improve the chrysanthemum show — one of the major gardening events of the year.

INJURED DEER is pulled from a water hole 200 feet from the Pat Bay Highway near the Beaver Lake entrance by SPCA officials today. The 2-year-old buck had a broken leg and had to be destroyed. Officials believe it may have been struck by a car Friday night. Saanich police had a report of a deer being struck in the area. They searched the vicinity to no avail. A passing motorist spotted the deer this morning.

Jamming Probed As Six Die

DAVENPORT, Iowa (UPI) — Six persons, four of them children, were found dead of apparent asphyxiation today in a home where police said newspapers and a bedspread had been stuffed into the furnace ventilating system.

College Bows to Students

MONTREAL (CP) — Douglass Burns Clarke, academic vice-principal of Sir George Williams University, announced today that students may be permitted in the future to participate in the academic government of the university.

His announcement at a news conference came two days after about 1,000 Sir George Williams students staged a demonstration by boycotting classes and holding a sit-in in the lobby of the university's main building, demanding a share in administration.

'Combine' Cry Sounded Over Shipyard Closure

Investigation Urged by Labor

By ROGER STONEBANKS

The federal monopolies commission should "definitely" inquire into the selling of Victoria Machinery Depot's shipyard operations to Burrard Dry Dock, the president of the Victoria Labour Council said today.

Jack Groves was commenting on Friday's closure announcement which leaves only one major shipbuilding company on the West Coast. Burrard in Vancouver and Yarrows in Esquimalt are associated companies.

He also said "every possible avenue has got to be looked into to keep shipbuilding out of one family's hands.

"The shipyards should be brought up to date in techniques and not get behind.

"They've let their techniques fall behind but they are blaming labor costs. Everyone has got to get together to impress on the government this industry has got to be kept."

At the same time, the B.C. Federation of Labour will urge the federal government to nationalize VMD's shipyard and run it as a Crown corporation.

President E. T. Staley also said the resolution calls on the government to establish a merchant marine for the country.

Comparison With Dosco Closing

He said the single ownership means a monopolizing of the shipbuilding and repair industry and "there should be some alternative form of bidding.

"This is a grave situation which we compare to the Dosco situation on the East Coast.

"As an executive, we are disturbed by the monopolistic control of West Coast shipyards, the extremely bad effect on the Victoria economy and the personal hardship likely to be suffered by many workers and their families."

The VMD yard will close Jan. 1 but the Bay Street engineering factory will continue. Shipyard equipment and stocks have been sold to Burrard and VMD president Harold Husband has become a director of that company.

Ownership of the 20-acre shipyard property, however, remains with Mr. Husband. He said today there are no definite plans for its use.

The VMD president, in his statement Friday, said closure was forced because of "learning from reliable sources in Ottawa that the federal government is planning to cancel its promised vessel construction program for the Coast Guard."

Today, Victoria MP David Groos said he knows of no such cancellation.

'We Build Better Ships'

Mr. Husband said "there is absolutely nothing, it is absolutely flat" on the work books beyond the end of this year.

Mr. Groos said the amalgamation will make operations more efficient "and give us the opportunity to bid more successfully for nation-wide contracts. This is where the secret of our success lies."

There was "no question" that the West Coast builds better and more efficient ships than anywhere else in Canada.

"This (VMD shipyard closure) will make no difference to the amount of work available to west coast shipbuilding industry because we still have a certain amount guaranteed to the west coast over the next three years, which is all that remains of the five-year period," he said.

"We still have the opportunity to tender on a national basis for all other federal government ships. Tenders that have been submitted by west coast yards show that we can be competitive and I hope that this amalgamation will put Burrard and Yarrows in a more efficient competitive position so we will win some of these national contracts."

He said an emergency debate in the House of Commons would probably be ruled out of order by the speaker because the subject must be of immediate national importance.

While the closure was of importance to Victoria, it would probably be hard to point out it is of "great national importance" because the national shipbuilding picture has not changed.

On a Canadian merchant marine, he said there was an inquiry a few years ago and he considered the finding still valid.

There was "no possibility" the federal government alone could keep eight or nine shipyards in business using contracts to build federal ships.

There was a national marine once but it lost money, he said.

"The problem of having a merchant marine is you have to provide some legislation to ensure that people use your ships," he said.

"The U.S. Maritime Commission have had to get Congress to pass a law that a certain percentage of all shipments

Hopes Sag For UN Formula

UNITED NATIONS (CP) Hopes for an early agreement on a Middle East peace formula grew fainter today as the 10-member United Nations Security Council remained deadlocked over the question of new Israeli frontiers.

Members agreed after private talks Friday night to meet again Monday in hopes of working out a compromise between two proposals, one by Canada and Denmark and the other by India.

The Canadian-Danish proposal would have the council call for the withdrawal of Arab and Israeli troops to "secure frontiers."

Israel was understood to prefer the phrase "secure and agreed frontiers," which it felt would imply holding negotiations before making any withdrawals from the Arab territory it conquered in the June war.

The Indian proposal called for a pull-back to positions held immediately prior to the outbreak of fighting. But the Latin American council members, Argentina and Brazil, found this unacceptable, said diplomatic sources.

Both proposals were understood to include giving UN Secretary General U Thant authority to send a special representative to the Middle East.

Danish Foreign Minister Hans Tabor who presented the Canadian-Danish proposal, told reporters both formulas were "balanced."

But he said he could not see sufficient agreement on the issue for at least a week or 10 days to allow the council to hold a public session.

British PM Greeted By Shower of Eggs

CAMBRIDGE, Eng. (Reuters) — Prime Minister Wilson today battled through a shower of hurled eggs and shouted slogans while police fought back demonstrators.

One police sergeant was rushed unconscious to a hospital and Wilson had an egg-stain on his coat sleeve when he addressed 1,400 Labor party members at a rally here.

About 150 students paraded with anti-Wilson posters outside a hall in this ancient university city for 90 minutes when Wilson's car drew up at a side door.

They dashed forward and pounded the vehicle with their fists. Many clashed with about 20 police trying to force them back.

Police formed a cordon and the prime minister took a few quick paces into the hall.

He walked looking straight ahead to the clamor of chants such as "Wilson out," "Vietnam murderer" and "go home little Hitler."

Easing Suffering, Cost Arthritis Clinic Service

The man was dressed in every other respect impeccably.

But his shoe laces were undone.

They clicked against the floor tile as he moved across the room.

But nobody at the Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society office at 63 Gorge appeared to notice. They knew this was another arthritis sufferer coming for help.

He explained that even on his good days it might take him half an hour to get those darned laces tied.

Sometimes he can't bend over far enough. Sometimes he gets bent over and he can't get up again, so once in a while he says to heck with it—and lets them be. He rarely moves fast enough to shuffle out of his shoes anyway.

And what do shoe laces matter when your joints are swollen and stiff and the nagging pain is back?

The arthritis clinic can't take away his ailment, but it can help him live with it. For a start there's a shoe horn with a long handle and elastic shoelaces for sale at below cost.

There are drugs and household help and specially designed furniture and treatments to ease the pain.

C.A.R.S., a Community Chest agency, founded in 1947 with one physiotherapist, now has 50 branches across the province.

●

Last year the Victoria Branch diagnosed 140 new cases and gave 150 out-patients 3,243 treatments, 2,735 were at the clinic and 508 in patient's homes.

The cost to an arthritis sufferer could be enormous if it weren't for the clinic.

But public contribution to the United Appeal can help to ease the pressure and in many cases pay for treatments and aids otherwise impossible to obtain.

The estimated 1967 budget for C.A.R.S. is $41,175. The United Appeal has allotted 4.3 per cent or $17,875 to help meet this figure.

This contribution enables C.A.R.S. to have a sliding pay scale for treatments.

"If a patient can pay the standard $5 per treatment, fine, but if he can't, we'll still see he gets full benefits," says Wendy Smylitopoulis, a physiotherapist and occupational therapist who is head of the Victoria branch clinic.

Together with another physiotherapist, she may see up to 20 patients a day. She applies hot and cold treatments to ease the pain, takes them through exercises to reduce stiffness in the joints and teaches them the many tricks that can be used to make the small activities of daily life more bearable.

Giant Spacecraft Launched by Russ

MOSCOW (Reuters) — The Soviet Union announced today it has launched a new space vehicle to test the design for future space ships.

The craft, named Cosmos 186, was launched Friday into an orbit closely similar to that of the ill-fated Soyuz 1, which carried Col. Vladimir Komarov to his death on April 24.

The announcement of the launching came soon after London press reports said the Russians had orbited a giant Soyuz-type spacecraft capable of carrying five men as a rehearsal for a spectacular new Soviet space venture.

There was no immediate description of the size of the new vehicle, but the statement that it was intended to test "elements of the design of space vehicles" was a departure from the usual formula used in connection with the Cosmos series.

Canada's Big Show Ending

MONTREAL (CP) — Fireworks, gunfire, flags and Very Important People will abound Sunday as Canada's 185-day Expo 67 ends.

It will wind up as it began, in pomp and circumstance, with Governor-General Michener, Prime Minister Pearson, Quebec Premier Daniel Johnson and Mayor Jean Drapeau of Montreal presiding.

There is no doubt that the magic 50,000,000 attendance figure for the six-month run will be reached, if not tonight then certainly by the time the turnstiles click for the last time at 2 p.m. Sunday.

On Friday, Expo was jammed with 428,978 visitors to bring attendance total to 49,652,397 when the fair opened this morning.

By noon today attendance was at 49,852,713.

The switch from daylight saving on Sunday will give the fair an extra hour to increase its attendance total.

At 3:30 p.m. Sunday all pavilions will begin to close as a 67-gun salute is fired by artillerymen stationed on the eastern tip of Cite du Havre.

Visitors leaving pavilions will be handed Expo flags, streamers, toy flutes and flower garlands.

Restaurants, bars, boutiques, hot-dog stands, the Minirail, the trackless trailer-train known as la Balade and boat tours through the canals and lagoons will end and La Ronde, the amusement area, will close.

At 3:50 p.m., a 35-minute fireworks display will fill the sky with noise and smoke, set off from points near Habitat 67 on Cite du Havre and the Canadian pavilion on Notre Dame Island.

Five minutes later, at 4:30 p.m., everyone will be asked to leave the site and Canada's six-month blast will be over.

Opposition Seeks War Pension Boost

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition MPs Friday pressed Veterans Affairs Minister Teillet to raise pensions for war veterans, drawing an assurance from him that the government is considering at least some increases.

Conservative, New Democrat and Social Credit MPs all pressed for "a substantial increase" in veterans' pensions as the House approved the $406,536,300 estimates of the veterans affairs department for 1967-68. Of this $202,101,000 is earmarked for pensions.

A. B. Patterson (SC—Fraser Valley) reminded the minister the government had promised an interim pension increase this fall if the Woods Report—an inquiry into veterans' affairs by Mr. Justice M. J. Woods of the Saskatchewan Appeal Court—was not ready.

Mr. Teillet said the government had given an undertaking to consider raising the pensions where needed and that was being done.

M. Patterson, acting Social Credit leader, said veterans were disappointed that the last pension increase did not extend to dependents.

"Economies should not be made at the expense of those who did not count the cost in their service to their country." The pressure for higher pensions for veterans also came from the government side of the House.

David Groos (L—Victoria), said there was virtual unanimity in the Commons veterans' affairs committee that pensions must be increased now to meet the higher cost of living.

Marcel Lambert (PC—Edmonton West) said prisoners-of-war in Europe—he was one himself—should be given the same treatment as veterans who were taken prisoner by the Japanese at Hong Kong.

DELAY 'INEXCUSABLE'

Gordon Churchill (PC—Winnipeg South Centre), a former minister of veterans' affairs, accused the government of an "inexcusable delay" in raising disability pensions to just levels.

Murdo Martin (NDP—Timmins) said Mr. Teillet was using translation problems as an excuse for not making public the Woods report. He quoted a letter from a French-speaking constituent saying Quebec veterans would be glad to get the report in English.

Mr. Teillet said it would take weeks to have the report translated into French and he wouldn't receive it until he could get it in both languages.

"That is the best argument I know against bilingualism—holding up the people's business," said Harold Winch (NDP—Vancouver East).

"You could do it yourself," interjected Stanley Knowles (NDP—Winnipeg North Centre).

E. T. Staley of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters defeated Rod Beaton of the IWA Lumber Inspectors 402 to 96.

Jack Groves, president of the Victoria Labour Council and a local IWA official, lost to regional IWA president Jack Moore 441 to 72.

Two Spies for One Deal Vetoed by U.K.

LONDON (AP)—The British government has publicly rebuffed a Soviet attempt to win back two Russian agents for one Briton now held in a Russian jail.

The deal was that Moscow would release lecturer Gerald Brooke, serving five years for subversive activities, if London would turn loose Peter and Helen Kroger, both serving 20 years as spies for the Soviet Union.

The American Krogers, husband and wife, were caught in a naval base espionage case of 1961 along with Gordon Arnold Lonsdale, master Soviet spy whose real name was Konon Molody. He was swapped back to Russia in 1964 for Greville Wynne, whom the Russians accused of spying for Britain.

The foreign office said it is clear from the latest reply of the Soviet government that refusal to allow Mrs. Brooke to see her husband is connected with the wish of the Soviet government to bring about an exchange of Brooke for the Krogers.

"Her majesty's government has made it clear that there is no comparison between the two cases and that an exchange is out of the question," a foreign office statement said.

BOY TURNS IN $1,000 BILL

CALGARY (CP)—City police Friday were looking for a person who bought a 25-cent program with a $1,000 bill and collected $1.75 in change.

A boy selling wrestling programs returned change for what he thought was a $2 bill. Only later did he discover that it was a $1,000 bill, which is similar in color to a $2 bill.

The boy took the $1,000 to police, who began looking for the person whose wrestling program cost $998.25.

7 Insurance Pacts Bought

ARCADIA, Fla. (AP) — The father of seven children killed by insecticide poisoning said in a sworn statement Friday he took out $1,000 double-indemnity life insurance policies on each child the night before the tragedy.

But the insurance agent said the policies did not take effect because the father couldn't afford the first week's premium, slightly under $4, said Assistant State Attorney John Treadwell.

Treadwell said James Richardson, 32, made his sworn statement during an investigation into the deaths of Richardson's seven children.

from the U.S. must go in U.S. ships.

"It is really the buyer, the purchaser, who decides how they (goods) will be transported.

"We are a major exporter of wheat and minerals and it is the purchaser who decides how cheaply he can get them where he wants."

This was the main reason the Americans lost wheat sales to the Soviet Union because the Russians said it was cheaper to move the shipments in non-U.S. ships.

With a merchant marine the government would have to subsidize ship building and operations "and this is something I don't think the country can afford."

Mr. Groos said "my main concern" is for the men who will be out of work and he would be discussing this with union officials over the weekend.

He hoped the federal government's occupational retraining program "will provide them with new and possible better jobs."

In other comments, Esquimalt Reeve Ray Bryant said Greater Victoria should get together "and Ottawa should get the message loud and clear that it's a vital industry in this area."

But Oak Bay Reeve Allan Cox said Ottawa's only responsibility was to retrain and relocate the jobless.

"I am not satisfied, however, that the taxpayers should continue to subsidize the industry and this is what must happen if the industry cannot be competitive."

Cheaper By The Thousands?

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia undertakers have presented a master plan to civil defence planners detailing how they can help if a major disaster strikes Vancouver.

The plan advanced by the B.C. Funeral Service Association, which represents 85 per cent of undertakers and embalmers in the province, is aimed at providing services for air or shipping disaster victims.

The plan also includes a schedule of fees—$50 for embalming if authorized by a coroner, $16 for a hearse call and $150 plus mileage for shipping bodies.

"I suppose there are some people who will think we are just trying to get our hands on some business, but we drew up this master plan in the sincere hope that it will never have to be used," association president Gar Jennings said Friday.

DETROIT (AP)—The United Auto Workers announced today the Chrysler Corp. will be the next target in negotiations for a new labor contract among the automobile big three.

Erratic Driving Led to Charges

Morley King, 32, of Lake Cowichan pleaded guilty in magistrate's court to a charge of impaired driving.

Magistrate J. A. Byers fined him $300 and suspended his driver's licence for four months.

Court was told the accused was clocked at 48 miles per hour going north on Douglas Friday night.

Police said he changed lanes several times, almost causing three accidents before they were able to stop him.

Coup Rumored In Peru Crisis

By JOHN M. GOSHKO

LIMA, Peru—The Peruvian working classes have started to feel the pinch of this country's economic crisis, and the result has been an ominously swelling wave of national jitters and discontent.

Several cities in southern and central Peru already have been partially paralyzed by a series of general strikes protesting the effects of a devalued currency and rising prices on the working man's pocketbook.

Here in Lima, a week-long succession of rumors about impending labor strife and food and gasoline shortages have brought the city close to panic on several occasions. In one instance, food stores in wide areas of the city abruptly banged their doors shut in reaction to an unfounded report that they were about to be sacked by irate mobs.

SPECULATION

Inevitably, the tension has heightened speculation that the armed forces are growing restive at President Fernando Belaunde Terry's seeming inability to arrest the crisis and might intervene with a military coup d'etat.

Almost overnight, Peru has been transformed from the fastest developing nation in South America to a country fast approaching the brink of grave inflation and stagnation.

And Belaunde, until now regarded as among the most visionary and progressive Latin leaders, has seemed unable to do anything except vaccilate between inaction and ineffectual temporizing measures.

Underlying the trouble was a combination of budgetary deficits, falling exports and rising imports that earlier this year caused a heavy drain of Peru's foreign exchange reserves.

Finally, in order to stave off a liquidity crisis, the central reserve bank was forced to withdraw from the foreign exchange market—a decision that meant it would no longer support the sol at its long-stable price of 26.80 to the dollar.

Since then, the sol has plummeted to a current level of approximately 39 to the dollar—a loss in value of about 40 per cent.

In the meantime, however, prices, especially for the imported foodstuffs on which Peru is heavily dependent, have been steadily raised to bring them back to the pre-devaluation level.

The result has been to confront the Peruvian worker, who has a per capita annual income of about $267, with a drastic cut in his real wages. Especially hard hit have been the poor.

GOVERNMENT OF THE PROVINCE OF BRITISH COLUMBIA

NOW IN EFFECT in British Columbia are new SEWAGE DISPOSAL REGULATIONS.

- All installations of septic tanks and absorption fields must meet the requirements of the Regulations. They must be inspected and approved before being covered.
- Soil Tests at a proposed disposal site must be arranged by the owner and a report submitted to the Medical Health Officer before applying for a permit.
- Where ground conditions are unsuitable for an absorption field, alternate methods of disposal may be approved by the Medical Health Officer.
- The Medical Health Officer for the area is the approving authority.
- The Regulations provide penalties for infractions.

NEED FOR NEW REGULATIONS

Efficient sewage disposal is vital in the control of communicable disease. Outbreaks of communicable diseases such as dysentery and infectious hepatitis, for example, can be due to inadequate sewage disposal or to malfunctioning septic tanks. New regulations are needed to deal particularly with areas of rapid growth that are not served by municipal sewerage systems. Many septic tank failures occur as a result of poor installation.

PURPOSE OF NEW REGULATIONS

- To improve sewage disposal in unorganized and other areas where septic tanks are the means of disposal.
- To provide uniform sewage disposal standards throughout British Columbia.

REGULATIONS APPLY TO:

- EXISTING INSTALLATIONS where the Medical Health Officer judges there exists a danger to public health.
- PROPOSED INSTALLATIONS (septic tanks or other systems of acceptable type) which must be approved and have a permit from the Medical Health Officer before construction begins.

These REGULATIONS GOVERNING SEWAGE DISPOSAL were authorized by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council on September 14, 1967 under provision of the HEALTH ACT. Copies of the Sewage Disposal Regulations may be obtained from your local Medical Health Officer.
